Plow Frees Train 'Lost' In Kansas Snowdrifts

Villages Isolated, Scores of Autoists, Countless Livestock Stranded by Storm

Kansas City, Nov. 19 (AP).—A few trains began rolling slowly over blizzard-swept western Kansas plains tonight although several towns were still isolated and hundreds of motorists stranded by winter's first heavy snowstorm.

The Santa Fe's westbound California Limited, earlier reported "lost" in Kansas snowdrifts, reached Cimarron, Kans., tonight 12 hours after it pulled out of Dodge City, 30 miles away.

A snow plow from Cimarron fought its way over the track and freed the fast train about nightfall tonight.

The passengers were not harmed. Fear had been expressed for their safety earlier when the temperature dropped to 18 degrees, and continued to fall after dusk.

The Santa Fe Superchief and Chief, crack passenger trains, were running nearly 20 hours late on their way to Kansas City. They had been stalled at Dodge City.

The unexpected fury of the storm caught whole communities unprepared and many families had little food on hand.

National Guard Saves 19

No fatalities were reported immediately. Most of the persons being rescued from stalled motorcars said they had not suffered much because the temperature had not dropped below 23 degrees.

State Adjt. Gen. Milton R. McLean at Topeka said National Guard half-tracks, equipped with radio, had advanced 18 miles from Dodge City eastward on U. S. Highway 50S, and had rescued 19 motorists.

Several Rock Island Railroad passenger trains were reported stalled west of Colby, but no information on them was available.

Two airline pilots said they spotted three marooned passenger trains, more than 200 stalled automobiles and thousands of roaming livestock near the Colorado-Kansas border.

Four eastbound Santa Fe passenger trains were tied up most of the day at Dodge City, but finally were moving on toward Kansas City, said W. A. Gossett, trainmaster at Kansas City.

Number on Train Unknown

West of Dodge City, all Santa Fe traffic was halted until the lost train could be located.

The railroad's communication lines are down in that area, and the Santa Fe has been using Bell Telephone lines for operating purposes. Electric signals were knocked out by the storm and crewmen are signaling the trains by hand.

Drifts across the track and U. S. Highway 50S, paralleling the railroad, were reported 6 feet deep and hard-packed.

Strong winds were driving the snow, although the sun broke

Big Inch Pipeline Blast Injures 11; 3 Are Unreported

Seymour, Ind., Nov. 19 (AP).—At least 11 men were injured tonight when the "Big Inch" natural gas pipeline exploded at a pumping station eight miles northeast of here.

Flames shot high into the air and intense heat prevented rescuers and fire-fighting equipment from entering the pumping station enclosure.

The "Big Inch" line blew up a few minutes before 6 p. m. (CST). Flames shot 300 feet high and were visible for miles.

A second blast occurred an hour and a half later and police believed it came from the "Little Inch," which parallels the "Big Inch."

Eisenhower Tells How the King Kept Churchill Off Invasion Ship

By Dwight D. Eisenhower

XIV

In today's installment:

Churchill mistakes a general's technical terminology for callous disregard for human life, and rebukes him.

Leigh-Mallory fears the attack on Utah Beach must end in a disastrous failure.

De Gaulle wants a guaranty that only he may give orders to the French population.

The elements first threaten disaster then promise success.

During all this period my personal contacts with the Prime Minister were frequent and profitable. He took a lively interest in every important detail, and was able to lend us an effective hand when some of our requirements demanded extra effort on the part of overloaded British civil agencies.

Visits to Chequers, the country home of the Prime Minister, always had business as their main purpose. But the countryside was so pleasant and peaceful that an occasional hour spent in strolling through the fields and woods was real recreation.

Mr. Churchill rarely failed to inject into most conferences some element of emotion. One day a British general happened to refer to soldiers, in the technical language of the British staff officer, as "bodies." The Prime Minister interrupted with an impassioned speech of condemnation—he said it was inhuman to talk of soldiers in such cold-blooded fashion, and that it sounded as if they were merely freight—or worse—corpses!

I must confess I always felt the same way about the expression, but on that occasion my sympathies were with the staff officer, who, in his own obvious embarrassment, had innocently drawn on himself the displeasure of the Prime Minister.

As in most other British homes, there was a guest book in Chequers. Each guest was expected to sign it every time he entered the house. Once, on a trip to the southern coast, I dropped in at Chequers to see Mr. Churchill for 10 minutes, after which I dashed for the door to continue the journey.

Just as I gained the seat of my car I became aware that the family butler, in all his dignity, was standing by to speak to me. He said, "Sir, you have forgotten the book," and his solemn tone meant to me that he found it difficult to forgive my oversight. I corrected the omission and sped upon my way.

CHURCHILL — Wanted to go on the invasion

KING GEORGE — He changed Churchill's mind

On May 15 a final conference was held at St. Paul's School under the supervision of SHAEF. At this final meeting every principal member of the British Chiefs of Staff and the War Cabinet attended, as did also the King of England and Allied generals by the score. Field Marshal Smuts came with his old friend, Mr. Churchill. During the whole war I attended no other conference so packed

U. S. Fights To Keep FAO In Capital

Seven Washington Sites Proposed; Lie Offers Group New York Quarters

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization engaged yesterday in a slugfest over the permanent site for the world's food organization.

For eight hours, Commission III of FAO heard arguments from the proponents of Washington, Rome and Copenhagen as the site. As the debate was nearing a close, the United Nations, through a letter from Secretary General Trygve Lie, upset the apple cart with an invitation to FAO to locate in New York City. Lie promised temporary quarters until the U. N. home has been built in New York, and permanent quarters afterwards.

The fight took on appearances of a small-town Chamber of Commerce battle for a new industry. American delegates came up with seven proposed sites for FAO in Washington. Against them were offers from both Denmark and Italy of sites in Rome and Copenhagen.

Carefully Drawn Appeals

All participants presented carefully drawn appeals. Those favoring Copenhagen offered an ancient castle of the royal Danish family; Rome offered a still-unfinished building of the Mussolini period.

Washington offered the selection of seven sites, as follows:

Site 1—The campus of the University of Maryland.

Site 2—In Maryland, between Massachusetts ave. and Bradley blvd., just south of Bradley blvd.

Site 3—Adjacent to Site 2, and the juncture of Bradley blvd. and Wisconsin ave.

Site 4—Just north of Dalecarlia Reservoir, near the juncture of Dalecarlia parkway and Massachusetts ave.

Site 5—East Capitol ave. east of the Capitol.

Decision Delayed

After the full day of argument, the decision was put off until 10 a. m. today. During the debate, the Washington proposal was supported by China, Portugal, India, Bolivia, the Philippines and Canada.

Opposing were the Netherlands, the Union of South Africa, France and Czechoslovakia.

The lead in opposing the Washington proposal was taken by the South African delegate. He appealed to American delegates to ask President Truman to increase this country's contribution to FAO.

The speaker, P. R. Viljoen, argued that it would be more costly to maintain headquarters here than in Europe, and for that reason the contribution of this country should be increased.

Personal Appeal Sought

"I'm going to urge my friend, William A. Jump of the American delegation, to take up the matter with his great President, who is going to address us next week."

The arguments in favor of keeping FAO headquarters in Washington centered around:

1. The proximity to other international organizations, particularly the International Bank and the International Monetary Fund.
2. The better communications system in Washington.
3. The advanced position of American agriculture.

In opposition, were:

1. The more economical opera-

Soviet Beaten On Arms Cut, A-Bomb Plan

Proposal a 'Cruel' Trick, Dulles Says; U. N. Votes Motion For Further Study

Paris, Nov. 19 (AP).—The United Nations Assembly defeated decisively tonight Russia's demands for a one-third reduction within a year in the armed forces of the five great powers and for the immediate banning of the atom bomb.

Instead, the Assembly adopted a western resolution calling for further study by the Conventional Arms Commission of steps which would lead toward eventual arms reduction.

Before the decisions were taken John Foster Dulles of the United States called the Soviet proposals "almost irresponsible" and a "cruel deception." He said the Russian resolution was more dramatic than the western proposal, "but it achieves drama at the expense of oversimplifying the problem."

Vishinsky Accuses U. S.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky charged that the United States and Britain are carrying on a "mad armaments race" against Russia. He accused the United States of building up a western European system directed against the Soviet Union.

The vote on the Russian resolution was 39 to 6. Only the nations in the Soviet bloc backed Russia's No. 1 project in the 1948 Assembly.

The western resolution was approved 43 to 6, with one country, Yemen, abstaining. It means that the Conventional Arms Commission will study next year how to organize an international organ for the gathering of armament information from U. N. members. The majority does not plan that any such information will be submitted in the next year.

In arguing for approval of the Soviet plan, Vishinsky called for the setting up within the range of the Security Council of an organization to which the five great powers would submit their information.

Russia Would Comply Last

Russia would submit information on her armed strength to such a body when the United States, Britain, France and China turned in their figures, he declared.

Vishinsky's statements in the final debate made it doubtful that the Soviet Union would take much interest in the coming year's work of the Conventional Arms Commission. The Soviet delegate attacked the majority resolution as "hollow, empty and foggy."

Other developments:

1. Secretary of State Marshall met with British and French foreign ministers to discuss the Ruhr. He also will confer with Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States military governor for Germany, and Ambassador Robert Murphy, Clay's political adviser. Those talks apparently will deal with the Berlin blockade and possibly other German problems. Marshall will fly back to Washington to report to President Truman on Monday.
2. The U. N.'s second political

ECA Fund Drops To Last Billion As Outlays Soar

The Economic Cooperation Administration has dipped into its last billion dollars, the agency disclosed last night.

Outlays for foreign recovery soared to a new high of $650,038,379 last week, ECA's weekly report said. The previous high mark was $263,345,203.

These brought total dollar commitments to $3,610,852,178 in gifts and about $800,000,000 in repayable loans. Congress appropriated $5,330,000,000 for the European and Chinese economic programs.

Hoffman Begs Strikers to Let Aid Goods Sail

Nothing to Fear

All Clear Ahead, Says Rayburn

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Key West, Fla., Nov. 19.—Representative Sam Rayburn of Texas, who is slated to be the next Speaker of the House of Representatives, said today that nobody should be "scared about" the Truman Administration.

Rayburn, who recently was elected to the House for his nineteenth term, was asked this question:

"A lot of people, including those in Wall Street, are afraid of where President Truman, Vice-President-elect Barkley and you are going to take us."

The prospective Speaker, in reply, said:

"I don't see anything anybody's got to be scared about."

20,000 Tons Piled Up Daily in Ports; Federal Mediators Hold Joint Talks

Paul G. Hoffman, Economic Cooperation Administrator, last night appealed to striking AFL longshoremen and ship Companies to move Marshall Plan goods to Europe despite the general tieup of shipping along the United States East Coast.

He said in a telegram to both sides that continued flow of supplies "is vital to the success of the entire European Recovery Program." He added that further delay "will not only endanger the recovery of Europe but tend to defeat the will of the American people," who, he said "are bearing a huge financial burden" to see the program through.

Hold Joint Session

Hoffman's appeal came as Federal conciliation officials were in New York conducting their first joint conferences with officials of the strikers and of the shipping companies since the strike began more than a week ago.

The Associated Press in a dispatch from New York last night quoted a source close to the negotiators as saying the strikers had cut their wage increase demands in half—from 50 cents an hour to 25 cents. The AP said employers are to meet this morning and it was reported their negotiators would submit the purported new proposals to them for study. However, wages constitute only one of several knotty issues.

William N. Margolis, head of the Federal mediation panel at the meetings said Friday's talks had produced "new proposals which would merit serious consideration by both sides."

He did not elaborate but said both sides had agreed to another meeting today.

20,000 Tons Halted Daily

At the start of the strike Joseph P. Ryan, head of the longshoremen, said that shipment of Army supplies to overseas areas and of Marshall Plan supplies would not be interfered with. Later, however, he reversed this position with regards to the ECA goods, declaring:

"If we're going to have a strike let's have one."

On Wednesday of this week it was estimated that 140,000 tons of European recovery goods were piled up at New York docks because of the strike and the total was increasing at the rate of 20,000 tons a day. In Philadelphia the chief headquarters for assembling and shipment of CARE relief packages to Europe had shut down because of the strike.

No replies to Hoffman's appeal had come from the longshoremen or the employing companies last night.

Following is the text of his telegram, addressed to Ryan and

Steel Industry Will Continue Its Allocations

Expansion of Major Phases Slated; New Program Is Added

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

America's steelmakers yesterday agreed to continue and expand major phases of the voluntary allocations program until next fall.

Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer announced the decision after an all-day session of top Government officials with the Steel Products Advisory Committee, composed of vice presidents of the big companies.

The committee, he said, agreed to carry on five allocation plans—designed to channel fixed amounts of the key metal to five vital industries—for at least six months beyond the expiration of the present voluntary allocations law next February 28.

New Program Approved

They also approved one new program and recommended the development of voluntary allocation plans for several other industries.

Officials described the attitude of the steel men as most cooperative. In several instances, it was said, they took the initiative and tentatively agreed to plans not yet fully prepared.

This was in sharp contrast to the last meeting of steel industry representatives with the Government six weeks ago. At that time, it appeared that a new GOP administration was on its way in and that the present voluntary allocations act would not be extended.

Today, plans for strengthening the law are under discussion in Government circles. There is talk of standby mandatory controls, if nothing stronger.

Yesterday's agreement covered only industries important in the broad field of national security—shipbuilding, freight cars, oil production machinery, grain storage, etc. The question of continuing voluntary allocations of steel for housing was not raised by the Government at yesterday's meeting.

Prices Increased On 1949 Buicks And Cadillacs

Detroit, Nov. 19 (AP).—General Motors Corp. today boosted the prices of its 1949 Cadillac and Buick autos.

Cadillac prices were raised an average of 3.2 per cent over the 1948 listings, while the increases on the new Buicks ranged from $50 to $100 on various models.

In addition, GM stipulated that the automatic dynaflow transmission, windshield washer and dual backup lights which were optional on the 1948 Buick Roadmaster series would be standard equipment on those 1949 models. The list price on the accessories last year was $247.50.

GM has not yet placed its 1949 Oldsmobiles, Pontiacs and Chevrolets on display and consequently no mention was made of any possible price increase on these cars.

Firemen End Feud

Capt. Conroy Apologizes to Chief Murphy

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Fire Capt. Joseph W. Conroy yesterday publicly apologized to Fire Chief Clement Murphy, ending a 6-month departmental feud which took Murphy before a trial board.

The apology, followed by a handshake between the two fire officials, took place before John Russell Young, president of the Board of Commissioners.

In June, 1947, Commissioner Young summoned Conroy before the board to substantiate or retract charges that Chief Murphy had demoralized the department. Yesterday's action, arranged at Conroy's request, adds the final chapter to the dispute which saw the complete exoneration of Murphy by a special trial board last January.

The controversy began when Conroy, then president of Local 36, International Association of Firefighters (AFL), bitterly attacked Chief Murphy at a hearing before a House District subcommittee considering a five-day work week for firemen. Murphy opposed the bill, recommending, instead, a change in the present six-day-week.

Conroy then made his charge that the Chief had demoralized the de-

Mother, 3 Sons Die In Locked-Closet Fire She Started

Dixon, Ill., Nov. 19 (U.P.).—A despondent mother locked herself and three small sons in a closet today and started a fire. All were killed.

Deputy Coroner Paul Sodegren said Mrs. Margaret Warfel, 31, tied the hands of her eldest son, Richard, 7, gathered up Charles, 6, and Robert, 18 months, and locked them in a clothes closet with her.

Sodegren said friends and relatives told him Mrs. Warfel had been depressed and ill.

Chiang Troops Are Reported Fanning Out

Drive Home Major Victory, Race Along Lunghai Railroad

Nanking, Nov. 19 (AP).—Triumphant government divisions today drove home their first big victory in months of civil war, reportedly fanning out 70 miles east and 30 miles north of Suchow.

Gen. Huang Po-tao's Seventh Army Group, whose firm stand on the east flank helped turn the course of a battle that saved Nanking, raced east along the Lunghai railroad. This is China's main east-west line.

Progovernment press dispatches reported his troops had reached Hsinanchen, 70 miles east of Suchow. If true, they are halfway to Lienyunkang, east coast port where three Nationalist divisions were landed in the early stages of the battle.

Government troops also claimed control of 30 miles of the main trunk railway north of Suchow. This is the line from Tientsin and Nanking.

Gen. Chow Chih-pou's rejuvenated air force, which was the decisive factor in turning back the great Communist lunge toward the heart of China, took a rest.

Nanking, relaxed for the first time after months of tension, speculated on what caused such a reversal of form in its air force.

Some sources said Chow was angry because his pilots failed to halt the Reds in north China and Manchuria. He gave them such a tongue-lashing that they really opened up for the first time.

Others believed unconfirmed reports that the American, Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, was offering to revive his "Flying Tigers" may have stung the pilots into greater effort.

"How soon the Communists are able to resume attacks against the Suchow area depends largely on how many casualties and losses of supplies they actually suffered," one observer said.

The government says the Communists lost 130,000 men in killed, wounded and captured and puts its own losses at 40,000.

Move to Oust Hospital Aid Unit Gains

Council Approval Precipitated by HSA Protest to Chest

The Hospital Council of the National Capital Area yesterday announced it had "approved in principle" a move of its members to force abandonment of the Hospital Service Agency.

The public announcement was precipitated, it was said, by an HSA protest this week to the Community Chest Federation that member hospitals were setting up their own admissions standards, and that "some" were refusing to accept HSA-certified patients.

Hospital Service Agency, long known as Health Security Administration, has served area hospitals as a clearing house for semi-indigent patients for the past 13 years. It certifies those eligible for hospital help from Community Chest funds, and collects partial payments from those who can afford to pay something toward hospitalization.

Had Agreed to Keep Quiet

Yesterday's announcement revealed that opposition to HSA has been steadily organizing for several months now, but that those who seek abandonment had agreed among themselves to keep quiet until the end of the current Community Chest fund drive.

Baring the controversy after learning of the HSA protest, Robert P. Bryant, executive secretary of the Hospital Council, declared:

"We regret that the Hospital Service Agency authorities have apparently seen fit to take this action at this time. The Hospital Council has indicated its willing-

London Docks Baby Assured Childhood Fit for Princess

By the United Press

Tiny Elizabeth Thilp became just another mouth to feed when she was born to a $22-dollar-a-week London bus conductor and his wife the same day Britain's new prince arrived. But now she is going to have a childhood fit for a princess, thanks to generous Americans.

Mrs. Thilp, attended only by a midwife, gave birth to Elizabeth in an East End maternity hospital. The baby's clothes were hand-me-downs, her only playroom was to be the drab London docks, and her toys were a woolly pig and a celluloid doll, which her mother bought out of her housekeeping piggy bank.

Americans were touched by the story of the tiny waif and with the speed of a waving magic wand they started providing Elizabeth with everything but a silver spoon in her mouth.

Woodward and Lothrop of Washington is sending a layette complete to the last safety pin. A women's club in Richmond, Va., is packing another huge bundle for the baby. An anonymous Chicago couple promised a baby buggy and a Detroit man offered to supply Elizabeth with all the candy a little girl could possibly want for her first 20 years.

The General Diaper Service of New York arranged to provide Elizabeth with a transatlantic diaper service. James Mont, interior decorator for the plush New York Park Avenue set, promised a complete bedroom equipped with a $1000 crib, two $500 chests of drawers, lamps, glass curtains book shelves, a radio phonograph and plenty of children's records. Mont also will send a blackboard, a desk, and air conditioning unit and a special nursemaid's chair.

Lillian Brogan, owner of an expensive children's store, has air freighted a $50 nightgown and a $25 slip. The Alfred Leon Co., a New York wholesale house, sent four hand embroidered dresses with slips to match, a christening dress and slip, three creepers, bibs, bedding and a stroller.

A huge package of toys including more than 100 playthings is being assembled by the American Toy Guidance Council, and William F. Ellinson, a kind-hearted New Yorker, has made Elizabeth a member of the Gift of the Month Club until she is 10 years old.

The only hurdle left to clear is clearance from the British Embassy so the poor conductor won't have to pay heavy taxes. Legation officials promised to do everything they can.

Stands Trip Well

Austin Flies Here From Paris; In Walter Reed for Treatment

Warren R. Austin, chief United States delegate to the United Nations, arrived here last night by plane from Paris for treatment at Walter Reed Hospital.

His plane landed at National Airport at 8:25 p. m. State Department officials met him and he rode to the hospital in their limousine, although an ambulance had been sent for him.

Austin was attending the U. N. General Assembly in Paris when he suffered a cold which developed complications and a throat condition.

He appeared to be much improved when he landed here. William H. A. Mills, Austin's special assistant, said he was "much better than I thought he was going to be."

Austin shook off the attempts of State Department aides to assist him down the runway, and walked briskly to his car.

"It was a fine trip," he told a reporter. "I feel excellent."

Austin was accompanied by his wife.

President Truman has named Benjamin Cohen to fill Austin's place on the U. N. Security Council for the remainder of the Paris U. N. meeting.

Mrs. Boettiger Says Austin May Resign

New York, Nov. 19 (AP).—Anna Roosevelt Boettiger, daughter of the late President, said today Warren Austin may resign as chief American delegate to the United Nations because of ill health.

She spoke over the American Broadcasting Co. program, "Eleanor and Anna Roosevelt," which features her mother and herself.

Mrs. Roosevelt, however, made no mention of Austin in her part of the program, which originated in Paris.

Removal by Tuesday Demanded

Hospital Flower-Vending Box Brings Ultimatum of Florists

The Northern Virginia Florists Association yesterday threw a brickbat instead of a posy at Arlington Hospital.

The association has given the hospital until Tuesday to remove a flower-vending box from its lobby—or else.

To add to the Virginia association's ire, the refrigerated box was installed and is kept filled with blooms by an enterprising florist, W. V. Steddom, who happens to come from Washington.

Association Vice President Paul C. Sprinkel views the enterprise dimly. The flower box violates Arlington Hospital's nonprofit charter, which "says nothing about selling flowers, hot dogs, wheelbarrows, tractors, or anything else," Sprinkel says.

Furthermore, he feels, the box provides "unfair competition" to Northern Virginia florists, because the hospital provides services of one of its employes to sell the posies and gives electricity free.

And if that box isn't out of the lobby by Tuesday, Springel declared yesterday, the association will "take legal action" to get it out. He said his group represented 99 per cent of the area's florists.

Washington Florist Steddom, who also operates similar flower boxes in Alexandria and Garfield Hospitals, was inclined to be optimistic about the whole thing.

He said he makes about $200 worth of gross sales on the Arlington box each month, out of which the hospital gets 20 per cent. He feels his brothers across the river are irate "because we got the idea first."

Sprinkel said the hospital had given his association the "runaround" on the matter, although he had discussed it with hospital officials "for four months."

He admitted Arlington Hospital Administrator John Anderson had offered to let the association run the box, but declared that the cut of the profits per member florist "wouldn't bring in a dime apiece."

Queuille Demands Vote of Confidence

Spaak Resigns

Cabinet Quits In Belgium After Dispute

Brussels, Belgium, Nov. 19 (U.P.).—Premier Paul-Henri Spaak and his 20-month-old coalition cabinet resigned today.

Spaak, who also held the post of foreign minister, was asked by Prince Regent Charles to form a new government, but it was understood that he declined. A high government source said Spaak wished to devote all his time to foreign affairs.

The resigning cabinet, which will remain in office until a new government takes over, was composed of Catholics and Socialists. It resigned because of an inter-cabinet dispute over Justice Minister Paul Struye's alleged leniency toward convicted Nazi collaborators.

Spaak's reported refusal to form a new government might lead to the dissolution of Parliament and new general elections, because his coalition is the only one which has been strong enough to muster the necessary majority in Parliament.

Spaak said, however, that, "crisis or no crisis," he will return to Paris Monday to resume his post as chairman of the important Political Committee of the United Nations General Assembly.

The cabinet row centered around two collaborators who were sentenced to death for sending from 40 to 50 of their fellow Belgians to concentration camps, where many of them died.

Struye commuted the death sentences of these two men, Francois Bouveroulle and Andre Surin, to life imprisonment. He said he granted the commutations to avert a "blood bath," but his action drew strong attacks from Socialist, Liberal and Communist factions.

Paris, Nov. 19 (U.P.).—Premier Henri Queuille demanded in a near-riotous parliamentary session tonight that the National Assembly give him a confidence vote or oust his government for its crackdown on Communist-led strikers.

While Communists and anti-Communists angrily debated the use of security forces to crush strikes and, at one point, scuffled in the aisles, government troops and tanks faced 1500 dock strikers barricaded behind barrels at the port gates of Dunkerque.

There was no clash at Dunkerque, although steel-helmeted troops in half-tracks rushed at the gates, then stopped some 20 yards away and returned to their positions in front of the city hall, about 300 yards away. The feint did not scare off the miners, some of whom were armed with crowbars.

Condemns Communists

Queuille, winding up three days of debate on his policies, condemned the Communists for "your acts of sabotage and terrorism to prevent workers from reaching their jobs."

The vote of confidence will be taken Tuesday. There was every indication Queuille would receive a majority.

"I do not want merely an anti-Communist majority," he said. "I want a majority for action. There is no disagreement among my ministers. We are determined to get a budget passed by January 1. We have a program providing for tax reforms, a stepped-up program for forcing down prices and stabilizing the franc, but we also are determined to resist massive action of the Communist Party."

Financially "Comfortable"

Queuille said that financially France was "conmfortable until next January."

Jacques Duclos, secretary-general of the Communist Party, denied the Cominform was financing the mine and dock strikes in France. He called Socialist Interior Minister Jules Moch a "liar" and an "assassin."

Rulers of Egypt, Iran Divorce Wives Who Failed to Bear Sons

Cairo, Nov. 19 (AP).—The reigning Queens of Egypt and Iran who bore no sons to inherit the thrones have been divorced by their royal husbands.

The royal palace said today King Farouk, Egypt's 28-year-old monarch, signed the decree two days ago which divorced him from Farida, the beautiful queen who bore him three daughters.

Simultaneously it was announced that King Farouk's sister, Princess Fawzia, one of the world's most beautiful women, has been divorced by the Shah of Iran. They have a daughter.

Under the laws of both countries only a male heir can ascend to the throne.

Observers generally agree that the suddenly announced dissolutions were due to personal, not international, reasons.

The communiques issued in both countries emphasized that Princess Fawzia's divorce "cannot by any means affect the existing friendly relations between Egypt and Iran."

Farouk was married in January, 1938, before he became King. His then 17-year-old bride, Safi Naz Zulfikar, is the granddaughter of Mohammed Pasha Said, former Prime Minister of Egypt.

The communique announcing the divorce said:

"God's will ordered that the sacred relation between the noble couple be broken. This will directed the hearts of King Farouk and Queen Farida to a desire for divorce while both felt regret.

"In fulfillment of this desire, King Farouk signed the divorce on November 17, 1948.

"The royal cabinet while making this announcement pray to God to prepare for King Farouk what will make the country happy."

An official announcement in Tehran said the Persian climate endangered the health of Empress

Fawzia, bride of Shah Reza Pahlevi of Iran, and that thus it was agreed the Egyptian King's sister be divorced. She returned to Egypt 2½ years ago, leaving her daughter Chahinaz, in Tehran.

Divorce is an easier matter in Egypt and Iran than in Western countries but not nearly so common. Moslem husbands can divorce their wives for practically any reason. A male can obtain a separation merely for the asking. Only the individuals and Moslem priests are directly concerned but the governments require that marriages and divorces be recorded.

Under the law polygamy is still permitted but it is not largely practiced in either country, officials say.

It is not usual for wives to divorce husbands.

Mrs. Kasenkina, Who Jumped From Consulate, to Stay Here

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

PRELIMINARY STEPS—Mrs. Oksana S. Kasenkina (center), the Russian school teacher who leaped from a third-floor window to escape the Soviet Consulate in New York, takes a few practice steps prior to leaving Roosevelt Hospital yesterday. Helping the 53-year-old "Mrs. K" are Dr. Eugene Watkins (left) and Virginia Muldoon of the hospital staff. Nurse Marion Daly is behind "Mrs. K." The school teacher broke her leg and suffered other injuries in the jump

New York, Nov. 19 (AP).—Mrs. Oksana, Kasenkina said today she would never return to Russia. She said she was casting her lot "forever" with America.

The 53-year-old Russian school teacher, who leaped from a Soviet Consulate window to international fame 99 days ago, spoke to reporters before leaving Roosevelt Hospital, where she has been recovering from multiple injuries.

She told them, at a closely guarded news conference, she felt "very, very good" and never would consider returning to her homeland.

"I have every intention of staying forever in the United States, Mrs. Kasenkina said. "The throngs outside the consulate at the time I committed my act and the expressions of multitudes of Americans since I jumped have been very encouraging."

Here were some of the reasons she gave for her decision:

"American police are different from the Soviet police. American police protect you; Soviet police destroy human life."

Communism is not working in Russia and "the proof of that is the many, many persons escaping from Russia by the hundreds."

"The freedom of speech and press, and the complete freedom of the individual" which she enjoys in this country.

The opportunity "to serve the Russian people by explaining to Americans the hardships the Russian people suffer under Soviet dictatorship."

The conference was guarded by two police officer, 10 patrolmen and 10 detectives who carefully checked credentials of all the 100 reporters and photographers present.

Mrs. Kasenkina was brought into the room in a wheel chair but stood briefly for pictures, with the help of a cane.

Her attorney said she would live with friends at an undisclosed retreat.

She said she planned to rest and recover more fully, then try to obtain work as a teacher after completing a book. She said she had received many proposals to teach the Russian language but wanted to improve her English first.

Mrs. Kasenkina also declared she would be "proud if I could become an American citizen."

Before leaving the hospital, Mrs. Kasenkina gave a party in her room for persons who had befriended her in the hospital. She indicated she has developed a taste for American delicacies. The chief refreshment was strawberry shortcake.

Mrs. Kasenkina left the hospital at 5:50 p. m. (EST) for an undisclosed destination. It was reported—but not confirmed—that detectives who have been with Mrs. Kasenkina since she entered the hospital accompanied her.

CAB Sets Hearings For National Airlines

The Civil Aeronautics Board yesterday announced its hearing schedule in the board's inquiry to determine if National Airlines should be divested of its flying routes.

The investigation, which is without precedent, followed a long period of operating loss reports by National, and a continuing strike by National pilots.

CAB said it will hold a prehearing conference here November 29, to give interested parties an opportunity to outline their proprosed testimony and evidence. It called for a filing of exhibits by January 3, a public hearing to take testimony on January 17, the filing of briefs by February 21, and final oral argument February 28.

Red Gunfire Is Ignored By UNESCO

Beirut, Lebanon, Nov. 19 (AP).—Communist demonstrators failed today to disrupt by pistol-fire the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization holding its third world conference in Beirut.

About 40 young Lebanese Communists fired on police outside the building. The UNESCO meeting continued despite the disturbance, and no one was hurt by the flying bullets.

The police did not return the fire, but drove the demonstrators away. Ten persons, including one woman were arrested. The others were dispersed into nearby hills and police went in search of them.

Police said the demonstrators were protesting against the arrest of 300 of their number now imprisoned in the ancient city of Baalbeck.

The Communist Party has been banned in Lebanon. Communists are few but well-organized. They have departed from the Moscow line and have been attacking Zionism.

While the disturbance was going on Julian Huxley, British scientist and secretary-general of UNESCO told the world gathering Soviet attacks against "bourgeois genetics" had resulted in dismissal of some leading biologists in Russia, "and the straight-jacketing and distorting of one of the most important branches of science."

This, Huxley added, "has brought home to me how far the world is from ideals of freedom of research, thought and expression enshrined in the UNESCO constitution."

George V. Allen, United States Assistant Secretary of State, said the word democracy "has been perverted during recent years by totalitarian movements which in their police-imposed dictatorships are the entithesis of democracy. But we do not intend to abandon the word merely because others may seek the advantage of its high connotation while destroying it in practice."

Bulletins on Elizabeth And Baby Discontinued

London, Nov. 19 (U.P.).—Buckingham Palace issued its final official bulletin today on the condition of Princess Elizabeth and her newly-born prince.

"Her Royal Highness Princess Elizabeth and her son are maintaining steady and satisfactory progress," the announcement said. "The daily bulletin will therefore be discontinued."

Bunche Sees Israel Willing to Obey Order

Paris, Nov. 19 (AP).—Dr. Ralph Bunche, acting United Nations mediator, said today he felt Israel had shown willingness in principle to follow his order for a withdrawal from the Negev desert of southern Palestine.

Haifa dispatches said Brig. Gen. William E. Riley, chief of the truce staff, already was putting into effect plans for supervising the setting up of provisional boundary lines in the Negev. He will meet two Israeli liaison officers in Tel Aviv Saturday and a few hours later talk over details of troop movements with the Egyptian commander in chief in Gaza.

Israel's reply to the order, received today, indicated she intended to keep her settlement garrisons and mobile forces in the Negev which were already there before October 14, when she launched the offensive that captured most of the area from the Egyptians. She also objected that withdrawal from Beersheba would invite a constant menace.

But she said she already had withdrawn other forces which were sent into the Negev after October 14, offered to negotiate with U. N. observers on a possible withdrawal from the southern coastal area between Gaza and Deir Suneida, below Majdal, and reserved the right to protest the proposed setting up of U. N.-policed demilitarized zones.

Israel said she welcomed the U. N. resolution proposing negotiations to turn the truce into an armistice. Israel "notes with satisfaction that the Security Council is not demanding the withdrawal from the Negev of any of the forces maintained there before October 14 to safeguard the security and independence of Israel and protect the inhabitants."

Bunche said that overall, Israel's reply was "encouraging."

Egypt already has named a representative to meet with General Riley, he added. No Arab country, however, has answered the call for negotiation of an armistice.

Dr. Philip C. Jessup was ready to make a preliminary United States statement on Palestine policy before the Assembly Saturday. The American statement is expected to push the lagging discussion on an ultimate Palestine settlement in the Political Committee.

U. S. Arrests Ala. Sheriffs In Rights Case

Mobile, Ala., Nov. 19 (AP).—Clarke County Sheriff Jenkins Angus Hill and one of his deputies were arrested by Federal officers today on charges of violating civil rights of Negroes.

They were indicted by a Federal grand jury this week on charges of depriving nine Negroes of rights and privileges guaranteed them by the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution.

Arrested with Hill was Deputy Willie Ray Harrell. Both are 35 years old.

Arraigned before United States Commissioner Alex T. Howard, they were released under $5000 bond each. United States Attorney Percy Fourtain said their trial probably would be set for January.

The indictments alleged that the officers, acting under "color of their office," had committed "illegal assault, beatings, whippings and other cruel maltreatment and physical abuse for the purpose of imposing illegal punishment."

Negroes; whose civil rights were alleged to have been violated were listed as George Dickinson, Robert Gordon, Ed Finsh, Mose Nicholson, Leo Williams, John Allen, jr., Johnnie J. Mitchell, Mattie Lee Poe and Edward Lloyd Buck.

U. N. Advances Arab Aid Fund

Paris, Nov. 19 (AP).—The United Nations Assembly advanced five million dollars tonight for relief of Arab refugees in Palestine and called upon nations of the world to contribute 32 million dollars for the work.

The Assembly action came as delegates anxiously awaited a statement from the United States on its Palestine position. Such a statement may be forthcoming Saturday in the 58-nation Political Committee.

The five million dollars for Arab relief voted by the Assembly is to be advanced from U. N. working capital. It is to be repaid from the 32 million dollars it asked member and nonmember nations to contribute for the aid of some 500,000 Arab refugees.

The 32-million-dollar fund would provide $29,500,000 for relief supplies for the nine months ending August 31, 1949, and $2,500,000 for administrative expenses.

The Assembly asked Secretary General Trygve Lie to appoint a U. N. director for Palestine refugee relief.

U. S. Urged to Boost Forces in Germany

Berlin, Nov. 19 (U.P.).—A congressional expert on military affairs declared today that the United States should send more troops and planes to Germany to meet the threat of Russian or German Communist attack.

Representative Paul Shafer (R., Mich.) told an interviewer he thought Soviet officials are bluffing in their present "war of nerves." He said he was sure Russia does not want a shooting war any time soon.

However, he added, "Sometime, somewhere Russia is going to force a showdown, and it might be here in Berlin. We should have more forces in Europe to meet this Communist aggression."

Shafer said that the United States occupation force now in Germany is "too small," but added that it is better equipped than most people realize.

Discounts Showdown

Representative Dewey Short (R., Mo.) agreed with Shafer on most points but said, "I don't think there will ever be a showdown" if America maintains strong forces in Germany.

Short is chairman and Shafer is a member of the six-man subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee now studying the military situation in blockaded Berlin.

Shafer said the Anglo-American airlift supply route to Berlin had done more to discredit Russian policies in the eyes of the world than any other single anti-Communist step.

As the two men spoke, planes of the airlift could be heard droning into Berlin on schedules reduced by renewed bad weather.

Low fog blanketed the new Tegel airport in the French sector and permitted only limited flights into the British sector's Gatow airport, and Tempelhof airdrome in the United States sector.

Russian officials today warned that Soviet planes would engage in maneuvers today from all airfields in the Russian zone. But American officials said the scheduled flights were "normal" and not necessarily aimed at hampering the airlift.

Shafer said he firmly favored universal military training in the United States as long as the Russians or the Communists threaten world peace.

Red Tape Cut

Most Export Bars Lifted In Bizonia

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 19 (AP).—German businessmen were given almost complete freedom to export from the United States and British zones by a British-American decision today.

An order cutting red tape, effective December 1, was released by the Joint Export-Import Agency of the British and American zones.

It was another important step to put Germany back on its feet economically. It followed the announced plan of Britain and the United States to return important Rhur industries to German trustees in the near future.

In a broad revision of export procedures, Germans in the two zones must still comply with certain rules.

For a limited list of goods, an exporter must still obtain permission from the agents or from a German authority to sell abroad.

Foreign exchange earned from exports will go into a common pool to help finance bizonal purchases abroad.

The Joint Export-Import Agency still will issue licenses for such commodities as fertilizers, timber, foodstuffs and pig iron.

German authorities can approve the sale abroad of certain other items in short supply. These include oils and fats, raw rubber, bauxite and industrial diamonds.

15 More Nazis Hanged for War Crimes

Munich, Nov. 19 (AP).—Fifteen German war criminals were hanged today on the twin gallows in Landsberg prison where Adolf Hitler wrote "Mein Kampf."

The executions brought to 73 the number hanged in the last six weeks for the wartime killing of concentration camp inmates and captured American soldiers.

Sixth-six more Germans convicted by United States war crimes courts remain under death sentence in the prison.

It was disclosed that Dr. Theophil Worm, evangelical bishop of Wuerttemberg, had asked President Truman to stop the executions which have been carried out in the prison every Friday since October 15. Bishop Worm is one of several German clergymen who have publicly questioned the fairness of the trials.

Four of those executed today were condemned for lynching captured American fliers. They were SS (Elite Guard) Sergt. Wilheim Karcher, SA (Brownshirt) Sergt. Johann Schneider, and two local Nazi officials, Isidor Klumpp and Adolf Eiermann.

Two others, Hans Wolf and Quirin Flaucher, were concentration camp prisoners convicted of helping beat fellow inmates to death.

The remaining nine were SS troops or officers at the Mauthausen and Buchenwald concentration camps. One of them, SS Pvt. Gustav Petrat, was convicted of beating women prisoners at Mauthausen with an iron bar, of killing seven insane men in the same manner and of killing two other men by setting dogs on them, the Army statement said.

SS Sergt. Adam Ankenbrand, was convicted of shooting five starving prisoners who walked off the road to eat grass.

Davis Pops Up For U. N. Plea; Is Popped Out

Paris, Nov. 19 (AP).—Garry Davis, self-styled citizen of the world, popped up in the crowded United Nations Assembly hall today shouting for a one-world organization.

He was removed promptly from the room by police officers.

Davis, a 26-year-old United States Air Force veteran of World War II and son of Orchestra Leader Meyer Davis, appeared on a side balcony and shouted to surprised delegates and spectators:

"Pass the world to the people—one world!"

Hurried Through Exit

He was hurried through a side exit, still struggling with plainclothesmen and French gendarmes.

He was held for more than four hours and then released.

As Davis disappeared, another "one-worlder" appeared on the opposite balcony. He delivered Davis' 100-word prepared speech in French. A dozen or so of his supporters kept police from him until he had finished.

He was identified as Robert Sarrazac-Soulage, a 35-year-old wartime colonel in the French resistance movement.

While the uproar was on, photographers and newsmen milled about. Delegates from 58 nations stood and stared. The balcony spectators whistled and cheered.

"We, the people, want the peace which only a world government can give." Sarrazac-Soulage said. "The sovereign states you represent divide us and lead us to the abyss of total war."

On the main floor, U. N. President Herbert V. Evatt of Australia assured the delegates "the interruption is purely coincidental."

Davis renounced his American citizenship last May.

Just before the U. N. meeting began in September, he camped on U. N. territory outside the Assembly hall to publicize his cause.

He was removed by French authorities and told he could remain on French soil for three months. He says he has until December 21 to leave.

committee approved the preamble of a proposal to extend the life of the "Little Asembly" created last year. Russia has boycotted the Little Assembly.

3. Juan Atilio Bramuglia, Argentine Foreign Minister, said a way toward a peaceful settlement of the Berlin deadlock may be provided in the answers of the four big powers to his questionnaire on Berlin currency. None of the four powers has answered the questionnaire thus far.

The Russian disarmament proposal was introduced by Vishinsky in his first speech to the Assembly September 25. It was defeated in the Political Committee November 13 by a 35 to 6 vote.

The Assembly voted on it tonight by paragraphs, with the 39 to 6 count coming when it was put up as a whole resolution. The Assembly voted 36 to 6 against the paragraph recommending a one-third reduction during the year of the present land, naval and air forces of the United States, Britain, Russia, France and China. The paragraph calling for prohibition of atomic weapons was beaten down 37 to 6.

Russians Raid, Strip Rail Shop In U. S. Sector

Berlin, Nov. 19 (NYHT).—A Russian raiding party, taking advantage of the German religious holiday Wednesday, gained brief possession of an elevated railway workshop in the American sector of Berlin and stripped it of its equipment, it was learned today.

According to official reports, 20 men from the Russian sector invaded the shop. Telephones were immediately seized, preventing the west-sector employes from calling for help.

All this was done under a strict aura of legality and represents a good example of the dual law that now exists in Berlin. The Russians contend that the elevated railway system, although it runs through all Berlin, is actually under Soviet control. By their own lights, therefore, they were only claiming their own equipment.

The Western powers contend that the permanent installations belong to the sector in which they are situated. The Russian action, in this view, is plainly improper.

The elevated railway is one of the key subjects of the East-West struggle in Berlin. Because the Russians have the electric power to run it, they can cut it off from the western sectors, and probably would have done so long ago except that some trackage essential to their own sector runs through the American sector.

Mark Control Gives Russia Credit in U. S.

Frankfurt, Nov. 19 (NYHT).—Military government exchange control of the deutschemark in western Germany allows Russia secretly to transfer an estimated 10 million dollars in credit yearly to the United States, it was learned here today from Allied banking circles. These credits do not pass through regular channels where such transactions would be spotted.

Furthermore, the valuation of 30 cents per deutschemark for the foreign trade results in an estimated "hard money" loss to western Germany of 25 million dollars to 60 million dollars, the same sources reported. Much of this deficit must be met by American taxpayers, now supporting the western German economy with dollar imports of food and raw materials.

This situation was the subject of pointed but indirect criticism by the British military governor, Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, in a Frankfurt press conference.

"The position on the frontiers is very unsatisfactory in this respect," General Robertson stated. "A good deal of nonsense is going on and western Germany is losing money in consequence."

He was referring apparently to the illegal two-way movement of Deutschemarks between Germany and the Swiss and American money markets. This trade has become so well organized and widespread that American bankers here have been warned by their home offices that even neighborhood shops in the Yorkville section of New York are acting as agents.

The Russians are known to be engaging in an underground transfor of money so as to obtain dollar credits in America.

Both eastern and western zone marks reach the Swiss and American markets where they are converted. Credits thus obtained can then be passed on to Communist agents through secret channels. Purchasers of these German currencies mail them back to friends or relatives here and the Swiss or American agent pockets his commission in dollars.

GOP Moving Slowly on Ohio Recount

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 19 (AP).—Ohio Republicans, although beaten in the November elections, did not jump today at the chance for a recount in Ohio.

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson demanded that Secretary of State Edward J. Hummel impound all ballots and order an immediate recount of "questionable contests."

Hummel, defeated Republican candidate for reelection and the State's chief election official, said he had "no comment at this time."

Late this afternoon, Gov. Thomas J. Herbert and leaders of the outgoing, Republican-dominated Legislature failed to reach a decision on whether a special session was necessary.

Numerous tabulation errors—including one that unofficially credited Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York with 10,518 less votes than he received officially in one county—have been cited.

Duplicate ballots from the unofficial county total reduced President Truman's Ohio majority to 6817 votes.

2500-Gallon Fairfax Still, 2 Men Seized

A 2500-gallon still and two men were seized by Fairfax County police yesterday in a raid on a lonely spot off Sandy Run rd. between Fairfax and Lorton, Va.

Eight policemen surrounded the place about 4 p. m. They found the still in full operation. They said the two men were chopping wood to feed the fire under the still. A Virginia State ABC inspector summoned from Richmond said later the still was the biggest he ever had seen.

The men found at the still gave their names as Robert Coles, 38, of 915 N. Columbus st., Alexandria, and John D. Gayles, 30, of 4 E. Braddock rd., Alexandria. They said they were hired as laborers at $12 a night each to keep the still fire going.

Fairfax Detective Lieut. Grafton L. Wells said he received a tip earlier yesterday that a still was being operated at that point. He had the place put under surveillance, and shortly afterward was informed some men were heard chopping wood.

Wells organized an eight-man raiding party. They sped to a point near the spot and split into two sections. Wells commanded one section, and Detective Sergt. Cecil E. Brown the other. They deployed and approached the place from opposite directions, but with every angle of escape covered.

As they entered the clearing where the still was set up, the two men nearby dropped their axes, but made no effort to escape. The men readily admitted they were working at the still, Wells said, but were unable to give much of a description of the man they said had hired them. They said the man was expected back later with containers, into which liquor was to be run off preparatory to bootlegging it.

Atomic Field Bars To Industry Cited

Embryo Chemist Begins With Bang

LARRY ROSE,
13, of Pittsburgh, ruefully surveys his tattered and torn pants after his homemade rocket exploded. Larry, who wants to be a chemist, suffered only slight burns from the blast, which blew off a cellar door and shattered windows

Boston, Nov. 19 (Spl.).—At least 10 years must elapse before private industry can put atomic energy to work, David Lilienthal, Atomic Energy Commission chairman, said today.

Speaking before the Twenty-fourth New England Conference, Lilienthal told 1000 businessmen that excessive requirements for capital would be only one obstacle. More important, he said, would be the dangers inherent in producing atomic energy for fuel.

This process, he pointed out, produces not only useful energy for industrial purposes but many by-products, of which atomic bomb material is one. Without effective international controls, he said, such production cannot be left in private hands.

He pointed out that TNT, a powerful explosive, was produced privately but added:

"In the past 50 years, by intensive development, the explosive effect of TNT was doubled. Overnight, the nuclear reaction multiplied the power of the most effective TNT not by 2 times or 10 times but by many millions of times . . .

"The kind of safety measures required cannot therefore be left to individuals to determine on the basis of what they consider is economically justified; nor left to the kind of risks particular individuals are prepared to take. The safety of the whole public in the surrounding area must be the determining factor."

Virtually an Arsenal

The same basic ingredients, Lilienthal said, are used in the production of many useful and humane services and of the vastly destructive bomb. Therefore, he declared, "an atomic furnace or an atomic powerplant is virtually an atomic bomb arsenal."

"The clandestine diversion of even small amounts of fissionable ingredients becomes a very serious matter," he said. "That there is need for closest accountability and elaborate protection against sabotage, seizure or theft is clear."

At present, Lilienthal pointed out, there is no international control of atomic fission or its products. For that reason, he continued, vital parts of the entire business of atomic energy production must be shielded by secrecy and secrecy must be protected by the Government.

Controls Necessary

Lilienthal conceded that advantages would derive from opening the atomic field to business competition, with its intensified search for new uses and new methods. But for the present, he said, what is already known must remain a military secret and full release of controls may never be possible.

"But just because the usual formula cannot be applied, the commission does not believe that it cannot be so modified and adapted as to secure many of its proven benefits to the country and to industry.

"Furthermore, areas will appear from time to time that can be separated off and left to the usual forces of the competitive system. But this process—the gradual denationalization of the atom—must be on a case-by-case basis."

Three Open Fields

Three areas already has appeared, Lilienthal said, in which it seems private business can operate substantially as usual. These are:

1. Mining, milling and processing uranium ores into high-grade concentrates.

2. Preparation of radioactive tracer compounds and their use in private laboratories and in process control.

3. Manufacture and maintenance of radiation detection instruments.

The commission, Lilienthal said, is now conducting research in development of reactors for production of power useful in industry, but cost alone makes this a Government job. He said:

"No one firm is equipped with sufficient men, money or knowledge to take on responsibility for this work. But industry will send men to the establishments . . . to keep up with developments.

"The cost of reactor runs to something like 50 million dollars. The prospect of a return is remote in time, and the money risk is great. No private capital in these amounts is forthcoming or is likely to be forthcoming in the next decade even if security considerations made is possible to turn such development over to private hands."

Steel Quotas To Continue

fice of Industry Cooperation said this did not mean that the Government would not later ask further allocations of steel for housing. There is, however, a difference of opinion in Government circles on the question.

Here are the five programs approved by the steelmakers' committee for continuation until September 1, 1949, if the law expires, or October 1, 1949, if it is renewed:

1. Construction and repair of oil tankers, 40,380 tons of steel production monthly—the present rate.

2. Construction and repair of merchant vessels — passenger and cargo craft—15,190 tons a month. This is an increase of 5000 tons above the present program.

3. Construction and repair of inland waterway barges, 25,000 tons a month—an increase of 5000 tons. The committee turned down this increase last month.

4. Repair and construction of freight cars, up to 250,000 tons of steel a month to meet the present 10,000-car monthly production goal. Col. J. Monroe Johnson, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, addressed the committee yesterday, urging an increase of steel to turn out 14,000 freight cars monthly. The Government, however, did not back his request.

5. Oil field tank and production equipment, 16,530 tons monthly—the present rate.

The committee also approved a new program to make 26,000 tons of steel available monthly for manufacture of mining machinery. It is effective February 1. The steelmakers also agreed that the quantity of steel in this program might be increased pending further study of the mining machinery industry supply situation.

Also approved was a plan—not yet completed—to set aside an unspecified amount of steel for ore car transportation of strategic materials overseas. Details were withheld on military security grounds.

The committee also recommended that a program be prepared to provide steel sheets for construction of grain storage bins. They acted after hearing Undersecretary of Agriculture A. J. Loveland outline the need for additional storage.

OIC Director Earl Clark, who presided, also was asked by the steelmakers to prepare a program to provide steel for terminal and bulk oil tank storage. They expressed willingness to go along with present tentative plans in this field.

The steel committee also indicated it would underwrite the steel requirements for the proposed East Tennessee Natural Gas Pipeline. But the proposed program was referred back to OIC for further study to determine whether the project should cover both military and civilian needs.

Interior Secretary Krug asked the steel executives to give special consideration to providing more steel for linepipe and other essentials of the petroleum industry such as drills and bitts. They promised cooperation and said they would assign specialists to study the matter.

Representatives of the Atomic Energy Commission, Department of Justice and various defense agencies attended the sessions. Last month, the steel industry approved continuation of voluntary allocations of steel until next fall to strictly military plans under the AEC anad Office of Defense.

Bordentown, N. J., Nov. 19 (U.P.). Traffic screeched to a halt on a New Jersey highway today when a shower of $10 bills poured from a speeding automobile.

'Ike' Tells How King George Kept Churchill Off Ship

with rank as this one. The purpose was to assure that any doubtful points would be ironed out and corrected.

This meeting gave us an opportunity to hear a word from both the King and the Prime Minister. The latter made one of his typical fighting speeches, in the course of which he used an expression that struck many of us, particularly the Americans, with peculiar force. He said, "Gentlemen, I am hardening toward this enterprise," meaning to us that, though he had long doubted its feasibility and had previously advocated its further postponement in favor of operations elsewhere, he had finally, at this late date, come to believe with the rest of us that this was the true course of action in order to achieve the victory.

By the time the operational staffs had moved to Portsmouth, I felt that the only remaining great decision to be faced before D-Day was that of fixing, definitely, the day and hour of the assault. However, the old question of the wisdom of the airborne operation into the Cherbourg Peninsula was not fully settled in Air Chief Marshall Leigh-Mallory's mind.

'Futile Slaughter' Feared in Operation

On May 30 he came to me to protest once more against what he termed the "futile slaughter" of two fine divisions. He believed that the combination of unsuitable landing grounds and anticipated resistance was too great a hazard to overcome. He estimated that among the American outfits we would suffer some 70 per cent losses in glider strength and at least 50 per cent in paratroop strength before the airborne troops could land. Consequently the divisions would have no remaining tactical power and the attack would not only result in the sacrifice of many thousand men but would be helpless to effect the outcome of the general assault.

Leigh-Mallory was, of course, earnestly sincere. He was noted for personal courage and was merely giving me, as was his duty, his frank convictions.

It would be difficult to conceive of a more soul-racking problem. If my technical expert was correct, then the planned operation was worse than stubborn folly because even at the enormous cost predicted we could not gain the principal object of the drop. Moreover, if he was right, it appeared that the attack on Utah Beach was probably hopeless and this meant that the whole operation suddenly acquired a degree of risk, even foolhardiness, that presaged a gigantic failure, possibly Allied defeat in Europe.

I went to my tent alone and sat down to think. Over and over I reviewed each step, somewhat in the sequence set down here, but more thoroughly and exhaustively. I realized, of course, that if I deliberately disregarded the advice of my technical expert on the subject, and his predictions should prove accurate, then I would carry to my grave the unbearable burden of a conscience justly accusing me of the stupid, blind sacrifice of thousands of the flower of our youth. Outweighing any personal burden, however, was the possibility that if he were right the effect of the disaster would be far more than local: it would be likely to spread to the entire force.

Experience Did Not Support Estimate

Leigh-Mallory's estimate was just an estimate, nothing more, and our experience in Sicily and Italy did not, by any means, support his degree of pessimism. Bradley, with Ridgeway and other airborne commanders, had always supported me and the staff in the matter, and I was encouraged to persist in the belief that Leigh-Mallory was wrong!

I telephoned him that the attack would go as planned and that I would confirm this at once in writing. When, later, the attack was successful he was the first to call me to voice his delight and to express his regret that he had found it necessary to add to my personal burdens during the final tense days before D-day.

There was, of course, much to do aside from merely waiting to make the final decision concerning the timing of the attack. We had visits from many important officials. One of our final visitors was General de Gaulle, with whom some disagreement developed, involving the actual timing and nature of pronouncements to be made to the French population immediately upon landing.

General de Gaulle wanted to be clearly and definitely recognized by both the Allied governments as the ruler of France. He insisted that he alone had the right to give orders to the French population in directing the necessary cooperation with the Allied forces.

President Roosevelt was flatly opposed to giving General de Gaulle this specific and particular type of recognition. The President then, as always, made a great point of his insistence that sovereignty in France resided in the people, that the Allies were not entering France in order to force upon the population a partciular government or a particular ruler.

Argument Called Academic by Staff

The staff thought the argument was, in a sense, academic. It was considered that, in the initial stages of the operation at least, De Gaulle would represent the only authority that could produce any kind of French co-ordination and unification and that no harm would result from giving him the kind of recognition he sought.

He would merely be placed on notice that once the country was liberated the freely expressed will of the French people would determine their own government and leader. We had already, with the consent of our governments, accepted De Gaulle's representative, General Koenig, as the commander of the French Forces of the Interior, who was serving as a direct subordinate of mine in the Allied organization.

We particularly desired De Gaulle to participate with me in broadcasting on D-Day to the French people so that the population, avoiding uprisings and useless sacrifice at non-critical points, would still be instantly ready to help us where help was needed. We worked hard, within the limits of our instructions, to win De Gaulle to our point of view, but although after the campaign was started he cooperated with us effectively, he did not meet our requests at the moment.

The final conference for determining the feasibility of attacking on the tentatively selected day, June 5, was scheduled for 4:00 a. m. on June 4. However, some of the attacking contingents had already been ordered to sea, because if the entire force was to land on June 5, then some of the important elements stationed in northern paris of the United Kingdom could not wait for final decision on the morning of June 4.

When the commanders assembled on the morning of June 4 the report we received was discouraging. Low clouds, high winds, and formidable wave action were predicted to make landing a most hazardous affair. The meteorologists said that air support would be impossible, naval gunfire would be inefficient, and even the handling of small boats would be rendered difficult.

Attack Postponed After Full Study

Weighing all factors, I decided the attack would have to be postponed. This decision necessitated the immediate dispatch of orders to the vessels and troops already at sea and created some doubt as to whether they could be ready 24 hours later in case the next day should prove favorable for the assault.

The conference on the evening of June 4 presented little, if any, added brightness to the picture of the morning, and tension mounted even higher because the inescapable consequences of postponement were almost too bitter to contemplate.

THE PLAN OF ATTACK—Map shows the long-range plan of assaulting fortress Europe, which General Eisenhower decided was to begin June 6, 1944. Black arrows indicate routes of advance

At 3:30 the next morning our little camp was shaking and shuddering under a wind of almost hurricane proportions and the accompanying rain seemed to be traveling in horizontal streaks. The mile-long trip through muddy roads to the naval headquarters was anything but a cheerful one, since it seemed impossible that in such conditions there was any reason for even discussing the situation.

When the conference started the first report given us by Group Captain Stagg and the meteorologic staff was that the bad conditions predicted the day before for the coast of France were actually prevailing there and that if we had persisted in the attempt to land on June 5 a major disaster would almost surely have resulted.

This they probably told us to inspire more confidence in their next astonishing declaration, which was that by the following morning a period of relatively good weather, heretofore completely unexpected, would ensue, lasting probably 36 hours.

Risk of Landing Insufficient Troops

The prospect was not bright because of the possibility that we might land the first several waves successfully and then find later build-up impracticable, and so have to leave the isolated original attacking forces easy prey to German counteraction. However, the consequences of the delay justified great risk and I quickly announced the decision to go ahead with the attack on June 6.

The time was then 4:15 a. m., June 5. No one present disagreed and there was a definite brightening of faces as, without further word, each went off to his respective post of duty to flash out to his command the messages that would set the whole host in motion.

A number of people appealed to me for permission to go aboard the supporting naval ships in order to witness the attack. Among those who were refused permission was the Prime Minister. His request was undoubtedly inspired as much by his natural instincts as a warrior as by his impatience at the prospect of sitting quietly back in London to await reports. I argued, however, that the chance of his becoming an accidental casualty was too important from the standpoint of the whole war effort and I refused his request.

He replied, with complete accuracy, that while I was in sole command of the operation by virtue of authority delegated to me by both governments, such authority did not include administrative control over the British organization.

Sly Churchill Logic Defeated by King

He said, "Since this is true it is not part of your responsibility, my dear general, to determine the exact composition of any ship's company in His Majesty's fleet. This being true," he rather slyly continued, "by shipping myself as a bona fide member of a ship's complement it would be beyond your authority to prevent my going."

All of this I had ruefully to concede, but I forcefully pointed out that he was adding to my personal burdens in this thwarting of my instructions. Even, however, while I was acknowledging defeat in the matter, aid came from an unexpected source.

I later heard that the King had learned of the Prime Minister's intention and, while not presuming to interfere with the decision reached by Mr. Churchill, he sent word that if the Prime Minister felt it necessary to go on the expedition he, the King, felt it to be equally his duty and privilege to participate at the head of his troops. This instantly placed a different light upon the matter and I heard no more of it.

"D-Day and Lodgment" is the chapter title in "Crusade in Europe" for General Eisenhower's own description of the fighting in the fields of Normandy while force was being built up for the great breakout which sent the Allied armies plunging deep into Europe. It was an anxious time. Storms, V-1 and V-2 bombs, and bitter German resistance slowed up the difficult job of coiling the springs for breakout.

This is described in the fifteenth installment of "Crusade in Europe," which will be published in this newspaper tomorrow.

This is a condensed serialization of Dwight D. Eisenhower's "Crusade in Europe." It contains highlights of the book to be published November 22, 1948, by Doubleday & Co. Copyrighted by Doubleday & Co., Inc.

GOP to Deal Final Blow at Inflation

Economic specialists of the Republican Eightieth Congress will have one final fling at inflationary pressures and taxation before Democratic anti-inflationists take over.

Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.), chairman of a Senate-House Economic Subcommittee, slated 10 days of hearings beginning December 7, on whether taxes should be increased on "unprecedented" business profits.

Flanders joined some Democratic prophets in reporting a "strong belief" that tax revenues must be increased, either by restoring some form of excess profits tax or by increasing regular corporation taxes.

To Study Other Proposals

He said the subcommittee would study other anti-inflation proposals, ranging from price, credit and wage controls to rationing.

Flanders' subcommittee is one unit of the Joint Committee on the Economic Report headed by Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), who has not always seen eye to eye with Flanders on economic measures.

The Eightieth Congress has completed its legislative record and will return at month's end only for a routine adjournment. But Flanders' subcommittee may have some findings to pass on to its Democratic successor.

Leading Democrats have clashed on whether the excess profits tax should be revised, with Senator Walter F. George (Ga.) flatly opposing the levy and Senators Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Wyo.) and J. Howard McGrath (R. I.) favoring it.

But some Republicans are now suggesting increased taxes on corporations.

Increases Suggested

Representative Harold Knutson (R., Minn.), retiring chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, said Thursday that corporate normal rates may have to be upped.

And Representative Thurston B. Morton (R., Ky.), the only Republican who voted against the Knutson tax cut last spring, yesterday said that he expected the new Congress "to pass some form of excess profits tax."

Morton said he hoped Congress would get away from the historic base for computing the tax so it "won't take away from the little man the opportunity to grow" and deprive industry of incentive to produce more.

"The danger in such a tax," Morton said, "is that it works out advantageously for well-established businesses but hurts newcomers and prevents the small man from becoming big. It also allows the big man to hold his position in industry.

"A compromise will have to be worked out between classes of industry. Surely the profits of a retailer should be viewed differently from those of a manufacturer because of the differences in necessary equipment and inventories."

To Call Economists

Senator Flanders said he planned to call before the joint economic subcommittee prominent economists with varying views on the tax question.

He said industry representatives would be called next and asked these questions:

Their volume of profit based on investment and sales.

The profits they have available for distribution in view of inflation and increased business costs.

The proportion of profit distributed as dividends, increased wages, lower prices, reserves, taxes and improved or expanded plant equipment.

Pa. Uncovers 'Dead Animal Meat Racket'

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 19 (AP).—Pennsylvania began cracking down today on what officials termed a "dead animal meat racket."

Miles Horst, State agriculture secretary, said a five-month inquiry will result in 29 persons being arraigned, beginning today, on charges of selling for human consumption meat from horses and cattle that died in the fields.

Horst, describing the sales as a "dead animal meat racket," said 258 violations have been uncovered by State food agents in Philadelphia and five adjoining counties. The first two arrests included B. Frank Kready, jr., Lancaster, a former tennis coach at Franklin and Marshall College.

"Investigations," said Horst, "have uncovered some very disgusting practices both in the preparation of dog food and the suspected illegal sale of horse meat for human consumption.

"We have reason to believe that the coming hearings will disclose that the average family, seeking "bargain buys" in low-priced meats, has been getting gypped."

United States who seem to enjoy being scared.

"With the buying power of the country at its highest, and with the people able to buy everything that can be manufactured or grown with a reasonable profit to the producer, I don't see what anybody has to be scared about.

"Nobody can say that the country is not in a prosperous or healthy condition.

"If a major depression or recession should come, which I do not expect, it will not be justified by our economic situation, but will be man-made."

No Foundation in Fact

The 66-year-old Texan, asked what he meant by man-made depression, said that he meant an economic setback that would come through a philosophy of fear, which has no foundation in fact.

On the question of cooperation between the White House and Capitol Hill, the prospective Speaker had this to say:

"All in the Congress are coming back with a good feeling. You might use the word 'camaraderie,' which I trust will last for the next four years.

"I don't think there will be any complaint on the part of the leadership of the House or Senate in working out things between the Congress and the White House."

Rayburn expressed the thought that the familiar coalition between the South and the North would be missing in the Eighty-first Congress.

Sees No Effective Coalition

"I do not believe," he said, "that there will be anything like an effective coalition of Republicans and so-called reactionary Southerners."

Rayburn called on reporters this afternoon at their request. He was attired in a loud sports shirt and sun-tan trousers.

President Truman, as has been his habit for the last 10 days, went swimming this morning, and lost his glasses in the choppy waters of the Atlantic.

President Loses Mississippi Hope For Electoral Vote

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 19 (AP).—President Truman today lost all hope of getting Mississippi's electoral votes when the State Democratic Convention—in recess since August 3—was adjourned officially.

The convention, which met here in June and again in August, pledged electors to vote for the States' Rights candidates, Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Gov. Fielding L. Wright of Mississippi. Their slate carried in Mississippi in the November 2 general election.

The convention did not adjourn in August, however, but recessed until November 23, with the stipulation that final adjournment could be ordered by convention chairman J. Thomas Dunn of Meridian.

Capitol observers have been watching for reassembling of convention delegates in a "peace move" by Mississippi Democrats.

Dulles For Austin

The appointment of John Foster Dulles to be acting chief of the American delegation to the United Nations Paris meeting is not likely to be welcomed very heartily in Moscow. The Russians had their mouths all made up to kiss Mr. Dulles goodby. They thought the defeat of Mr. Dewey would mean the end of the bipartisan front on foreign policy. As a consolation, perhaps they will find some grim pleasure in the fact that Mr. Dulles makes a particularly easy target for Mr. Vishinsky's jibes. We hope the Dulles eardrums are sufficiently calloused by this time so that he won't take seriously the scornful epithets that are sure to come streaming his way. A thin skin is not the best diplomatic equipment in dealing with the Kremlin's sharp-tongued emissaries.

Mr. Dulles' appointment, of course, is not permanent. Indeed, his tenure will be for only a few days if Secretary Marshall returns to Paris after his Monday conference with the President. Even should Mr. Marshall decide to stay in Washington, the Assembly is scheduled to finish its present session on December 11, only three weeks hence. That is too short a period for any great modification of United States position or policy to take place under Mr. Dulles' influence—assuming he wished to have any such change. Actually, of course, the American delegation voices and implements general policies that are made in Washington. And Mr. Dulles has shown himself to be as close to a complete embodiment of the bipartisan approach as human nature will permit.

Thus the importance of the appointment is primarily symbolic. The election has made no difference in the team relationship that existed before among the principal formulators of policy. The President has demonstrated in another move, comparable in deftness to his indorsement of the Hoover Commission, that this is not a matter of political allegiances.

Shipping Tieup

Apart from domestic dislocations that spell loss of income in one way or another for the American people, the closing of our ports means inability to fulfill commitments for delivery of goods to European countries participating in the Marshall Plan. It also halts equally essential shipments to other countries participating in the Marshall Plan. It also halts equally essential shipments to other countries looking to this country for supplies. Whether or not Communists have been active in fomenting the intraunion strife that has obstructed the conclusion of agreements between shipowners and longshoremen, it is certain that the shipping tieup affords Communists just the kind of ammunition they need to undermine our recovery program and further weaken European governments.

So much is at stake, therefore, that it is amazing that a President who showed so much spunk in putting an end to the railroad strike in 1946 should have displayed so little initiative in dealing with the West Coast shipping tieup after invocation of the emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act proved futile. Only recently negotiations between West Coast maritime unions and the shipowners have been resumed with the help of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, with good prospects for a speedy settlement. The delay has, however, caused heavy losses to West Coast communities, to say nothing of the adverse effect on Hawaii.

In view of this West Coast demonstration of the feebleness of the emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act as a preventive of strikes constituting a threat to the national welfare, its failure to avert the strike that has closed Atlantic ports to seaborne commerce comes as no surprise. It merely emphasizes the need for more decisive measures to deal with such menacing labor disputes. This time the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service has entered the picture earlier, although still belatedly, and persuaded the principals to make another attempt to achieve an agreement. But negotiations begin where they left off—with union demands far out of line with what shipowners might reasonably be expected to concede. Hence the immobilization of shipping is likely to continue indefinitely unless the strikers return to work pending final negotiation of a contract.

Since the rank and file of union members have refused once to follow the recommendations of their leadership, it is an open question whether President Ryan is in a position to assert his authority over the longshoremen and induce them to accept a reasonable compromise settlement. If he fails, or if the strike continues much longer, it will fall to the President to employ weapons of coercion that will get the men back to work immediately, with or without a contract.

Palestine Feelers

From the time of the U. N. partition of Palestine this newspaper has felt that American diplomacy should have encouraged direct negotiations between what was nascently Israel and King Abdullah. Direct dealings are now advocated by the Transjordanian monarch, who, furthermore, reminds the Arabs that they "must accept the logical," meaning, of course, the fact that Israel exists. The Transjordanian statement appears in the form of an interview with the New York Herald Tribune correspondent, Mr. Kenneth Bilby, and is published almost simultaneously with Mr. Bunche's decision that Israel has conformed to U. N. conditions of armistice.

Palestine was turned into a political vacuum as soon as the British resigned their mandate and quit Palestine. No "rights" existed that a legalist could not undermine. Certainly none could be admitted for the Mufti, whose proper place was the dock for war criminality; nor for the Egyptians, who had less of a standing than the Turks, under whom, before the First World War, Palestine was a sandjak, and who want stability and harmony in the Middle East. From the standpoint of practical politics, there were two parties at interest, viz., what came to be Israel and Abdullah. But Abdullah has hitherto been inhibited from recognizing realities because Britain and America pushed him into the arms of the Arab League and faced him with the prospect of incurring the hostility of at least Britain, who contributes to his budget, if he dealt directly with the Israelis.

Since the Transjordanian king is hemmed about with obligations, and is, to boot, an Oriental, the interview lacked specificity. But those who run can read what is in Abdullah's mind. Of the Higher Committee, which was regarded at Lake Success as speaking for the Palestinian Arabs, he spoke slightingly. They don't "seem to have the same regard for the people of Palestine as does Transjordan," he said, and his comment is understandable in light of the fact that Transjordan was disjoined from Palestine as recently as 1922. He implied that the Arab League was either an intruder or had no awareness of the issues in Palestine, and into this can be read more than a hint to the Egyptians to keep hands off Beersheba, which they seem to have claimed. The Arab League "did not," he said, "seem to appreciate the true situation." More vaguely he deprecated foreign intervention, but for which, he said, force might have been spared, at any rate, between Transjordan and Israel. Having intervened, however, the powers should now be concerned with restoring peace by encouraging direct contact between Amman and Tel Aviv. Any different approach, such as a dictation of terms—in which connection the British are now trying to persuade the United Nations to apply the Bernadotte Plan—is impliedly declared to be misplaced activity. As to an Israel-Transjordan understanding, he denied negotiations, but he did admit "personal contacts."

This is the first time that the Hashemite King has shown his independence to the extent of publicly avowing personal contacts with Tel Aviv. It is an even more important acknowledgment than he himself may realize. For not only does it confirm the constant reports of Amman-Tel Aviv feelers; it makes monkeys of sundry high officials in Washington and in London, and in United Nations circles in Paris, who have hitherto called all such reports Israeli propaganda, and who have persuaded the Security Council to act as if no direct settlement was possible. What has been going on in Paris has frustrated the quest for a solution and fanned the Arab intransigence which Abdullah deprecated in his talk with the New York Herald Tribune correspondent. The Arab League, still nursing hopes of an upset of the Assembly's original partition plan, has not yet accepted the U. N. armistice conditions.

The function of the United Nations is to bring parties together, not to keep them separate, and the Assembly should now feel free to ignore the Security Council and set up a committee of good offices with the explicit instruction to promote an Israel-Transjordan understanding on the basis of the U. N.'s own partition plan. Evidently the British will resist any such move. They want to be the medium between the Arab and the Western worlds and between the Arabs and the Israelis. This is nineteenth century policy—at a time when the realities require that after a settlement over Palestine has been attained, policy should be concerned with the development of a Middle Eastern regional system.

Labor's Success

Nothing succeeds like success, and the AFL's political arm, claiming a major share of credit for the congressional election result, has a new lease on life. Labor's League for Political Education, formed experimentally a year ago at San Francisco, has been continued as a permanent institution by action at the Cincinnati AFL convention. The leaders of the AFL, many of whom double in brass as directors of the nominally independent LLPE, apparently decided they had done well to break away, at least partly, from the Gompers tradition of complete aloofness from party politics.

The decision was accompanied by another convention action of perhaps even greater importance for labor unity, growing significantly out of the parallel activities of the AFL and CIO in the election campaign. The convention's organization committee brought in a report, subsequently adopted, which declared that "The recent political victory was won only by the cooperative efforts of all labor . . . We suggest that it is not enough for us to open the door and hope the prodigal CIO will return, but that we should now reach out and grasp them by the hand and urge them to come back into the American Federation of Labor."

To this unusually cordial overture the CIO, whose convention is presently meeting in Portland, Oreg., will shortly, no doubt, make response. While the CIO certainly does not think of itself as a "prodigal" nor, probably, view the question as one of "returning" to the AFL, it may feel obliged not to fall behind in cordiality. Such mutual good will, if it develops, will serve as a necessary lubricant in any negotiations that may eventuate. But there still remain, so far as we can see, most of the reefs of jurisdictional rivalry on which previous peace conferences have broken up.

These have never seemed to us insurmountable, given sufficient determination to overcome them. Both labor groups now have concrete proof not only that cooperation in one phase of operations can bring results but that it can be accomplished in the first place. They cannot fail to be impressed with the thought that more unity should bring still more success in both political and economic action in future. Their aims are alike, and the only danger we can see in labor unity is to labor itself. The enhanced power of a united labor movement, if wielded with the irresponsibility of a John L. Lewis, would assuredly give rise to a public demand for legislation even more restrictive than the Taft-Hartley Act. From that danger only labor itself can earn protection by showing responsibility to match its power.

Mum Is The Word

The General Assembly of the United Nations has set up a subcommission to prepare a declaration of human rights. In Paris the other day the Russian members of this commission, supported by most of the Latin-American members, succeeded in having the declaration so amended to as to include a clause asserting that all persons in all member nations have a legal right to protection against any attacks in the press which might impair their "honor or reputation."

By precisely what means the subcommission expects that this protection shall be enforced is not clear. In many of the countries whose representatives supported the amendment it is enforced, so far as it concerns members of the government in power, by the simple device of censorship. In Russia, for example, it is not permitted to speak of Stalin, or anyone who happens to be in Stalin's favor, in any terms save those of extravagant approval. In English-speaking countries the procedure is for the person who feels that his honor or reputation has been seriously damaged without justification to take action in the courts by means of a suit for libel or slander. In these countries it is a well-recognized principle that freedom of speech is qualified rather than absolute and the right to freedom ceases at the point where it impinges on other natural rights. The courts, however, have been extremely reluctant to draw the line precisely. Generally speaking, the British courts have tended to resolve doubtful cases in favor of the plaintiffs and the American courts, whose principal guide in the matter is the First Amendment, in favor of the defendants.

As far as the common law is concerned, the principles of libel are virtually the same in both countries but here the common law has been variously amended by statutes in the several States so that the question of what constitutes libel differs considerably between one jurisdiction and another. In some States proof that published statements which have been made the basis of the libel action are true, exculpates the publisher; in others it is necessary to prove that the publication was motivated by the public interest. In the United States criminal actions for libel are nowadays extremely rare, because of the procedural difficulties involved.

Granting that a liberal interpretation of the constitutional guarantees of free speech and press, such as we enjoy in this country, opens a possibility of embarrassment or injury to private persons, it is also clear that without such latitude public abuses or improprieties on the part of public personages could scarcely be publicized at all, and there would be thus no hope of correcting them. If every politician, for example, were encouraged to invoke the libel laws each time his intelligence, qualifications, and purity of motives were called into question, government under such a system as ours would soon be impossible.

It would be no less impossible, it seems to us, if the amendment adopted by the subcommission on human rights were to be taken seriously. It is easy, of course, to see why the Russians and their satellites should wish to muzzle the American press. What is not easy to understand is how the declaration prepared at Paris can be reconciled with our institutions.

THERE SHALL BE NO WAR

We have read accurately the grim octave:
Destruction, death, the shrieking metaphor
Of man become a dictaphonic slave
To the unholy utterances of war.
And, white with horror, we have noted how
The slow pentameter, the simile
Of sanguinary progress leave us now
Asking world peace . . . the only victory.

What of the sestet? Who is there will write
The closing words, who scan the short, the long;
And who will be the first to read with light
A timeless and a universal song?
Where is the one to build within a shrine
One monumental, one immortal line?

"Displaced Germans"

In your editorial, November 15, about the displaced Germans, who are not covered by the Displaced Persons Act, you point out that something must be done about them. As a first step you say the present German authorities should, under military government supervision, assimilate as many of these as possible into the country's social and economic life.

Your suggestion is easier made than followed out. For example, where is the food to come from to feed these people permanently since Germany has been deprived of one of its principal food-producing areas, which is now under Russian domination? If it must buy food, won't it be necessary for Germany to have all its factories to produce and sell goods in export? What does this do to the questionably sensible dismantling program? If we don't allow German, to keep its factories and produce for export, how long is the United States going to be content to pay for its food? It now runs over 500 million dollars a year.

Eugene M. Kulischer has taken a long-range view of this thorny and perplexing problem in his recent study of war and population changes, "Europe on the Move." He concludes that there are three alternatives open: birth control for Germany, emigration for Germany, or increased exports. For some reason, probably because it would involve us in difficulties with Russia, he dispenses with the possibility of restoring Germany's food-producing areas.

From the point of view of the United States, which is still "plain folks" enough to recognize the impropriety of suggesting the first alternative, the second and third would seem to be the best ways out. In terms of what to do next, the coming session of Congress should amend the Displaced Persons Act to give more Germans the right and privilege of coming to the United States. Then it should take a close look at the present administration of the Marshall Plan to see that its administrator is fully implementing Section 115-f, which calls for a considerable number of the German plants to be kept where they are in Germany to continue production for the good of all Europe.

Senate Office Building

Referring to the eviction of 50 families in order to make way for a new Senate Office Building won't you please carry on a strong campaign to delay the whole matter for at least two or three years when property may not be so high and when it may not work such hardship on these people?

In the first place, it is not true that the United States Senate really needs to evict the families. I am so well acquainted with the Senate Office Building and have been in it many hundreds of times. It is an easy matter to add two or three more stories to the present structure. The foundation and walls will permit it.

In the second place, it is downright cruelty, in view of the present housing situation in Washington, and in view of the fact that the Senators do not really need additional land just now for them to evict the 50 families, many of whom have elderly relatives who must receive care. To move old people in these days to unsuitable living quarters is a tragic thing to do, as the new place is never home and is never comfortable.

Misplaced Vengeance

Japan went to war in 1931 and again 1937. We talked but wouldn't act to stop her. We continued to supply her. Didn't this make us accomplices before and after the event? I wonder if we are proceeding with our eyes open, when we presume to judge and condemn her leaders? Does it not imply the moral obligation to stop every war and every atrocity that takes place on this earth? Can we take revenge on the helpless, and let the powerful escape?

I realize the embarrassment of bringing up such a matter at a time when there is war in Palestine, in China, and in Greece. I do so not to be embarrassing, but in the belief that our survival will depend upon the ultimate strength of our faith. I consider our political leaders fully justified in employing every possible expedient in performing the missions we assign them. But I do not believe that we, the people, nor our ministers, can escape ultimate judgment against moral inversion that fawns on the mighty and takes vengeance against the captive.

"Demagogy" Protested

The writer of this protest is a dyed-in-the-granite State of Vermont Republican.

I have been for perhaps 25 years a reader and great admirer of Mark Sullivan. Much of the material in his column of November 15 is a fair enough statement of what Mr. Truman said and did before election. But like all of his writings through the years his uncompromising attachment of Republicanism stands out like a briliant banner. It is fair to challenge two words used in his article. It is headed "A Masterpiece of Demagogy."

My dictionary defines "demagogy" as the spirit, method or conduct of a demagogue; the "demagogue" as an orator or leader who seeks to influence the people by pandering to the prejudices and passions of the people; an unprincipled politician; a leader of the mob.

The article designates his appeal to the laboring class and the farmers as "atrociously crass." This word crass is full of meaning: The dictionary says: "Coarse, or thick, as opposed to thin, or fine, gross, dense, dull of apprehension, obtuse, cloddish, stupid."

Will Mark Sullivan or someone else please point out where I am wrong in protest against the use of words aimed at President Truman and his campaign. And please point out to Mark Sullivan the wisdom of due respect for our President and some show of loyalty to the sprit of unity in Government affairs

Royal Baby

Congratulations to you for running the November 15 story of the birth of the English Cockney woman's baby on the front page alongside the account of the birth of Princess Elizabeth's baby.

To a sincere believer in democracy it is somewhat sickening to read all the gooey editorial comment regarding the British royal family. Democracy presupposes the equal worth of every man with every other man, until such time as ability, and not inherited rank or status, shall distinguish them.

The money wasted annually on the British royal family runs into many millions of dollars. This money could far better be spent on schools and better food for undernourished and underprivileged British children.

As an American, it seems to me deplorable that people in this country, a great many of whom are so indifferent to the problems of the democratic process that they refuse to inform themselves of the problems of their own country, or to satisfactorily perform their duties as citizens of a democracy, should inform themselves avidly and in the minutest detail of the affairs of the British royal family. These people are responsible for many near breakdowns in the workings of our Government. They are too apathetic to force a decent housing bill through the Congress. They have no time to worry about schools or civil rights. Legislation for a Nation-wide health program doesn't interest them. They are too busy thinking of names for Princess Elizabeth's baby.

DAVID A. HELLER.
Hyattsville, Md.

Haven't we heard enough about the royal baby? I for myself am fed up and disgusted with hearing so much about who the doctor was, how much it weighed, whether it was the perfect, or near-perfect weight for a male first-born, what time it was born, whether its name is a royal secret or not.

Let's forget about this birth now that it has happened. There are thousands of children born every day, why make such a fuss over one? WILLIAM OSTEN.
Washington.

After reading about the birth of the new prince to Elizabeth and Phillip and the poor selection of items concerning other births at the same time, I'm left with a very bad taste in my mouth.

I am neither British nor politically inclined toward or against Britian about the new baby, but it seems to me rather than play it up the way you did with stories about less fortunate children I would have used the news I had about the royal birth and left it at that.

Newspapers have or should have ample news in politics with conditions in the world as they are now without grabbing at such a means of making headlines. EDYTH FRANK.
Silver Spring, Md.

I've read your article on the birth of Princess Elizabeth's baby and on the same page there is another article about a poor Cockney woman, a Mrs. Thilp, who gave birth to a daughter the same day. What a contrast!

Mrs. Thilp is just one you happened to write about, but there are women all over the world, yes, and in the United States too, who have babies in just such poor, unfortunate circumstances and there's nothing done about it.

Then the princess has a baby, with four doctors in attendance, the very latest drugs to help her, and the baby will have its own special nurses to care for it, so the princess can rest and be strong again before undertaking any responsibilities. That's all very well and good, but what I can't understand is why the American people are so ready to help the "poor princess" and the "Mrs. Thilps" of the world are completely ignored. M. B. L.

Training For Atomic Living

By Malvina Lindsay

Nuclear Legacy

WE OF TODAY who are gingerly holding the hot potato of atomic energy have at least one advantage over our primitive ancestors who discovered fire. We know that we are living on the brink of a new age of mankind. Even if we don't know the answers to the questions it poses, we can prepare the next generation to work on them.

As a nation-wide educational project to acquaint school children with the great new force of nuclear energy gets under way, the question arises as to what its fruits will be. Merely more deadly weapons and more electrical wonders? Or human beings better fitted to live in an atomic world?

Educators under the present plan, which has Government indorsement, are not attempting to tell pupils what should be done about the recently unleashed atomic forces. That will be up to tomorrow's generation after it learns in its physics, chemistry and sociology classes the scientific facts about the powerful new agent that is reshaping the world.

ONE BIG thing this education promises is the development among young people of greater interest in the nuclear physics field. This will mean the pushing ahead of research and invention, and a more vigorous assault on the iron curtain that shuts off the mystery of the universe. Educators point to what schoolboy interest in airplanes did for aviation. Atoms, protons and neutrons naturally cannot appeal so concretely to the youthful imagination. Yet now that the use of atomic energy in everyday life is so near, as the noted French physicist Becqueral recently predicted, the schoolboy can begin to think of it more tangibly, and also regard it creatively rather than merely as an agent of destruction.

One of the first big problems to which the oncoming generation will need to turn its nuclear adventuring will be that of food for this impoverished and overpopulated planet. For that problem is likely to be dominating the headlines 50 or even 25 years hence. It hovered over the sessions here this week of the World Food and Agriculture Organization, which heard reports that while world food production by 1951 would be up to its 1939 level, yet world population would be 200 million greater than it was then. Atomic research is about the only place left to which to look for the miracle that is necessary if man is to outwit starvation.

School children as they learn the significance of atomic energy also will be preparing themselves to meet the knotty problem of its control—which at present progress will long be on the agenda of the United Nations or its successor. And as they come to understand the immensity of the force put into their keeping, they may realize the necessity for safeguarding it from exploitation—private, political or military.

THERE IS even some chance that school children may learn of the social changes and challenges atomic energy developments will bring. Some of the suggested instruction in it ties in with sociology courses. It points out the greater leisure, material comforts, better health and longer living, speed in transportation (such as trains that run 800 miles an hour) that eventually may be realized through atomic energy.

Children should learn from their atomic studies how in the world ahead barriers of time and space will be further broken down and how hunger and political unrest in the most remote regions of the globe will become more and more their personal concern. They will learn how futile is most of today's silly and selfish chatter about "stocking up" for the "next war." And as they discover what the actual perils of living in an atomically armed world are, they may bring a more ingenious and dynamic approach to parrying the hovering threat.

Perhaps tomorrow's generation cannot or will not do anything about these problems—assuming it inherits nothing worse than the world of the present. Possibly it will use its atomic knowledge exclusively for better gadgets and bombs, and do nothing about people or social forces. Possibly it will lackadaisically drift along with what it has learned until it is catapulted violently into the atomic era. But whatever it does, this generation can do no less than see that youth is fully informed in the American tradition of free knowledge as to what it faces.

"Ethical Babes"

The heading above one of your stories in the November 10 paper reads: "Nuclear Giants, Ethical Babes Menace Man . . ."

I've never met a nuclear giant. And ethical babes never menaced me. It's the unethical ones who give me trouble.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Blueprint For Bureaucracy

IN THE COURSE of his high-level campaign Governor Dewey customarily got the loudest applause when he promised that Washington would see the "greatest housecleaning" in its history under his administration. The wave of applause would come as the Republican candidate called for the "unsnarling, unraveling" of the bureaucratic jungle of the Potomac.

Childs

Now this response may have come merely because it was one of the few positive things that Dewey said. But it also may have reflected the sense that judicious pruning could not but improve the Federal bureaucracy.

For many months the Hoover Commission has been hard at work preparing a blueprint for this undertaking. The commission bristles with big names. Some of the Nation's leading business management firms have been called in to chart the path to greater efficiency.

IN A SPEECH the other day Herbert Hoover gave us a peek at what soon will be forthcoming. This preliminary peek must have surprised old-timers whose idea of efficiency is to liquidate every other bureaucrat.

The commission, Hoover said, means to recommend drastic changes for the Postoffice Department. And what must have been even more startling to those who scream "bureaucracy" as though it were a naughty word written by schoolboys on the sidewalk, is that the pattern of change recommended follows the present practice of the Tennessee Valley Authority. While Hoover did not say this, it was abundantly clear from his remarks.

The Postoffice Department often is touted as an example of business administration in Government. Nothing could be further from the truth as the Hoover Commission seems to have discovered.

Over the greater part of its operation, the department has no control at all. Postoffices are built by the Treasury, turned over intact to the department, which charges off no depreciation for them.

But the catch comes in the hidden subsidies that the Postoffice Department must pay out under laws passed by Congress. Payment to the airlines for carrying air mail is fixed by the Civil Aeronautics Board. Tremendous pressures are exercised to get these payments up as high as possible and the public rarely has a chance to learn how much is actual cost and how much is subsidy.

Similarly, the rates paid to the railroads for carrying mail are fixed by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Hidden subsidies in these payments go to several sources, including many publications which are carried at less than actual cost.

ANNUALLY the Postoffice Department runs up a huge deficit. Last year it was 300 million dollars, with the prospect this year it will be 500 million dollars.

Hoover indicated that his commission would recommend that all revenues of the Postoffice Department be retained by the department. If they were not sufficient to cover cost of operation, Congress would have to make up the deficit. But at least it would be possible to determine how close income approaches outgo.

This is precisely what TVA does. The TVA Act requires that income earned by the farflung projects go back into TVA's treasury to cover costs of operation.

Hostile critics of TVA, such as Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee, have consistently attacked this practice. They have demanded that TVA follow the "businesslike" example of the Postoffice Department which turns over the money you pay for postage stamps to the United States Treasury and then goes to Congress for a blanket fund to operate. The Hoover Commission appears to have shattered the myth.

Many of the lessons to be learned from TVA have been obscured by the constant barrage of hostile propaganda, much of it emanating from the utility lobby. TVA is the only large Government agency that is not required to hire its employes through the Civil Service Commission. The Hoover Commission will recommend that other agencies have the right to hire outside the narrow limitations of Civil Service which often make it difficult to obtain the proper kind of help.

What Hoover and his experts also should study is the fact of TVA's location in the region where the job is being done. The value of keeping clear of the Washington tangle has been proved in practice and other branches of Government could profit from the lesson.

Grange Indorses Court Ban On Strikes Menacing Nation

Portland, Me., Nov. 19 (AP).—The National Grange today indorsed the use of court injunctions and compulsory arbitration in strikes that threaten the "public health, safety and general welfare."

The farm organization's convention upheld, however, labor's right to strike and to organize on an industry-wide basis.

But it declared that when a strike, or threatened strike, becomes a "serious menace" to the Nation, resort to the injunction and forced arbitration would be justified.

The Grange said it considered mass picketing that results in intimidation to be unfair. But it added that workers of a struck plane should be protected in their "right to picket peaceably."

It also voiced opposition to any "unjustified" reduction of labor's work week and declared its opposition to the closed shop.

The farm group's views on labor were given in a resolution adopted at a session that sought to wind up the Grange's eighty-second annual convention today.

It earlier adopted a farm program policy resolution reaffirming the Grange stand for a system of flexible farm supports.

As contrasted with present more rigid supports, the new system would be designed to guide farm output away from both surpluses and shortages. Its objective also would be aimed at protecting farmers from low prices and income.

The Grange took a more tolerant attitude, however, toward Federal crop marketing controls than had been suggested by its agriculture committee.

The latter wanted the Grange to go on record opposing controls except as a "last resort" when other measures failed to keep farmers prosperous.

The convention agreed to approve controls in cases where two-thirds of the producers of a crop had likewise approved.

The softer view on controls was taken at the insistence of delegates from tobacco and cotton producing areas.

Farmers Union Drafts Legislative Program

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 19 (AP).—The Farmers Union national executive committee today completed a six-point legislative program for presentation to the Eighty-first Congress.

The committee announced the program after exchanging views with Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan. However, no mention was made of the Secretary's reactions to the farm group's proposal.

The committee called for:

1. A stable, not a sliding, floor under farm price supports as now ordered by recent legislation. A stable floor, the committee said, would guarantee full parity for farm products.
2. A revolving fund similar to the Rural Electrification Administration fund from which farm cooperatives and farm groups could borrow for construction of grain storage elevators to insure a constant backlog of grain.
3. A Federal program to insure consumption of farm products from an ever-normal granary. The committee explained this would be largely an educational program.
4. Ratification of the international wheat agreement, which the last Congress failed to approve.
5. Administration of farm programs by farm committees.
6. Separation of the Farm Bureau from the extension service.

Fourth-Round Wage Drive Opened by CIO

Portland, Oreg., Nov. 19 (AP).—A CIO drive for a fourth round of postwar wage raises in 1949 started rumbling here today.

Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers, told a group of Portland businessmen the UAW is "talking already about a fourth-round increase."

"If you haven't heard it," he said, "You'll hear about it next week."

He was talking about the CIO convention which starts Monday. His words seemed to indicate the whole CIO, not just the UAW, may go on record for higher wages. Last year's CIO convention at Boston avoided the subject.

Reuther said prices have risen so much it would take a raise of 15 cents an hour to give workers the same purchasing power they had in June, 1946, and a raise of 43 cents an hour to put them back where they were in 1944.

Still Sees No Effect on Prices

He gave clear notice that he still believes—as he did during the big General Motors strike of 1945-'46—that wages can be raised without raising prices; that there should be a "better balance" between wages, prices and profits; and that collective bargaining should be carried on with the company's price and profit figures open for both sides to see.

"We are going to keep on making that fight," he said.

It was one of Reuther's first speeches since he was shot through his kitchen window in Detroit last April.

He spoke with his right arm in a metal brace and supported by a sling. Otherwise he looked healthy and appeared to have his old self-confidence and vigor.

His audience, the City Club of Portland, applauded with considerable enthusiasm when he got through.

Reuther, a CIO vice president, is expected to take a leading part next week in the process of isolating Communists in the CIO and further reducing their influence. That trend, which has been going on in the CIO for two years, is likely to reach the showdown stage at this convention.

Today Reuther criticized Henry Wallace and those who supported him for President. He said:

"Joe Stalin supported Henry Wallace. The idea behind the Wallace party was born in the Kremlin. Wallace was brought onto the scene to divide the liberal forces so that Governor Dewey would be elected and a depression would occur. Stalin knows he can't beat us, so he is counting on us to beat ourselves by making the same mistake we made in 1929."

CIO Drops Labor Party Plans

Reuther said nothing about the idea of creating a new and "genuinely progressive" political party. The UAW executive board voted last March to seek the creation of such a party after the November 2 elections.

Earlier today a UAW spokesman told reporters UAW leaders are no longer thinking along those lines.

It is considered certain the CIO will not try to form a third party, but at the same time will not ally itself formally with any existing party. CIO President Philip Murray has said here "our CIO movement is not a tail to any particular political party."

Tomorrow the CIO executive board takes up the issue of what to do about the left-wing New York City CIO council. A CIO official, who declined to be quoted by name told a reporter today a three-man subcommittee will recommend in the "strongest terms" the board revoke the council's CIO charter.

Humphrey Welcomed as Hero at AFL

Cincinnati, Nov. 19 (AP).—Mayor Hubert Humphrey of Minneapolis, who wrested a United States Senate seat from Republican Joseph H. Ball, was received like a "hero" today by wildly cheering delegates to the American Federation of Labor convention.

The 37-year-old Humphrey, who had led the fight for a civil rights program at the Democratic National Convention last July, said passing a law on that subject will not be enough.

"I know democracy won't live if we don't know how to get along with each other," he said.

Some political observers think Humphrey will have a cool reception from influential Southern Democrats who hold senior posts in the Senate. Some of them opposed the Democratic Party's stand on civil rights and supported the State's Rights Party in an outright break with President Truman.

But, it was Humphrey's day at the convention even though the delegates earlier had stomped a noisy welcome to W. Averell Harriman and Federal Security Administrator Oscar R. Ewing.

Humphrey had been a speaker at last year's AFL convention, and the delegates recalled the oratory of the one-time college professor.

It was President William Green who introduced him as "a hero."

The Minneapolis Mayor said "not one labor leader has asked me to sell my soul for anything I don't believe in." He said he had been against the Taft-Hartley Act "three months before it was passed."

Calls It "Paper Curtain"

The delegates roared when he referred to "a paper curtain" in the election campaign. He said it had been the equivalent of an iron curtain, so many newspapers had supported Republican Thomas E. Dewey.

Harriman sobered the delegates with his recital of affairs in Europe. He said what was occurring was "a twentieth century barbarian invasion of Europe."

"It can be turned back, and can be done without war," President Truman's roving Ambassador for the Marshall Plan told the convention. He was a former Ambassador to Moscow.

"We have abandoned isolationism on the political front and on the economic front, and now we must abandon it on the security front."

"A military establishment within reason can be maintained when we have established recovery in free countries in Europe. We have strong allies in Europe.

"If anybody doubts the outcome of the struggle, I would point out that men have fought for liberty before. I cannot believe that the peoples of Europe are so devitalized that they won't fight for liberty now."

Harriman, who came here from Paris to address the delegates, said he would confer with President Truman on Monday, after the executive returns from his Key West vacation.

He said he has no intention of resigning. "I have a big job to do, and I want to do it," he told a news conference.

Federal Security Administrator Ewing announced that he favored the return of the United States Employment Service and the unemployment compensation system to a greatly strengthened Labor Department.

Vice President-elect Barkley will address the convention Saturday afternoon.

The major resolutions and committee reports have yet to be acted upon. The convention likely will adjourn Tuesday.

A report recommending repeal of the Hatch Act, restricting political activity of Government workers or at least amending it to give the Civil Service Commission the power to fix penalties for violations, was delayed in committee.

Hoffman Begs Dock Strikers To Let ECA Shipments Sail

John Lyon, of the New York Shipping Association:

"The Foreign Assistance Act of 1948 was passed by the Congress of the United States to carry out an unselfish program designed to insure world peace through the economic recovery of Europe.

"For the first year's program the American people are bearing a huge financial burden and have authorized the expenditure of five billion dollars. In the seven and one half months the Economic Cooperation Administration has been functioning, great strides in European recovery have already been made.

"The success of the program so far has resulted in an orderly flow of needed recovery goods which the people of the Marshall-Plan countries are using to assist them in their own efforts to help themselves.

"The continued flow of such recovery goods to the participating countries is vital to the success of the entire European recovery program. Work stoppages that halt this flow may imperil the success of the entire program.

"Already, as a result of the Atlantic Coast longshoremen's strike, materials needed for the recovery program have not been shipped. Delay in forwarding these materials will not only endanger the recovery of Europe but tend to defeat the will of the American people.

"I ask therefore that early in your resumed negotiations you jointly undertake to agree on some plan that will permit the prompt renewal of all ECA traffic now being halted by the stoppage of work.

U. S. Mediators Meet With Both Parties

New York, Nov. 19 (AP).—Federal mediators in the 10-day-old East Coast dock strike today brought about the first joint bargaining session.

A 14-member committee representing shipping firms and a 125-man union delegation met at a hotel with three United States mediators.

William N. Margolis, head of the mediation panel, said the opening sessions were largely exploratory. He expects the talks to continue into next week.

With the second weekend of the strike coming up, all major Atlantic ports from Virginia to Maine remained quiet.

Marshall Plan cargo, ordinary commercial export freight and overseas mail continued to jam the ports. Thousands of workers engaged in export-import operations for railroads, trucking firms and shipping companies were temporarily out of jobs.

Overtime Pay Discussed

The major issue of the walkout has been demands of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association for sharp wage rises.

But Margolis indicated today much attention in the initial conferences was being concentrated on overtime pay.

Experts from the wages and hours division of the United States Labor Department explained legal provisions on overtime at the first bargaining session.

The Supreme Court held last June that longshoremen were entitled to "overtime on overtime" when they work over 40 hours a week at night or on weekends.

The employers have opposed this on the grounds it resulted in prohibitive pay scales.

Halifax continued to be a mecca for transatlantic passenger liners because of the strike.

The Cunard White Star Line's Media, which sailed from Liverpool November 14, was ordered to dock at Halifax Sunday. The vessel first went to St. John New Brunswick, but Joseph P. Ryan, ILA president, said the longshoremen there refused to handle her.

Ryan has threatened reprisals against the Cunard Line because of its use of Halifax in the strike.

However, the Canadian labor department today told the leader of the dock workers at Halifax that he personally would be fined $100 a day for every day his men did not work and the union would forfeit $1000 each day.

The basic straight-time rate of pay for the New York longshoremen now is $1.75 an hour on the day shift, $2.62½ at night and on weekends. Ryan and other union leaders negotiated a settlement calling for increases to $1.85 and $2.77½ respectively but this was rejected by the ILA membership, starting the walkout.

The union now demands $2.25 for daytime work and $3.37½ for nights and weekends.

Christmas Trees Worth $45,000 Caught in Strike

Philadelphia, Nov. 19 (AP).—A ship load of Christmas trees got caught in the longshoremen's strike today.

The $45,000 cargo arrived from St. John's, Newfoundland, but there wasn't anybody on hand to do the unloading.

The Smiling Jim Potato Co., which was to receive the trees for distribution in six States, said it would try to get union permission to hire longshoremen on its own terms.

Company Manager Sol Treadwell said the trees must be unloaded shortly or the heat of the ship's hold will ruin them.

$7,764,000 Approved By ECA for Tobacco

Among purchases approved yesterday by the Economic Cooperation Administration was $7,764,000 worth of American tobacco.

The announcement listed 65 metric tons of tobacco valued at $45,000 for Iceland and, without giving volumes involved, included these allotments: Ireland, $3,116,000 worth for delivery this quarter, $1,615,000 worth in the first quarter of 1949 and $128,000 worth in the second quarter of 1949; and the Netherlands, $2,860,000 worth for delivery this quarter and next.

Devers, Quesada Separating After Good Integration Job

Old Point Comfort, Va., Nov. 19 (AP).—Two men who have done much toward integration of the Nation's air and ground arms at the operational level part company this week.

They are Gen. Jacob L. Devers, chief of the Army field forces and Lieut. Gen. Elwood R. Quesada, commanding general of the Tactical Air Command of the United States Air Force.

Quesada leaves his headquarters at Langley Air Force Base this week for Washington to head up the Air Force reserve program. Devers' headquarters is at Fort Monroe.

Their selection of headquarters within spittin' distance of each other two years ago was no coincidence, they disclosed in a joint interview today.

At Eisenhower's Direction

They said Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, then Chief of Staff, directed them to establish adjacent headquarters in order to expedite their task of welding air and ground elements into a smooth team.

"This proximity has helped us to cut red tape," Quesada said.

"Right," Devers agreed. "It has eliminated the necessity of taking everything to the Pentagon and has enabled us to solve problems at our own level."

So closely have they worked together, Quesada explained, that "neither General Devers nor I has developed a plan and then asked the other to concur. Instead, we conceived and developed plans together."

Working closely with Devers and Quesada in the planning of combined operations is Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, commander in chief of the Atlantic Fleet, whose headquarters is across Hampton Roads at Norfolk.

Work on Maneuvers Plan

The three are now giving attention to a directive from the joint chiefs of staff ordering them to draft a program of combined maneuvers for 1950.

"Planning these exercises together broadens our base of thinking," Devers said. He and Quesada reported "real progress" in a campaign to have officers and men subordinate their own branch of the armed forces to the attainment of common objectives.

Devers said "achieving common objectives initially was hampered because ground arms personnel failed to fully appreciate the objectives, missions and methods of other services, and other services likewise failed to fully understand the ground role in overall operations.

"Human nature being what it is, it was natural for people of each service to overemphasize their importance in the overall picture, but we are gradually overcoming this."

Justices Hear Barmaid Appeal

By The Associated Press

A woman lawyer told the Supreme Court yesterday that Michigan is discriminating against barmaids.

Anne R. Davidow of Detroit blamed the Bartenders Union—strictly a male organization—in part for a 1945 Michigan law which allows a woman to tend bar in cities of over 50,000 population only if she is the wife or daughter of a man who owns the liquor establishment.

Miss Davidow (she uses her maiden name) said that State legislators' talk of "a grave social problem" left her cold.

"I can't see it," said Miss Davidow, who in private life is Mrs. Victor H. Seeger, mother of two children. "It might have been a problem 50 years ago when women didn't frequent bars."

Now, she said, women visit bars as much as men. "It may be good or bad," she added. "I don't know, but that's the way it is."

Justice Reed wanted to know whether the State law barred waitresses from liquor establishments. Miss Davidow said it doesn't, and she argued that makes the law even sillier. The law only applies to women who mix and pour drinks behind a bar.

"As far as a grave social problem is concerned, a waitress comes in much closer contact with a patron than a barmaid," she said.

The law was defended by Edmund E. Shepherd, Solicitor General of Michigan. He said the liquor traffic is not an activity which may be carried on as a matter of right, but one which may be prohibited entirely or permitted under such controls as the Legislature enacts.

"Suppose one agrees with you that it's rather silly legislation," Justice Jackson said to Miss Davidow. "How does it violate the Constitution?"

She answered that it violates constitutional guarantees against equal protection of the law and against depriving a person of his property without due process of law. She said that if a woman owns a bar, her daughter can't serve as barmaid, nor can the woman herself.

When Miss Davidow mentioned "the lobbies back of this thing," Justice Black asked her to be specific.

"The Bartenders Union," answered Miss Davidow. She said the union doesn't want any women members. She added that the women have their own organization, the Barmaids Union.

The case was appealed to the Supreme Court from a decision by a special three-judge Federal Court in Detroit which upheld the law.

Iran Seeking Loan From Export Bank

By The Associated Press

The Iranian government has sounded out the Export-Import Bank on its chances of getting a sizable American loan, diplomatic officials reported yesterday.

The Iranian Embassy inquired if the bank would be willing to lend part of 225 million dollars the Iranian government would like to spend on development purposes in the next seven years.

The Export-Import Bank, these informants said, suggested the Iranians submit specific projects outlining in detail the uses to which any loan funds would be put.

The Iranian government applied for a 250-million-dollar loan from the World Bank in 1946. This has not been granted.

U. S. Protests Egypt's Seizure of Ship Cargo

The State Department said yesterday the American consul at Port Said has made "energetic protests" against the Egyptian seizure of cargo from an American ship.

The Egyptians took 4000 bags of rice and 38 tractors from the freighter Flying Trader at Port Said yesterday. They claimed the cargo was bound for Israel. The State Department disputed this.

Egypt has set up a blockade against shipments to Israel. The United States has refused to recognize it.

Unless authorized by the Pope, the wearing of the vestment is restricted to certain occasions in the church year. The Pope, however, has granted special permission to Archbishop O'Boyle to wear the pallium for the mass.

Representatives of countries belonging to the Pan-American Union, United States Government officials, clergymen and lay people have been invited to attend the annual service, which has been held each year since 1909.

Instructor Tarr Seeks to Improve Radio Evangelism

A poorly arranged religious program is bad advertising for the church and worse than no program at all, according to E. W. Tarr, instructor in radio and speech at Washington Missionary College, Takoma Park.

In an attempt to provide better religious broadcasts, Tarr initiated a class in radio evangelism this year at the Seventh-Day Adventist institution. Ten men studying for the ministry are taking the course and learning the art of writing and producing for radio.

The group presents a dramatic program, "Calling All Youth" which is carried over WGAY, Silver Spring, at 9:45 a. m. Sunday. Each member has an opportunity to appear on the show and to coach outsiders for appearance on the air.

"In these times the minister must not be content with reaching the handful who attend his church," Tarr said. "He must utilize every modern invention which will help him to carry the gospel of peace to the thousands who would never step inside a church."

Choirs Will Sing Christmas Concert

The Affiliated Westminster Choirs of Washington will present a Christmas concert in Constitution Hall December 2 at 8:30 p. m. Human Rights To Be Topic of Council Parley

Policies of the churches in the field of human rights will be discussed at the biennial meeting of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America in Cincinnati December 1 to 3.

More than 500 church leaders from the United States and Canada are expected to attend the three-day meeting, according to Dr. Samuel McCrae Cavert, general secretary.

The meetings will mark the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the Federal Council in Philadelphia on December 2, 1908. The council today is composed of 22 Protestant communions and three Eastern Orthodox bodies.

Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, brother of Ohio Senator Robert A. Taft, will preside over the meetings. Taft, an Episcopalian, is the first layman elected to serve as president of the council.

Applications of the Religious Society of Friends of Philadelphia and the Romanian Orthodox Church in America for membership in the Federal Council will be acted upon at the meetings.

Six major issues of concern to the churches will be considered at section meetings and by the convention as a whole. These are: development of greater lay participation and leadership in the church, the ministry of the church to older people, plans for the united evangelistic advance, 1949-50, programs and policies in the field of human rights, responsibility of the churches in dealing with juvenile delinquency, and responsibility of American churches for displaced persons and overseas aid.

John Foster Dulles, Presbyterian layman and United States Delegate to the United Nations, and Leighton J. Stuart, American Ambassador to China, will speak on the international situation from the standpoint of the churches at a public meeting of the council on Thursday night. Taft will deliver his presidential address at the final session on Friday evening.

Alexandria Baptist Lists 2000 Members

First Baptist Church, Alexandria, last week received its 2000th member and at the same time inaugurated a double shift of Sunday services to serve its members.

Mrs. Grace T. Frix, 1221 Powhatan st., Alexandria, was congratulated by Dr. Ernest F. Campbell, the pastor, as the 2000th member. She transferred to Alexandria from Danville, Va.

Dr. Campbell said First Baptist is now the largest Protestant church in the city.

First Baptist was established in 1803 by Jeremiah Moore, who also organized First Baptist Church of Washington in 1802.

Moore, according to the story, was once jailed for preaching Baptist doctrine on the streets of Alexandria without a proper license.

The church has stood at the same location, 216 S. Washington st., since 1804, though there have been several different buildings. The present brick structure was built about 91 years ago, Dr. Campbell said.

During the Civil War the church was taken over by Federal forces for use as a hospital. In 1912, by an act of Congress, the church was paid for its use by the Army.

Since it was founded, the church has grown steadily. When Dr. Campbell came in 1941, it had about 1300 members and an annual budget of $20,000. This year the proposed budget is $106,330.

All debts on the present building were paid and the final mortgage burned in June this year. Now members are planning to raise $50,000 a year toward a goal of $250,000 for a new building. They hope to dedicate it in 1953 on the 150th anniversary of the founding.

In addition to the two Sunday morning services at 9:30 and 11 a. m., First Baptist has a Sunday school with 1400 members.

On Wednesdays "church night" is featured with supper at 6:30 p. m. and devotional service at 7:30 p. m., followed by committee and organizational meetings.

Church Builds Program on Family Theme

The fall and winter program at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 900 Massachusetts ave. nw., is built around the theme "The Family Worships at Church."

In keeping with this theme, a special family service will be held at 9 a. m. Sunday. Famlies have been invited to attend the service as a group, with boys and girls attending with their parents, instead of going to the usual separate services in the chapel.

Dr. John W. Rustin, pastor of the church, will preach on "This Is the Church" at 9 a. m. and 11:15 a. m. and the children's choirs of the kindergarten and primary departments will sing.

Emphasis in the entire church program has been upon the relationship between the church and home and family life all fall.

A visitation council of more than 200 volunteer workers called upon 2500 families in the church during early weeks of the year explaining what the church has to offer the family as a unit.

During October the first of a series of family nights, with recreation and fellowship for young and old was held for family groups. Plans for similar gatherings in the future are now being made.

Dr. Rustin will review "Cry, the Beloved Country" by Alan Patton at the regular 8 p. m. service Sunday. The Young Adult School for Christian Living will conclude a five-week series when Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, speaks on the World Council of Churches.

Architect Will Discuss New Synagogue Plans

Members of Tifereth Agudath Ohavay Sholom Congregation will present an entertainment at Ohev Sholom Congregation, 5th and I sts. nw., Sunday at 8 p. m.

Louis Abramson, New York architect, will discuss plans for the new synagogue to be erected by TAOS at 13th and Tuckerman st. nw. A play in Yiddish, Jewish folk songs, and liturgical selections will also be included on the program.

NEW ARLINGTON CHURCH—Bethel Evangelical and Reformed Church, 4347 Lee blvd., Arlington, which will be formally opened at services on Sunday, is shown in this drawing. The Rev. Lee A. Peeler, minister of the church, will lead a procession into the new building at 10:45 a. m. Sunday

Formal opening of the sanctuary of Bethel Evangelical and Reformed Church, 4347 Lee blvd., Arlington, Va., will take place at morning and evening services Sunday.

Organized in 1941 by the Rev. Lee A. Peeler, who has been pastor ever since, the congregation met for two years in Kate Waller Barrett School.

In 1943 the basement unit of the church was erected, and since that time it has served as a sanctuary and meeting place for the congregation.

Construction of the sanctuary was begun about a year ago. Although it is not now entirely completed, it will be used for services.

Dedication of the church building has been set for March 20, Mr. Peeler said. It is hoped that the building will be completed by that time, he added.

An educational wing west of the present structure will be added in the future. Total cost of the building to date, is about $85,000, Mr. Peeler said.

If the weather permits, a brief program formally opening the church will be held on the lawn at 10:45 a. m. Sunday. The minister and choir will then lead a procession into the new structure.

Mr. Peeler will speak on "Don't Look Back" at the opening service. At 3 p. m. Dr. Gottlieb Siegenthaler of Baltimore, president of the Potomac Synod of the Evangelical and Reformed Church will be the speaker.

The Arlington congregation is sponsored by the Board of National Missions of the Evangelical and Reformed Church, which grants an annual subsidy toward its support and has aided in the construction through loans and grants. The Rev. Paul Althouse of Frederick, Md., chairman of the Committee on National Missions of the Potomac Synod, will speak at the afternoon service.

'Potter and Clay' to Be Text

The Rev. Henry B. Wooding, minister of Eckington Presbyterian Church, North Capitol st. and Florida ave., will deliver a sermon on "The Potter and the Clay" on Sunday at 11 a. m. for the fortieth time in his career.

As a young man just out of college, Mr. Wooding heard a speaker refer to the text on the potter and the clay at a Bible conference at Keswick, England. The text later became one of his favorite Old Testament scriptures.

On entering the theological seminary at Chicago, Mr. Wooding was assigned to a mission church and built one of his sermons around the potter theme. The following year the congregation requested that he repeat the sermon.

He used the theme again when he went to his first church in Illinois, and later preached on it while in Scotland doing post-graduate work.

The sermon, always popular with his congregations, became an annual event. Each year he preached it to a packed church on the Sunday nearest the anniversary of the original presentation.

This year he will use the theme for the twenty-third time at Eckington church.

Foundry Methodist Plans Harvest Festival

A harvest season musical festival will be presented at 8 p. m. Sunday at Foundry Church, 16th and P sts. nw. At the 11 a. m. service Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, who is beginning his twenty-fifth year as pastor of Foundry Church, will preach on "Our Complexity and His Simplicity."

Mayflower Society To Attend All Souls'

Members of the Society of Mayflower Descendants will attend the 11 a. m. service at All Souls' Church (Unitarian), 16th and Harvard sts. nw., in observance of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of their organization.

Dr. A. Powell Davies, minister of the church, will preach on "The Soul of a Nation."

Church Organ To Be Dedicated

A newly installed pipe organ will be dedicated at St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, 1820 Connecticut ave. nw., Sunday, at 8 p. m.

Richard Dirksen, organist and choirmaster at Washington Cathedral, will present a recital on the new organ at the service.

Church Group Gives Scroll To Dr. Darby

Dr. William L. Darby, who for 18 years was executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, was presented with a testimonial of appreciation in the form of a scroll yesterday.

The presentation was made by Dr. Edward H. Pruden, minister of First Baptist Church, at a board of directors meeting of the federation.

The scroll reads, in part:

"As Dr. Darby leaves the Washington community, after nearly three decades of most faithful service, his fellow workers . . . express to him their profound gratitude and sincere wishes for the years ahead. His Christian life has been a blessing to all who knew him . . ."

Dr. Darby retired from the federation post in 1940 and assumed the position of secretary of the National Capital District, American Bible Society in the same year. He resigned this job October 1.

Dr. and Mrs. Darby will make their new home in Ogdensburg, N. Y., where their son is the high school principal.

He was a Veterans Administration chaplain at Los Angeles from 1946 until April of this year when he came to Washington with the Armed Services Commission. Headquarters of the commission is at the Lutheran Church Center, 736 Jackson pl. nw.

Area Hospital Council Views Move to Oust HSA With Favor

ness to sit down and discuss across the conference table our problems, as is indicated by the following resolution adopted by the Hospital Council on October 28:

"Moved, that the Council, after careful consideration, approves in principle the recommendation of various hospitals that the functions of admissions, certifications, and collections of Community Chest patients should be returned to the hospitals, and that the Council should eventually undertake, for the hospitals, other functions of the Hospital Service Agency, and that the administrative committee of the Council should be authorized to meet with a similar committee from the Hospital Service Agency for further discussions."

Despite the turn of events, Bryant said yesterday, Council discussions with HSA and the Community Chest "will go forward."

Willard C. Smith, HSA director, yesterday said his organization had received no special communication on the Council resolution. He said, however, he had been given a copy of the Council meeting minutes, which contained the resolution.

He deplored any move to return HSA functions to the hospitals, declaring that such would result "in further burdens to our Community Chest agencies."

"The hospital's main concern would naturally be to collect as much as possible from semi-indigent patients," he said. "In many cases, this would only force the families to seek other aid from the other Community Chest agencies."

One of the chief arguments used by those favoring discontinuance of HSA is the annual operation's cost of the agency, with its force of 29-full-time and three part-time employes. Estimated operations costs for 1949 were set at $120,000, Smith said.

To counterbalance this, he said, the agency has estimated it will collect in partial payments a total of $350,000 for the year, of which the difference, or $230,000, will be added to the $850,000 allocated by the Community Chest for distribution to the hospitals.

Hospital administrators favoring ousting HSA say that even if they are less successful than the agency in billing the semi-indigents the loss differential would not amount to HSA operation costs.

HSA has long been under fire. In 1946, Dr. Claude W. Munger of New York, in his survey of Washington hospitals, termed the agency "a misfit in the hospital system," and recommended its discontinuance. Later, in a separate report of the Washington Metropolitan Health Council, it was designated "a valuable service." That same year, the Hospital Council gave the agency a vote of confidence.

Yesterday's developments led to a further disclosure that Garfield Hospital has tightened up its admissions requirements. Indigents are being admitted solely in emergency cases, and semi-indigents are being more carefully screened, the hospital officials admitted.

One result of the economy move, said Arkell Cook, hospital administrator, is that 86 hospital beds (36 of them in wards) that normally would be open this season are now closed. The beds, he said, were closed during the summer, low-census season, and not reopened. He also blamed an acute shortage of nurses for restricting operations.

Last November, Cook said, Garfield had a daily average of 83 HSA-certified and indigent patients in its beds. By comparison, he said, the hospital yesterday had 19 HSA patients and no "tax-eligible" indigents.

Man Swallows Cigar as Truck Hits His Car

New York, Nov. 19 (U.P.).—John Hainersky, 35, New Suffolk, N. Y., suffered painful burns on his tonsils today in a minor traffic mishap.

Kainersky stopped his automobile on a street in Long Island City to see what was wrong with his motor. He was smoking a cigar.

A truck struck Kainersky's automobile from the rear. He swallowed the cigar.

Dr. Robert Schwinger came driving by. He removed the stogie and took Kainersky to St. John's Hospital where his condition was diagnosed as not serious. Kainersky said he would keep right on smoking cigars.

New Electronic Fire Detector Shown Here

A new electronic device for detecting fires in hotels and other multi-unit establishments was demonstrated here yesterday by its inventors and manufacturers.

The system, which sounds an alarm and signals the location of undue temperature rises, was described as designed "to prevent such tragedies as the LaSalle Hotel fire in Chicago and the Winecoff Hotel disaster in Atlanta.

Its makers said the system even polices itself by first verifying fire origin before sounding the bell alarm.

The system consists of a central control panel linked by electrical circuits to special thermostats. These thermostats, separately adjusted to the varying temperatures of the rooms guarded, are set to activate electronic impulses at heat 30 or more degrees above the adjusted level.

The impulese start another current flow at a five-second interval to check the trouble origin. Thus, if the tripping mechanism was started by anything but overheating the instrument does not sound its fire alarm, but flashes a "trouble" light.

Systems for small hotels are designed to signal the alarm and locate the room where the fire occurs. In larger installations, the main unit shows the floor of fire report, and other units at the floor levels designate the room number of the fire.

The inventors are Kenneth M. Lord, of Canandaigua, N. Y., and Philip N. Bredesen, of Geneva, N. Y.

For District

Permanent Fast Time Law Sought

Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.), will ask the new Congress to let Washington have daylight saving time every summer.

Senator McGrath said yesterday he will reintroduce his bill that would give the District Commissioners permanent authority to order the daylight saving time annually.

The bill would do away with what has become an annual race—against time—to get special legislation on the books so that Washington could synchronize its clocks with those of other major cities.

For the past two summers laws were passed each permitting District daylight saving time for one summer only.

Both years the laws went on the books after the time shift had been made by other cities.

McGrath was joined early this year by Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.) in sponsoring the legislation that would do away with annual congressional handling of the District daylight saving time question, and let the Commissioners do it on their own.

With Shirley Povich

ANNAPOLIS, MD., NOV. 19.—Have a care, there, if you're tempted to smirk at the caliber of Navy's football team. Sure, the Navy varsity hasn't won a game all season but varsity football isn't the only kind they play at the Naval Academy. Ever hear of the Navy 150-pounders? Those kids are the pride of the school on the Severn.

POVICH

Navy's 150-pounders are hot stuff. Haven't been licked in three seasons. They're set to make it 17 straight and belt the University of Illinois 150-pounders out of their shoes tomorrow afternoon in Thompson Stadium here. There are Navy people who wouldn't walk across the street to watch the varsity play but would go to the earth's other end to see the 150-pounders perform.

They take their 150-pounders seriously at Annapolis. Athletic Director Tom Hamilton, who proceeds on the theory that football training is invaluable to combat and argues that a 150-pound skipper can win battles as well as a 200-pounder, has provided Navy's lightweight team with a $25,000-a-year coaching staff. Two full commanders, a lieutenant commander, a senior lieutenant and a midshipman officer, no less, compromise the 150-pounders coaching brains.

THEY DO EVERYTHING the varsity does, and apparently better, on a smaller scale. No slow man makes the 150-pound team. The line's as fast as the backfield. Guards go down to cover punts as fast as the ends or backs. Left Halfback Jim Murray is the Academy's sprint champion. If the varsity had the counterpart of 150-pound Fullback Paul Roman, it would have an All-American.

This season the Navy kids kicked off the Pennsylvania 150-pounders, 16-12; Cornell, 28-0, and Villanova, 40-0. They took on Princeton's unbeaten lightweights a couple of weeks ago and slapped them down, 33-0. Last week it was Rutgers, 25-7. Comdr. "Red" Coward, the head coach, who played end under Hamilton, has a bigger squad numerically than the Varsity coaches.

There's no cheating on the weights. Every kid has to weigh in at 150 or less on Thursday afternoon. On the day of the game, he has to weigh in again in the presence of the other team's coach and the umpire, and must make 154 pounds. If they make the team, they win a Navy "N," a six-inch letter that from a distance looks as important on a sweater as a nine-inch Varsity "N."

THE SUCCESS of Navy's 150-pounders may provide the answer to what's wrong with the football at the Academy. No school subsidizes or proselytes 150-pound players, and in that kind of a league Navy more than holds its own. If Varsity football were on the same basis, there would be no crisis at the Academy, but Navy lags behind in the competition for Varsity material.

Commander Coward and his assistants, Mac McDaniel, Dave Busle, Willie Schlacks and Ed Golding, have the dream job. Their kids are so crazy to play football that "we just have to harness 'em and let 'em romp," says Coward. "They're the kids who were big-shot stars in high school and simply didn't have the weight to bruise it out with the big Varsity guys. They're no green peas. They're smart football players and they play smart football."

Eddie Briggs, the punter, has an average as good as anybody on the varsity. The team captain, "Ham" Stromberg, wasn't quite hefty enough for the varsity but he boiled down from 176 to 145 and plays guard for the 150-pounders. Wayne Smith, another guard, weighs only 136 but he knows how to handle himself. He ought to—he's the intercollegiate lightweight wrestling champion.

NAVY'S PROUD of the whole lightweight football business. The kids who are playing it are the boys who would have been driven into soccer or other minor sports if it weren't for the 150-pound football program. And they play solid football, no harum-scarum stuff. Coward has given them only 12 running plays and the kids themselves are chagrined if every play doesn't go to a touchdown. Halfback Murray has a 10.6 average every time he carries the ball.

There have been varsity players on the light side who, not content with playing a few minutes of football, have chucked the whole varsity business, boiled down a bit and found it more fun playing a lot of football with the 150-pounders. Herm Bushman, a half-pint T-formation quarterback who isn't tall enough to work behind the center in the varsity T, has whipped 62.5 per cent of his passes to completion for the 150-pounders.

All season long the coaches have been bragging of their kids' speed. Today they lamented it. Commander Coward and his assistants knew the score as practice drew to a close. This was the last day's workout before the final game. Traditionally the kids toss the coaches into the river in a last-practice ritual. Coward and his staff made a run for it, but it was useless. One by one they were overhauled and dunked in the Severn, fully clothed. The kids were nice about it, though, they helped 'em out of the river.

Terps All Set Except For Tatum's Sacroiliac

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Nashville, Tenn., Nov 19.—All that stands between Maryland and victory over Vanderbilt here tomorrow is the condition of Coach Jim Tatum's sacroiliac.

At a late hour tonight, Mr. Tatum's aching back wasn't aching at all and that's not good for Maryland. Last year down here, Tatum's somewhat famous sacroiliac came out of whack on the eve of the game and his Terrapins won the struggle, 20-7.

Nevertheless, if you're a Maryland man and believe in omens, there were still plenty of good signs for the Terps in Nashville tonight.

For instance—Jimmy Larue and Johnny Idzik, costars of last year's upset, occupy the same hotel rooms they did in 1947; ditto Assistant Coaches Jim Meade and George Barclay. Miss Anne Murray, of Pittsburgh, an airline hostess who accompanied the Terps here last year, rejoined the squad today for the flight down from Washington.

Records Favor Terps

Also, like last year, the trip down was so rough that one Washington newspaperman, known for his carniverous appetite, again passed up a free meal. Then, too, Vanderbilt is favored again—by 14 points—and this suits the Terrapins to a split T.

Vanderbilt's record—in games won and lost—is not as impressive as Maryland's. The Commodores have won five, dropped a pair and tied one. The Terps have been beaten twice in eight starts.

In winning their last five outings against Kentucky, Yale, Auburn, LSU and Marshall, the Commodores have run up 212 points, but Kentucky is the only club in that list considered even a fair team. The other Commodore victims have been taking their bumps regularly.

While the Terps were losing to Duke and North Carolina, Vandy was taken by Ole Miss and Georgia Tech and tied by Alabama. The Commodores are making no secret of the fact they're out to dump the Terps for coming down here and whipping them last year, something Maryland wasn't supposed to do.

With the exception of Lu Gambino, both clubs have practically the same personnel as last year. Both Maryland and Vandy will miss Gambino tomorrow. The big guy was one of the big wheels of the Terp attack which produced the upset victory.

Vandy Has Triple Threats

Vanderbilt has a slew of triple-threat tailbacks—Jamie Wade, Lee Nalley (the country's leading punt returner), Dean Davidson and Bobby Berry ranking highest in Coach Red Sanders' estimation.

The Commodore line is as big as Maryland's—averaging about 220—but not as good, in the opinion of those who have seen both clubs play. The difference is Maryland Sophomore Tackle Ray Krouse, who really barreled into the Vandy backfield last year and who's an even better tackle today.

With one exception, the Maryland lineup will be the same. Johnny Idzik moves into the left-half spot Hubie Werner has been monopolizing. Vic Turyn, who believes he got all of the bad football out of his system in the Tar Heel debacle last Saturday, will again be the key to the T. Harry Bonk and Larue complete the backfield.

IN SHORT—it's a 3 p. m. (Washington time) ball game and every one of the 22,000 Dudley field seats has been sold . . . Vanderbilt has practiced for this game longer and harder than for any other . . . Don't count Maryland out of the Bowl (Gator, that is) yet. If they win tomorrow and thrash West Virginia next Saturday, it's not likely that the Terps will spend New Year's Day in College Park . . . or so is the belief anyway . . .

Ripe for Upsets

Many Teams Close Today, Await Bids

By John Chandler

New York, Nov. 19 (AP).—The 1948 football season ends for many of the Nation's major college teams tomorrow with some of them eyeing places in the Rose, Sugar, Cotton, Orange and other assorted bowls.

Everything should follow the script, with current conference big shots doing the expected and then sitting back to await telephone calls for the coveted New Year's Day jackpots.

So, with several long-standing rivals colliding, the situation is ripe for an upset or two.

California and Oregon, the Pacific Coast Conference leaders, and Northwestern of the Big Nine have been wearing Rose-colored glasses for weeks.

Eyes Cotton Bowl

Southern Methodist has an eye on half of Dallas' Cotton Bowl swag. Oklahoma or Kansas could be persuaded to enjoy Miami's Orange Bowl climate, along with Clemson. Tulane, Georgia, North Carolina and others wouldn't mind the crowds trying to jam into the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans.

Northwestern entertains Illinois at Evanston tomorrow, and a Wildcat victory will give them the Rose Bowl trip for sure. An Illinois upset, plus a Minnesota victory over Wisconsin, would scramble matters considerably.

Oregon meets Oregon State at Corvallis, while California and Stanford clash at Berkeley in two ancient West Coast rivalries. Oregon and Cal should win, leaving it up to the conference to vote which gets the Pasadena plum.

While Southern Methodist can't actually clinch the Southwest crown, the Mustangs can come might close if they can get by the Baylor Bears at Dallas. A Bear verdict would toss the conference into a three-way deadlock among S. M. U., Baylor and Texas.

Big Seven Title Fray

Another major battlefront is Lawrence, Kans., where Oklahoma meets Kansas in a Big Seven title Fray. Oklahoma can nail the championship by winning, but if Kansas upsets the Sooners the decision would be postponed until Kansas and Missouri tangle next week.

Clemson, undefeated and leading the Southern Conference, goes outside to meet Duquesne and should have no trouble. The big tussle in the Southern loop is slated for Chapel Hill, where Duke takes on unbeaten, but once-tied North Carolina.

Fast-traveling Georgia, unbeaten in Southeast Conference play, has a date with Furman before the "big one" next week with Georgia Tech. Tulane works out against Cincinnati in preparation for its annual fracas with Louisiana State, November 27.

One of the day's big attractions, Michigan and Ohio State before some 80,000 at Columbus, has no bowl bearings. Michigan, ranked No. 1 in the weekly Associated Press poll, is tops in the Big Nine, but can't go back to the Rose Bowl because of regulations.

Notre Dame, No. 2 in the poll, and Army, No. 3, are idle, awaiting clashes with Washington and Navy next Saturday.

Yale vs. Harvard

Penn State, which tied Southern Methodist in the Cotton Bowl last January 1, meets the tough Pitt Panthers at Pittsburgh in another of the day's important struggles. Penn State's only blemish is a tie with Michigan State, which plays Washington State at East Lansing.

Yale goes to Cambridge to play Harvard in their annual moss-draped ivy ritual, and Dartmouth is at Princeton in two of the East's main attractions. The Ivy League crown, however, won't be decided until Cornell and Penn meet Thanksgiving at Philadelphia.

Georgetown Choice With 15,000 Fans Expected

(See Rally Story, Page B-1)

Post Reporter

With all the pregame preparations and ballyhoo out of the way, Georgetown and George Washington square off 2 p. m. today at Griffith Stadium in the eighteenth renewal of their bitter 58-year-old rivalry.

Every indication points to today's meeting being as interesting as any in the never-dull series.

As usual, Georgetown is favored. For some unknown reason, this year it's by 13 points. However, an estimated 15,000 (and the crowd may near 20,000 if the weather's good) are expecting George Washington to wage its usual stubborn fight.

With good reason, many expect Bo Rowland's Colonials to score their first victory over Georgetown. Scoreless ties last year and in 1907 are the closest they've come.

The principal reason is GW's No. 1 offensive threat, Handy Andy Davis. Davis, a local boy from McKinley Tech, is the country's fourth leading back on total offense and its twelfth best passer.

Andy, only a freshman, has reached these heights with an undermanned squad that has scored only three victories against six defeats.

Gerogetown has a dazzling back of its own in Sophomore Billy Conn. Hampered by injuries that kept him out of the last two games and half of two others, Conn still has demonstrated his skill as a clever breakaway runner.

Without Conn and Babe Barnowski, lery little tailback who fractured a collarbone before the Tulsa game, Georgetown hasn't been able to measure up to rosy pre-season predictions.

Hagerty's Hoyas have had as even a season as you'll find. They've won three, lost the same

Marvin Flays 'Hoodlumism'

"Hoodlumism" threatens the athletic relations between George Washington and Georgetown, President Cloyd Heck Marvin of GW said last night.

He was referring to alleged student raids on the campuses of the two schools this week as a prelude to today's GW-Georgetown football game at Griffith Stadium.

Wednesday night, a group suspected of being Georgetown students did splatter "Hoya" on the four pillars which guard the entrance to GW's new million-dollar Lisner Auditorium. They also whitewashed the sidewalks and walls of other buildings.

On Thursday night, 40 GW supporters retaliated by painting up the statue of John Carrol on the Georgetown campus. In the process, they abducted two Georgetown students. The Georgetown boys were taken to a GW fraternity house where a thorough hair-cutting job was done on them.

Speaking at the dedication of a student office building at GW last night, Dr. Marvin said "hoodlumism of this nature doesn't go at a university like George Washington.

He said that if it continues, "GW will have to break off with Georgetown just as it did with Catholic U. a few years ago."

Harvard Favored Today

By Frank L. Dennis
Post Reporter

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 19.—Rain tonight which the forecaster said would continue Saturday improved Yale's chances for a football victory over Harvard, if the experts know what they are talking about.

Harvard has been installed by the gambler, as 6½ point favorite on the theory that neither team is very good but Yale is especially inept against speed. Harvard has speed, so ought to go well against Yale.

But the heavy rain means soggy underfooting at Soldier's Field in the sixty-fifth game between these rivals and Yale may be an even bet by kickoff time at 1:45. The coaches will have an especially keen interest in victory in this gme. Each is new to the head-coaching b iness, and each is an outlander at an Ivy college.

Art Valpey, from Michigan, teaches the single wing, having won three and lost four games this season.

Herman Hickman, hillbilly from Tennessee, teaches the T-formation he learned while line coach under Earl Blaik at Army. He has broken even in eight games.

A win would mean a successful season for either, and about 57,000 will jam the stadium to watch.

Yale's hopes rest largely on Levi Jackson, the jack-rabbity town boy; Tex Furse, a good passing quarterback, and Ferd Nadherny, a squat fullback. The line is small.

Harvard has a big line, with at least six good backs. Two of them Chip Gannon and Howard Moffie, are among the best in the East. So its anybody's ball game with Harvard seeking its first victory over Yale since 1941. Yale leads in series 37 to 21 with 6 ties.

N. C. Good in Soccer, Too

Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 19 (AP).—Playing in a driving rain, the university of North Carolina soccer squad claimed the unofficial Southern Conference title by defeating Washington and Lee, 4-1, on Fetzer Field today.

Caps After 8th in Row Here Tonight

The Washington Caps go after their eighth straight victory tonight at 8:45 when they face the Boston Celtics in a Basketball Association of America game at Uline Arena.

Philadelphia, Providence, Minneapolis, Rochester, Baltimore, Fort Wayne and New York have fallen in succession to Coach Red Auerbach's charges to contrast the Caps' dismal opening last year. They lost 7 of their first 11 games in 1947.

Six-foot, nine-inch Chick Halbert from the Warriors, and Gene Stump from Chicago, have been added to last year's Boston club. Stump ranks fourth among the league's scorers with 95 points in five games.

Rounding out the Celtics' squad are Mel Riebe, John Bach, Eddie Ehlers, Jack Garfinkel, Hank Beenders, Stan Noszky and Art Spector.

Starting for Washington will be Capt. Bob Feerick, Fred Scolari, Kleggie Hermsen, Bones McKinney and Sonny Hertzberg.

Bombers Rally To Beat Bullets

Chicago, Nov. 19 (AP).—The St. Louis Bombers poured in 30 points in a last-quarter surge tonight to come from behind and defeat the Baltimore Bullets, 82-72, in a Basketball Association of America game in Chicago Stadium.

In winning their fifth game in six starts, Ace Maugham was top scorer for the Bombers with 18 points. Simmons of the Bullets took game honors with 20 points.

Celtics Beat Jets

Boston, Nov. 19 (AP).—The Boston Celtics won their fourth consecutive home victory of the Basketball Association of America season at Boston Garden tonight as they turned back the Indianapolis Jets, 75-70.

For three periods it looked like a Boston runaway as they led, 20-10, 37-25 and then 53-39 at the start of the fourth period.

Lions Given 9-0 Lacing by New Haven

The New Haven Rambler sharpshooters fattened up last night with a 9-0 slaughter of the defenseless Washington Lions before a suffering Uline Arena crowd of 2678.

The first-string Ramblers' line, consisting of Bill Ramsden, Fred Brown and Jack Gordon, had a particularly gay evening, accounting for six goals as the slew-footed Lion back line was caught time after time in its own offensive territory. Left on his own, Lion Goalie Lew Crowdis was easy pickings for the Ramblers' fancy dans. Ramsden himself chalked up four goals.

By the end of the second period, the Ramblers had used successfully just about every scoring trick in the book, including the hat one by Left Wing Bill Ramsden. Fred Brown, Ramsden's wingmate, had stuck two in and their center, Jack Gordon had three assists.

Eight goals, in all, were ladled into the Washington net, largely because of the Ramblers' feinting Lew Crowdis clean out of his skin.

Yanks' Owner Says He Isn't Quitting Boston, at This Time

New York, Nov. 19 (AP).—Ted Collins, owner of the Boston Yanks in the National Football League, said today he had no intentions at this time of taking the team out of the Massachusetts city and definitely no idea of quitting pro football.

"I've been in Boston four years and lost exactly $720,000," he said, "and I admit I have talked to representatives from other cities but I have no intention now of quitting Boston. But when a man loses that kind of money, he must study the future."

He pointed out that Boston fans have access to more sports events than those of most other cities.

"Boston has two good baseball clubs, a major league hockey team, horse and dog racing tracks and tomorrow three major college football games are scheduled there—Iowa and Boston University, Yale and Harvard and St. Mary's and Boston College."

He added that his decision on his future plans might be delayed until the annual winter meeting of the National League next January.

Jimmy Bivins Charged With Kayoing Wife

Cleveland, Nov. 19 (U.P.).—Police today charged heavyweight challenger Jimmy Bivins with scoring a knockout punch on his wife.

Mrs. Dollie Bivins, 24, told police that her husband socked her and knocked her out because dinner wasn't ready when he came home. She was treated at the hospital for a minor concussion and bruises.

Police issued a warrant charging Bivins with the attack.

Bivins denied the story. He said, "she had threatened earlier to make trouble for me after the Louis fight. This must be what she meant."

Bivins fought a four-round no decision exhibition with Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis here Wednesday.

Hamburg, Germany, Nov. 19 (U.P.).—Lew Burston, Twentieth Century Club foreign representative, today signed heavyweight Hein Ten Hoff to the first German-American boxing contract since the war.

Burston arrived in Hamburg last night on a flying trip from New York and signed the German for two fights in Madison Square Garden.

number and tied one. Almost taking their .500 mark to the fourth decimal place, the Hoyas have scored 91 points and given up 90.

But, in all truth, records aren't too important when Georgetown and GW clash. It's a grim grudge battle and good Georgetown teams in the past have had narrow squeaks against GW teams that were thought to have no business being on the same field with them.

Coach Jack Hagerty, talking about them yesterday, expects a close game today. "It's going to be real tough and I expect breaks to decide it one way or the other," was his prediction.

Bo Rowland, whose season already is a success, had this comment: "We're going out to do the best we can and we hope it's enough to win."

The teams have come up for the game in startlingly different fashions. For the first time since he had his fine clubs in 1939-40, Hagerty didn't scrimmage his Hoyas all week. In fact, yesterday they took the day off.

"I felt that the boys were tired and the rest will help," explained Hagerty, "I'm trusting that they'll be raring to go against GW."

Rowland, on the other hand, gave his boys lots of rough work all week, winding up with a blackboard drill yesterday.

Rowland, who came to GW this season from Oklahoma City U., has surpassed Skip Stahley's record of winning only one game last year with three victories. His biggest feat was GW's stunning 20-12 upset over Virginia.

With only a 30-man squad, the smallest in the country playing a major schedule, GW has had more than its shart of manpower problems.

Two men—Center Tal Dredge and Guard Charley Gunner—won't even suit up tomorrow. And the condition of Stan Burak, ace blocking back, is questionable. Rowland will have to do his usual improvising with the linemen playing as defensive backs, etc.

Besides Baronowski, Georgetown lost the services of End Al Sarashevitz for the season. Tackle Tom Dolan, just about the Hoyas' best lineman, won't start but may see action.

Three Washingtonians are playing their last game for Georgetown. Backs Elmer Raba and Tony Beyer and Guard Jim Nalls. Other Hoya seniors include Ends George Benigni and Bill Dugan, Tackle George Antone and Fullback Jack O'Connor.

Four GW men close their collegiate careers, Fullbacks Joe Bernot and Bill Spangler, Halfback Dick Koester and End Hank Bartelloni.

Picou Once More Rides 3 Winners

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bowie, Md., Nov. 19.—Leading every jump of the way, J. H. Brinks' Lookout Son tossed mud at eight rivals and won the Whitehall Purse, featuring the Friday program here.

With Apprentice Benny Civitello doing the booting, the son of Sun Teddy finished two lengths in front of Brookmeade Stable's Dart By with the latter 2 lengths in advance of D. K. Kerr, jr's Flying Weather, the favorite in the field of nine.

Bowie's string of good weather ran out and the program was conducted under overcast skies that leaked intermittently throughout the afternoon. The track was sloppy when Lookout Son put on his show and the 4-year-old was clocked in a creditable 1:11 3/5 for 6 furlongs.

Backers of Lookout Son collected at the rate of $8.80 for each $2 investment as the chestnut gelding turned in his third victory in 15 starts this year and ran his 1948 earnings over the $10,000 mark.

Winner Eligible for Burch

Civitello took Lookout Son to the front at the break. Flying Weather tried to catch the leader and finally weakened from the effort and lost the place to the charge of Dart By.

The winner, along with Dart By, Flying Weather and Daily Dip, the first named fourth, is eligible for the $10,000 W. P. Burch Memorial Handicap here on November 24.

Apprentice Clarence Picou, the Texas boy who made good in New York and New England before coming here, had another big day. He got home on three winners to bring his total for the meeting to 12.

His first winner came in the third race aboard H. S. Horkheimer's Second Son, a $7.60 shot. In the sixth event, he coasted Brookmeade Stable's Chains to the wire eight lengths in front of the closest opposition at a $3 mutuel.

Jockey Martin Suspended

He also was successful in the seventh. A. T. Allen's Dixie Yank was under him and the youngster knew what to do, allowing the 4-year-old to lag early and then sending him through the stretch boldly. His growing legion of backers collected $13.80.

The program opened excitedly enough. H. Christensen's Black Tempest won, getting home in front of J. K. Wynkoop's One Only with Mrs. J. Purdey's Celebrity Miss third. Black Tempest, however, bore out on One Only in the stretch.

Apprentice Nick Shuk claimed a foul against the winner and the stewards allowed his objection, placing One Only first and Black Tempest second. Backers of the new winner took down a $23.60 mutuel. Those who coupled One Only with M. Seth's Black Goods, the $9.40 victor in the second race, collected a $129 daily double.

Jockey R. J. Martin, who rode Black Tempest, was suspended for the remainder of the meeting for foul riding.

CYO Intermediate Title Game Is Scheduled Today

Blessed Sacrament and St. Anthony's, the two sectional leaders in the junior division of the Catholic Youth Organization football league, will meet for the division championship at Griffith Stadium on November 28.

The game will precede the St. Johns-Gonzaga prep school playoff. Both Blessed Sacrament and St. Anthony's are undefeated, owning identical 6-0 records.

Only one other C. Y. O. title remains in doubt, the first-round championship in the intermediate division. This will be decided today in a game between St. Francis de Sales and Holy Comforter on the Ellipse. The second-round intermediate title went to Holy Comforter.

Mt. Vernon Wins From Culpeper

Nothing to Cheer About

Rome, Nov. 19 (U.P.).—Italian film censors announced today that the official film of the 1948 Olympic games had been banned throughout the nation because it did not show any of Italy's 14 victories.

Rain Puts Off Central-Western Contest Until Monday, 7 Games Scheduled Today

St. John's, Calvert Hall Head List

Central's expected clinching of the interhigh football championship was put off by yesterday's rain until Monday.

The unbeaten Vikings will entertain thrice-beaten Western in their scheduled finale Monday. And Coolidge will invade Tech and Roosevelt will journey to Wilson in other league games postponed until Monday.

Seven games are on today's scholastic calendar, four of them important.

St. John's, a leading candidate to represent the prep schools in the District championshp game despite its record of one win in seven games, meets Calvert Hall of Baltimore at Bullis field. Kickoff is 2:15 p. m., with Calvert Hall favored to cop its sixth win in eight games.

Episcopal of Alexandria travels to Woodberry Forest (Va.) Prep to meet that school for the forty-seventh time. Episcopal has won 21 times, Woodberry Forest 23, two games having resulted in ties. Episcopal is the favorite.

The Montgomery County championship is at stake at College Park when Bethesda-Chevy Chase meets Montgomery-Blair at 2 p. m. Bethesda is unbeaten and tied once, while Blair has a 7-2 record. Paced by Passer Herbie Spain, Bethesda should win the game and title.

Once-beaten Bullis invades Annapolis to play the unbeaten Navy Plebes at 12:30 p. m.

Fairfax Wins, 12-6

Frederick, Md., Nov. 19 (AP).—Fairfax (Va.) High School gridders trailing 6-0 at half-time, nosed Frederick High here, 12-6, this afternoon in the mud.

Frederick scored first when Dick Dudderar heaved a 22-yard pass to Bum Wagner with the latter racing 11 yards to score.

In the third period, Bud King of Fairfax evened the count by snagging a short pass from Skinny Saffer down the middle and zigzagging the remaining 32 yards.

Fairfax's winning touchdown did not come until late in the final period. Terry Cannon who had played an excellent game all afternoon, bucked across from the seven.

Touchdowns—Wagner, Saffer.

Hoya Frosh Beat GW, 6-0

In what the Hoyas hope is a preview of today's big game, the Georgetown Frosh defeated George Washington Frosh, 6-0, in a quagmire at the Hilltop yesterday.

Terry Murphy sliced off tackle for 5 yards and the winning score with the fourth quarter five minutes old. The touchdown culminated an 80-yard march in which Murphy and Warren McFague, standout runner, did most of the gaining.

The Colonial yearlings, though hampered by a ground fog that rolled across the muddy field, managed to get under way late in the game on passes by Lou Ciarrocca and Bob Cilento.

But Fullback Bill Shaw tossed one that was intercepted on the Hoya 35 by Quarterback Bob Deacon. And that decided the issue.

George Washington's freshmen had previous victories over Virginia Frosh, 13-6, and Montgomery Junior College, 14-0. They lost to Navy Plebes, 35-6, and Maryland Frosh, 26-6.

The Hoya Frosh defeated Montgomery, 51-0; Baltimore City College, 33-13, and lost to Augusta Military, 9-6; Maryland Frosh, 20-14; Temple Frosh, 20-14, and Bullis, 42-0.

Anacostia Has It Easy, 26 to 13

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 19.—Anacostia High gridmen of Washington, D. C., romped to a 26-13 triumph over James Monroe High in a muddy game here today.

Bill Butler's 60-yard sprint opened scoring for the winners, after which Bob Allwine blocked a punt for a safety, Bob Mitchell ran 20 yards for one touchdown and took a pass from Butler for another, and Charlie Woodward closed out scoring on the receiving end of a 32-yard loss from Butler.

James Monroe was unable to tally until the third period when Dick Hall broke through for a 65-yard touchdown dash, and Charlie Harding converted. A Harding to Bill Layton pass was good for 72 yards and the hosts' final points.

Anacostia: Touchdowns — Butler, Mitchell (2), Woodward. Safety — Allwine (blocked punt).
Monroe: Touchdowns—Hall, Layton. Extra point—Harding.

Richard Montgomery Defeats Gaithersburg

Richard Montgomery of Rockville defeated Gaithersburg, 19-2, yesterday at the Richard-Montgomery field in a sea of mud.

Buddy Briscoe ran 80 yards for the first touchdown, Jimmy King plunged 10 yards for the second and Paul Violette circled end 32 yards for the third.

Catholic Host To Lock Haven

Outweighed and undermanned, Catholic University's doughty Cardinals are given only a slight chance to end the season with a victory as they line up against Lock Haven State Teachers' College this afternoon at Brookland Stadium.

Playing in the Pennsylvania Teachers' College League, the Bald Eagles have won five of nine games this year. Two of their losses have been to unbeaten West Liberty State and Bloomsburg. Their line, peppered with 200-pounders, is king-sized compared to the little Cardinals.

Of some cheer to Coach Tom Chisari has been the news that Joe Mauiri's leg injury is repaired and that Mauiri will be in shape to play. Mauiri, a triple-threat back, has been most helpful this year when he was whole.

The rest of the team is in good condition; especially in spirit. And if spirit can do something about those burly Bald Eagle linemen, the Cardinals may spring a surprise.

Bullets Trade John Mahnken

Baltimore, Nov. 19 (AP).—The defending champion Baltimore Bullets of the Basketball Association of America today traded one big center for two smaller players.

The Bullets, trailing badly in the Eastern Division, swapped 6-foot 8-inch John Mahnken for Fred Lewis and Hal Tidrick of Indianapolis. The Bullets have won only two of seven games this season.

Mahnken was obtained during the off-season in a trade with the Washington Capitols for Kleggie Hermsen.

Both Lewis and Tidrick are 2 inches over 6 feet. Coach Buddy Jeanette has been after Lewis, who the Bullet coach considers the best shot in pro basketball, for a year. Lewis played with Sheboygan in the National Basketball League last season.

Bowie, Md., Nov. 19 (AP).—The stewards announced that Jockey R. J. Martin, who rode the disqualified winner of the first race, Black Tempest, has been suspended for remainder of the meeting.

Against Brummett Today

Hampden-Sydney's Chewning Bids for Little All-America

Richmond, Va., Nov. 19.—A couple of left halfbacks bidding for Little All-American honors will face each other tomorrow when Hampden-Sydney's Tigers tangle with Centre College's Colonels at Danville, Ky.

For the Tigers, Lynn Chewning is the man. A 22-year-old 205-pound 10-second man, Chewning is the Nation's sixth highest scorer with 72 points, excelling in running and kicking. A former V. M. I. and Navy player, he was All-Southern at V. M. I.

For Centre, the star is Joe Brummett, described as one of the most elusive runners Kentucky has ever produced. Weighing in at 160 pounds, Brummett is a defensive as well as an offensive star who can kick, pass and run.

The two successful small college elevens also will have a lot more in common. Both are enjoying their most rewarding seasons in a long, long time. Hampden-Sydney's record of five wins, two losses and a tie is a shade better than Centre's mark of four wins and three defeats.

But to get back to Chewning—Lynn has taken the lead among small colleges in kicking, with an impressive average of 44.2 yards on 40 punts.

He moved up to first place after his fine exhibition against Randolph-Macon last week in which one of his punts went for 75 yards and he had a 46.8 yard average for eight punts.

Chewing has been a constant threat as a punter since his freshman days in 1945 with the Virginia Military Institute where he lead the Southern Conference in scoring with 60 points and made the All-Southern Conference, All-State teams and was honorable mention in the Associated Press selection.

While playing as a member of the Navy football team in 1946 Chewning was one of the better punters of the team. "The Horse," as he is called by Tiger teammates, almost caused one of the biggest upsets of the season with his 31-yard run to the Army 3 in the last seconds of the annual classic.

He is at present leading Virginia State scorers with 72 points, far in front of his nearest rival, Jack Cloud of William and Mary who has tallied 32 points.

Chewning returned a punt 80 yards against Wofford in what would have been the game-winning run, but it was called back for roughing the kicker and the game ended in a 6-6 tie.

Against Emory and Henry, Chewning scored all three touchdowns as the Tigers won 19-13. His first score was a 62-yard run on the third play of the game. In his best game, against Gallaudet, he played approximately one quarter and scored three of the team's five touchdowns, one on an 85-yard run with an intercepted pass. He made one kick 71 yards which rolled into the end zone.

The record speaks for itself. Last year when "The Horse" broke his collarbone in the first few minutes of the opening game on a 45-yard run against Wofford the Tigers floundered through six games without scoring.

Bowl Dust

Sugar Delays Its Selection; Nevada Accepts Harbor Bid

New Orleans, Nov. 19 (AP).—Sugar Bowl fans will wait at least one more week or longer before they learn who'll be playing whom on January 1.

It is possible that an announcement might be made soon after the final scores are in on November 27, but Frank Schaub, president of the sponsoring New Orleans Mid-Winter Sports Association, said today it will not be forthcoming any earlier. For one thing, the Southeastern Conference will not finish its schedule until November 27 and the circuit has a rule barring bowl talk until the end of its season.

Nevada in Harbor Bowl

San Diego, Calif., Nov. 19 (AP).—Once-beaten University of Nevada has accepted a bid to play in the Harbor Bowl football game here New Year's Day, Ross K. O'Leno, chairman of the Harbor Bowl Commission, announced last night.

Acceptance of the bid was made in Reno by the Wolfpack Coach Joe Sheesketski, whose eleven lost its only game of the season two weeks ago, a 14-0 upset at the hands of Santa Clara.

An opponent for Nevada has not been elected yet.

No Bowl-ing

Institute, W. Va., Nov. 19 (AP). West Virginia State College has declined an invitation to send its football squad to the Vulcan Bowl at Birmingham, Ala., next January 1, it was announced today.

Broncs Get Bid

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 19 (AP). Holt Rast, Dixie Bowl general manager, said today Santa Clara has been given a "routine feeler." Wake Forst last week accepted a bid to play here.

Tar Heels Meet Tough Duke Today

Richmond, Va., Nov. 19 (AP).—Intra-conference squabbles will be short on quantity but long on quality tomorrow on the Southern Conference football front.

Just two tussles between circuit foes are on the card.

The headliner, of course, will be the traditional family affair between North Carolina's Tar Heels and the Duke Blue Devils before an estimated 44,000 fans at Chapel Hill.

Bob Kennedy, reserve fullback until recently, is due to get the starting call at wingback for Carolina, which will be protecting its chances for a post-season bowl bid against the dangerous Blue Devils. The Tar Heels rule two-touchdown favorites, but will be batting up against what Carolina scouts term the best line they've had to face all season.

North Carolina State's visit to William and Mary provides the other half of the intra-circuit card. Injuries may play a key role in this one.

W. & M. Is Favorite

William and Mary, a one-touchdown choice, has been weakened by the loss by injury of Halfbacks Buddy Lex and Henry Blanc. The Wolfpack, boasting one of the South's finest lines, will be without the services of Guard Ralph Burnett and Tackle Fred Beaver as well as Wingback Gordon Goodman.

Six other conference elevens get into action tomorrow against outside opposition. Two major tests for conferences elevens are on the schedule. Maryland meets Vanderbilt and Clemson, regarded now as a shoo-in for the conference title, tangles with Duquesne at Homecoming.

Furman and The Citadel go out of their class against Southeastern Conference foes. The Hurricane takes on Georgia while the Bulldogs engage Georgia Tech.

In other games, Washington and Lee is at Delaware and George Washington plays host to Georgetown.

Gage's Injury Slow Healing

Duke worked on offense and defense in a long session at Durham. N. C. State brushed up on kicking and the timing of plays preparatory to leaving this afternoon for Williamsburg.

Clemson finished its drills for Duquesne in top physical shape. Tailback Bobby Gage, the Tigers' triple-threat weapon, still was troubled by a leg injury suffered two weeks ago.

Mack, Veeck Make No Deal

Philadelphia, Nov. 19 (AP).—Bill Veeck, president of the World Champion Cleveland Indians, failed today in an effort to obtain one of the Philadelphia Athletics top pitchers from Connie Mack.

Connie, although in the market for infield and outfield strength, said not one of his pitchers is up for sale or trade.

"Furthermore," he added "I have money to spend. If Mr. Veeck wants to sell me some of his players, I'll do business with him."

Veeck mentioned on his trading or selling list: Ray Boone, hard-hitting infielder; Bobby Wilson, another youngster highly regarded as a shortstop; Johnny Berardino, veteran second baseman; Al Clark, infielder-outfielder; Bob Kennedy, another player who can play the outfield or infield and Walter Judnich, obtained by the Indians from the St. Louis Browns last season.

Gallaudet Plays Washington

Gallaudet plays its homecoming game today against Washington College minus two thirds of the left side of its first string line.

Burt Poss, Gallaudet's best defensive end, is definitely out with a torn muscle in his side. Joining him on the sidelines will be Fred Collins, the regular left tackle, who has the best record of recovered fumbles on the team. Collins has a broken bone in his left hand.

Of Navy's Future

Bullis-Plebe Game Today Is Preview

An "intramural" football game of considerable interest today pairs the Navy Plebes and the future Navy Plebes of Bullis Academy at Annapolis.

No fewer than 18 members of the Bullis squad, including the whole first team, are ticketed for the June 1949 class of Navy Plebes, where it may be reasonably presumed they'll be invited out for the team.

Only a successful completion of the stiff Navy entrance exam stands ahead of them.

Thus an observer at today's game can get a line on a good chunk of Navy football material as far ahead as 1953. And a pleasant look it will be for the suffering partisans of Middie football, no matter who wins.

Bullis, a perennial prep school titan, has lost only one game in two years, that one 40-20 to the Army Plebes earlier this year. The string includes a 14-10 victory over the Middie yearlings last year. Eight members of that victorious Bullis team are pretty important people on this year's unbeaten Plebe team.

Among them is Quarterback Mike Sorrentino, the man of distinction for the Plebes, who is considered a sure shot for the Varsity next year. Whether he, Bill Steele, another outstanding Bullis grad, or Bob Dover or Ted Kukowski, Bullis' strong men, stand out today, it doesn't mater too much. They're all part of the Navy's rearmament program.

Middie 150-Pounders Take on Illinois

Navy's 150-pounders share this afternoon's program at Thompson Stadium with a game against the Illinois diminutives. The academy's little men are red hot, having won all of the 16 games they've played in three years of competition.

Eagles Open With Alumni

American University's basketball team, looking very much like the one which last year won 17 out of 28, opens its 1948-49 season tonight against the alumni at its own gym.

Eight members of the 1947-48 Eagles team are back, and are strengthened by the addition of Eddie Moffatt of Bradford, Pa.

Eddie's younger brother, Johnny, is one of the stars of the George Washington team. Although Eddie packs 220 pounds on his 6-foot, 2-inch frame, American U. Coach Staff Cassell calls him the fastest man on the squad.

Three other Bradford, Pa., boys are on the Eagles' team, including veterans Roy Ishman, Freddie Fling and Ralph Benson. Other holdovers are Johnny Wakefield, Bonnie Garshag, Bob Lamon, Jackie Near and Jim Kranking.

Lamon, former Eastern High ace, was the leading scorer last season. Six-foot, six-inch Garshag, a Brooklyn native, is the tallest member of the team.

Playing for the alumni will be Dutch Schulze, Bart Fugler, Bing Byham, Moe Brown, Bob Nugent, Charlie Kligman, Howard Hudson, Oscar Sells and Ev Palmer. A dinner will precede the game. At halftime, a new scoreboard will be dedicated. And after the game, a dance will take place.

Leo Must Explain Fitz's Signing To Chandler

Cincinnati, Nov. 19 (AP).—Leo Durocher, who now manages the New York Giants, is going to have to explain to Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler how he signed fat Freddie Fitzsimmons as coach.

A source close to the commissioner, who suspended Lippy for the 1947 season on the grounds that his conduct was detrimental to baseball, told of the former Brooklyn bad boy being in the grease.

Chandler wants to know why Fitzsimmons' appointment as a coach was announced when he still was under contract to the Boston Braves.

Durocher, Fat Freddie and officials of the Giants will be invited to tell the story to Chandler at the meeting of baseball heads in Chicago next month.

Insofar as the commissioner's official announcements are concerned, they still do not have Fitzsimmons' release by the Braves.

'Missing' Rocky Missing Again

New York, Nov. 19 (AP).—Rocky Graziano, the former middleweight champion, arrived here today after disappearing from his California training quarters. Then he disappeared all over again.

Irving Cohen, his manager, said he hadn't talked with Rocky, but had learned that the fighter had been at his home briefly and then left without saying where he was going.

Graziano was on the West Coast for a fight with Fred Apostoli, another former middleweight champ, at Oakland, December 1. He went for a walk yesterday morning. When he didn't return it was learned he had taken a plane home.

This is now a closed chapter. I am proud to have Captain Conroy in the department"

Rescuers Seek Snowbound Bride in Hills

Junction, Utah, Nov. 19 (U.P.).—A horseback rescue party tonight rode into a lofty mountain pass to rescue a California bride, snowbound since Wednesday noon while returning from her honeymoon.

Richard Giovannavazzi, young Marine Corps veteran of Los Angeles, walked into Junction about noon today and told authorities his bride was snowbound in Beaver Pass. He had fought through heavy drifts to seek help.

Giovannavazzi said they had been married "only a few days" and drove to Bryce Canyon National Park, southeast of here, for their honeymoon.

On the way back to Los Angeles on Wednesday, he said, they attempted to take a short cut from Junction to Beaver, Utah, 47 miles to the west.

About 20 miles west of Junction they ran into a storm and their car stalled, he said. They spent Wednesday night in the car.

Yesterday morning, they hiked three hours and reached an old logging cabin, he said. They spent last night there. This morning, after cutting firewood for his bride, the former Marine walked to Junction and asked Sheriff Carl G. Beede for aid.

He said neither he nor his bride had eaten since noon Wednesday and that she had only light clothing.

The sheriff recruited a party of volunteers. They drove trucks toward the pass this afternoon. They had horses with them and intended to drive as far as possible, then ride to the old cabin.

Express 'Lost' In Snowdrifts

through and shone brightly in western Kansas.

The storm had moved eastward and late today snow started falling at Topeka.

First reports from Colby in northwestern Kansas tonight indicated possible heavy losses for livestock men who had from 70,000 to 100,000 sheep on wheat pasture in Thomas County.

Garden City, a city of 10,000 in west central Kansas, was isolated, except for one telephone line. Gov. Frank Carlson said at Topeka he had received reports power had failed at Goodland, Quinter, Gorham and Colby, in northwestern Kansas, and he assumed other cities must be affected similarly.

While Kansas was hardest hit, 100 Nebraska communities were without telephone connections, and Lexington, Nebr., had been without power service for 24 hours. The situation there was described as serious. Schools were closed in South Dakota and Minnesota as the storm piled up snow covers up to 15 inches. It headed on toward the lower Great Lakes region, where it was expected to hit tonight and Saturday.

Maryland Due to Feel Storm Moving on East

Baltimore, Nov. 19 (AP).—Maryland may get its first real winter weather of the season over the weekend. It all depends on the major snowstorm sweeping the Midwest.

There may be snow in western Maryland and temperatures will plummet across the State Saturday and Saturday night, the weather observers predicted.

Rains and Tornadoes Batter Dixie States

Atlanta, Nov. 19 (U.P.).—The weather went on a rampage across the South from Louisiana to the Carolinas today, claiming at least one life and injuring more than a score of persons.

Tornadoes, deluging rains, lightning and fog plagued the area. Conflicting pressures radiating from a storm on the great Western plains were held responsible.

A tornado that wheeled through outlying areas of Calhoun Falls, Miss., did the worst damage. It injured 19 and tore up lightly constructed houses along a 5-mile strip.

Conroy Apologizes to Murphy

Chief Murphy told reporters yesterday, "I never felt personally hurt, but I did feel the organization that I headed was being injured and the improvements that were being made in the Fire Department were being stymied by the local headed by Captain Conroy.

"There had been more improvements in the past 2½ years than in the 25 years prior to that time and in the middle of that I found myself being stabbed in the back by some of my own troops. This was not a personal thing; what he was hurting was the organization," Chief Murphy said.

Asked if he had accepted the apology, he replied, "I forgave Conroy long ago. If I didn't, I wouldn't be an Irishman."

Commissioner Young posed with his arms around both firefighters and commented, "I admired Conroy's manly attitude in making his apology public. This is now a closed chapter. I am proud to have Captain Conroy in the department."

Conroy, who was defeated last May in his try for a fourth term as head of the union local, said he would like to offer a similar apology before the House subcommittee.

Chief Murphy faced a three-man civilian board last January on a general charge of inefficiency and unfitness for his post and nine individual counts which included intoxication and abusive language. He was cleared on all the charges and was commended by the trial board as a "competent leader."

Inaugural Parade Seat Sale Begins At $2 to $10

McGrath to Offer Bill for Holiday Jan. 21 for 4-Day Federal Weekend

Sale of tickets for seats along the presidential inaugural route was opened yesterday at the 1949 Inaugural Committee's new headquarters in the old Tariff Commission Building, 7th and E sts. nw.

General Chairman Melvin D. Hildreth announced that seats in the stands would be sold on the same basis as in 1941, at prices ranging from $2 for bleacher seats to $10 for those in the stands near the White House.

Senator J. Howard McGrath, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said he would introduce a bill in the new Congress to make January 21, the day after Inauguration Day, a holiday for Government workers, thus insuring them a four-day weekend.

Hildreth said requests for tickets should be addressed to the Inaugural Ticket Committee, Tariff Building, 7th and E sts nw. The general committee has been granted rent-free use of 35 rooms on the first floor. The telephone number is STerling 1555.

Other plans for the ambitious undertaking disclosed yesterday were:

1. The Freedom Train and the Gratitude Train from France will be parked on a downtown railroad siding during the inauguration week.

2. An elaborate fireworks display will be launched on inaugural night, probably from Roosevelt Island.

3. West Point and Annapolis cadets will march in the parade and the famous "Blue Angel" Navy stunt squadron will lead an air show during the march.

4. The week will begin Sunday, January 16, with special church services and a broadcast reenacting the inaugural proceedings of George Washington.

5. Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, Engineer Commissioner, who heads the presidential grandstand committee, said bids for the stands, which will be on the north and south sides of Pennsylvania ave. nw., between East and West Executive aves., will be advertised for next week.

Bandit Widow Gets 1-3 Years As Accomplice

Mrs. Jean Lincoln, 26-year-old English war bride, was sentenced yesterday to serve from one to three years in prison for her part in the $200 holdup of the Bellevue Hotel.

She is the widow of Edward A. Lincoln, who was shot to death in a subsequent holdup attempt at the Whitestone Hotel, 1101 16th st. nw.

Mrs. Lincoln was said to be the lookout and getaway agent. She was seated in an automobile near the scene of both robberies, it was said, and shared in the loot.

Sentence was imposed by Judge Richmond B. Keech in District Court.

In another case, Myer Friedburg, 59, operator of a grocery at 3400 13th st. nw., was fined $750 and given three years' probation on charges of operating a numbers lottery there.

Police Board Fines Private Total of $40

A police trial board yesterday fined Pvt. James B. Gilbert, 41, a motorcycle policeman, $40 and recommended his transfer to a precinct on charges resulting from his arrest October 31 in Prince Georges County.

The newly constituted three-man tribunal, first all-police trial board here, listened to 90 minutes of testimony and then ordered:

1. A $25 fine for failing to report for rollcall on time.

2. A fine for entering a house without a warrant.

3. A warning for conduct prejudicial to the good order of the department.

The board also asked that Gilbert be relieved of his assignment as a motorcycle policeman, which will mean a $162.51 slash in annual salary. Members said they were taking into consideration Gilbert's loss of more than $130 in pay since his suspension October 31.

According to charges filed in Prince Georges County, Gilbert entered the home of Mathias Simmons, in Meadows, Md., without a warrant. Simmons testified that Gilbert knocked on the door, which was slightly ajar, and walked in without being invited.

Prince Georges police arrested Gilbert at Simmons' home after a telephone complaint from Mrs. Simmons. He was charged with being drunk and disorderly, according to Sergt. L. H. Peterson, of the Traffic Division. The charges later were dismissed.

Gilbert, who pleaded guilty, told the board he chased a speeder from the District into Maryland and stopped at Simmons' house because he believed the car had turned off there. He testified he'd been suffering from a "nervous disorder for quite some time" and had been unable to sleep.

On the night in question, he said, he stopped in his car for several drinks en route home—hoping they would help him sleep. It was then that he started after the speeder.

Sergeant Peterson also testified that Gilbert failed to report for 7:15 a. m. rollcall.

Members of the trial board were Inspector Milton D. Smith, Capt. Archie Winfree, No. 6 Precinct, and Capt. John Fondahl, No. 8 Precinct.

Early Deal On Parkway Tract Sought

National Capital Parks said yesterday it hopes to acquire in the near future a 2½-acre tract from the Braddock Power & Light Co. for Mount Vernon Memorial boulevard parkway north of Alexandria.

Acquisition of the Potomac shoreline tract is being made possible by the Commerce Department's withdrawal of its objection to the transaction, in which the power company will obtain certain privileges in exchange for the property.

Park Superintendent Irving C. Root said his office hopes to be able to issue a permit soon giving the power company, in exchange for the tract, access to the river for water required by the 21 million dollar power plant now under construction along the riverfront between Alexandria and the Washington National Airport.

The company would also receive right-of-way across Government-owned land for an underground power line into the Pentagon building and nearby Virginia developments.

The company would defray cost of dredging two channels in the river along its property, and the fill will be pumped above flood level on Daingerfield Island, just north of the power plant. The island now floods periodically.

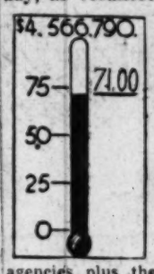
Not involved in the proposed land exchange is the question of how high the power plant's smokestacks may be erected, a dispute involving the Commerce Department's Civil Aeronautics Division, the company and the city of Alexandria, Root said.

Alexandria city officials want the smokestacks to be 190 feet high to keep smoke from becoming a nuisance and to discourage low-flying planes. The CAA doesn't want the stacks to exceed 162 feet in height and recently informed Alexandria officials that it might be necessary to condemn air rights over the vicinity.

Chest Drive Extended to Wednesday

Contributions Total $3,241,990 or 71% Of Goal; Parker Urges 'Valiant Effort'

The 1949 Community Chest campaign was tentatively extended to Wednesday yesterday, as volunteers announced



71 per cent of the Chest goal has been reached at a report luncheon in the Hotel Washington.

Contributions now total $3,241,990.54. The Chest is asking for $4,566,790 to support 104 Red Feather agencies plus the USO and the Hospitalization Fund.

In announcing the campaign extension, second this year, Chauncey G. Parker, general chairman of the drive, told workers that "in my judgment we have put up a valiant effort."

Parker asked workers to "stay at this thing until we reach our primary objective, and that is to afford every gainfully employed person and every housewife the opportunity to say yes or no to the contributing of a sum of money with which to meet our community needs in health, welfare and recreational services voluntarily supported."

Gifts from 297,065 citizens of Greater Washington have been received in this year's campaign to date. Last year 328,154 Washingtonians contributed to the Chest.

Parker also read to the volunteers a telegram from the executive conference, whose membership is composed of executive directors of Chest-supported agencies. The message expressed "unconditional approval and grateful appreciation" for "your efforts in continuing the campaign."

Next general report luncheon will be held on Wednesday at the Washington Hotel. Fifty individual campaigners who have done outstanding work for the Chest drive this year will be honored.

Recognition also will be given those firms who have reported at least 90 per cent participation among employes and whose total Chest gift (exclusive of firm gift) is equal to a day's take-home pay for all of those subscribing.

Firms which have reported contributions equal to 137.7 per cent—or more—of their total gift last year will also be honored. The Chest goal this year is 137.7 per cent of the 1948 goal.

Crippled Child Group Picks 13 New Directors

Yesterday's meeting also resulted in the reelection of 13 holdover directors.

William H. Press, executive secretary of the Board of Trade; Frank L. Yates, Assistant Comptroller General of the United States; Dr. William P. Argy, James E. Colliflower, Paul B. Cromelin, Dr. Michael J. McInerney, Dr. Paul J. O'Donnell and Mrs. John Parks.

Reelected to the board were the society's president, Mrs. Beulah Drake; Dr. Hobart M. Corning, District superintendent of schools; Dr. Charles Drew, superintendent of Freedmen's Hospital; Thomas J. Groom, president of the Bank of Commerce & Savings; Dr. Frederick Reissig of the Federation of Churches; Leo Bernstein, Miss Mary Bourke, Dr. Custis Lee Hall, M. J. Uline, James C. Dulin, jr., Thomas Grant, Albert W. Howard and Dan Piver.

Seven months ago wide publicity was given to a split in the inner councils of the society. Four employes resigned, another was fired. All protested the actions of Mrs. Jewell Gaffney, the society's executive director.

Most of the directors stood behind Mrs. Gaffney. The National Society for Crippled Children stepped in and ordered the local group to reorganize or face expulsion from the parent body. There was a reorganization, but whether it was satisfactory has never been announced by the national.

The internal spat also witnessed the resignations as directors of Dr. Montgomery Blair, head of Children's Hospital; Dr. Ella Oppenheimer, director of the Health Department's Bureau of Maternal and Child Welfare, and Mrs. C. D. Lowe.

Mrs. Drake, the president, referred to the dissension at the meeting yesterday, but went into no details. Mrs. Gaffney outlined the activities of the society for the year ended October 31.

It was announced that the new board of directors will hold its organization meeting November 29, at which time new officers of the society will be elected.

G. W., Georgetown Stage Spirited Rallies

THREE CHEERS FOR 'GEORGE'—George Washington University cheer leaders Betty Talley, Louise Whiting and Jinny Teeter whoop it up for old "George" (Jack Voneiff), the spirit of GWU. These hijinks were a part of the university's pep rally staged last night on the campus in the rear of Lisner Auditorium in advance of the game today with Georgetown

Hoya Students Invade Downtown Area; Rivals Hang Effigy

But the pregame blowoffs were devoid of hoodlumism, perhaps because GW President Cloyd Heck Marvin had warned yesterday afternoon that any more of it might result in a rupture of the long athletic relationship between the two local universities.

But there was no lack of enthusiasm at the two rallies.

The route, authorized by Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett, led from 37th and O sts. nw., to M st., down M st. to Pennsylvania ave. and then to 15th st.

They must have.

The Georgetown parade was preceded by a campus rally of more than 700 students in Gaston Hall auditorium.

GW President Marvin warned against excess enthusiasm yesterday after acts of vandalism on both campuses.

On Wednesday night a group of Georgetown students invaded the G.W. campus and painted up the sidewalks and buildings. On the four pillars guarding the entrance to the million-dollar Lisner Auditorium, the students plastered "HOYA."

On Thursday night, 40 G.W. students retaliated. They invaded the Georgetown campus, painted up the sidewalks, and a statue of John Carroll, one of the school's founders. Two Georgetown students were abducted, to the G.W. campus. Their hair was cut, and after an hour and a half they were released.

Dr. Marvin said last night that cleaning up Lisner Hall and the other buildings would cost "over a thousand dollars."

Standard Oil Hikes Gasoline Price Monday

Standard Oil Co. service stations and independent Standard dealers will increase the price of gasoline approximately three tenths of a cent a gallon Monday.

The price increase was announced yesterday in New York by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey. Local Standard station operators said they would have to pass on the increase to consumers.

Standard simultaneously announced cuts in prices of home heating oil and heavy industrial fuel oil, but the reductions may not be felt by householders using heating oil.

Standard's New York announcement said it "increased the tank wagon price of motor gasoline up to three tenths of a cent a gallon." Tank car and barge prices of heating oil were reduced in amounts up to three tenths of a cent a gallon, also effective Monday.

Effective yesterday, the announcement said, the price of heavy fuel oil was cut by 21 cents a barrel at Gulf Coast refineries and 20 cents a barrel at Eastern seaboard terminals.

Standard's District office said the three tenths of a cent increase in gasoline to wholesalers leaves it entirely up to them whether they pass it on to the consumers. Dealers asserted there was nothing else for them to do but to pass it on to motorists.

Taxi Driver Charged With Raping Fare

A District cab driver was charged yesterday with raping a 35-year-old fare who hailed his cab after leaving an after-hours drinking club on Portner pl. near 14th and Q sts. nw.

The cabbie, Amiel Gleason Turner, 33, of 1245 Army and Navy dr., Arlington, Va., denied he had ever seen the woman he is charged with raping. He was held for arraignment in Municipal Court today.

The woman, a divorcee, who formerly worked as a waitress, told police she hailed a cab and when she told the driver to take her home, he replied: "You are coming with me."

The woman asserted Turner drove to a secluded section which she believed was an area in Rock Creek Park, choked her unconscious and then raped her.

After she recovered consciousness, she said, he drove her to her home where she called police.

Turner was picked up yesterday through a description of his cab and the license number noted by witnesses. The victim identified him at a police lineup.

The woman was examined at Gallinger Hospital, where finger marks on her throat were noted. Results of tests to determine whether the woman was raped were to be available today.

School Board Law Tested in Virginia Court

The legality of Arlington's first elected school board was again challenged yesterday in a case argued in the Virginia State Supreme Court of Appeals.

At issue was a State law setting up a referendum designed to allow Arlington residents to vote for or against popular election of their school board. In other Virginia counties, boards are appointed.

County residents voted for the change in May, 1947, and then overwhelmingly elected the five present school board members.

The controversial Chapter 61, Acts of the 1947 General Assembly, concerning the referendum is applicable to "all counties in Virginia having 500 inhabitants per square mile, or less than 60 miles of land area, which are operating under the . . . county manager plan."

But in effect, this limited the law's application to Arlington County alone. Eventually, however, it might be applicable to Elizabeth City County.

Attorneys Ralph Caterall and George E. Allen of Richmond yesterday argued that the 1947 act violated Sections 63 and 64 of the Virginia constitution, which forbid enactment of purely local laws for the conduct of elections.

2 Women, Man Killed On Slippery Area Roads

Rain, Slick Streets Give District Bad Accident Day With 8-Hr. Report of 35

Three pedestrians were killed in nearby Maryland and Virginia yesterday as rain-slicked highways also gave the District one of its worst one-day accident records of the year.

Myrtle Flick, 32, of 312 S. Patrick st., Alexandria, was killed when struck by the rear end of a tractor-trailer which police said "jacknifed" on U. S. 1 about 6 miles south of Alexandria.

Police said the woman was crossing the road with a companion, Mrs. Josephine Hale, 210 N. Pitt st., Alexandria, who was treated at Alexandria Hospital for head lacerations.

Driver From Norfolk

The truck driver was identified by police as George Harrell, 37, of Norfolk, Va.

Prince Georges County police said Hatty Chitten, about 42, of Glen Arden, was killed while walking on Defense hwy. near her home at about 10:20 p. m. She was pronounced dead on arrival at Prince Georges Hospital in Cheverly.

The third traffic fatality was a Negro, about 65, who had not been identified late last night. He was struck by an automobile in the 5600 block of St. Barnabas rd., near Oxon Hill, Md., shortly after 6 p. m.

The man was rushed by the District Heights rescue squad to Casualty Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Prince Georges County Police said the driver of the car that struck the man, Arthur J. Ruhlig, 36, of Clinton, Md., was charged with a technical count of reckless driving. Ruhlig will appear at a hearing next Friday in Upper Marlboro Police Court.

35 Accidents in 8 Hours

Here in the District, Lieut. William Liverman, head of the Accident Investigation Unit, said yesterday was one of the worst traffic days of the year with 35 accidents reported for the eight-hour period between 8 a. m. and 4 p. m. He said the combination of rain and fallen leaves was an contributing factor.

The intersection of 18th and Irving sts. nw., apparently, was one of the slickest spots in town, for there were two serious accidents there in less than three hours.

Bus Smashes Car

Three persons were injured, none seriously, in the first accident at 11:55 a. m. when a westbound Capital Transit bus skidded out of control, smashed into and demolished an oncoming automobile and then leveled a telephone pole and a police call box.

The driver of the bus, police said, was Alphonse H. Deschene, 22, of 3836 18th st. ne.

The driver of the auto, Robert H. McCracken, 29, of 3035 15th st. nw., was admitted to Emergency Hospital for observation with contusions and abrasions about the body.

Also taken to the hospital but released after treatment for minor injuries were two bus passengers, Rachael M. Gastroch, 59, of 3026 Porter st. nw., and Nellie Fitzsimons, 74, of 1440 Columbia rd. nw.

3-Truck Mix-Up

At 2:45 p. m., only a few steps from the same intersection, a Capital Transit truck, operated by Rufus Drayton, 35, of 2113 I st. ne., plowed into two other trucks and a light pole. No one was injured.

Drayton's truck, police said, was going west on Irving st., and in the 1700 block of Irving st. collided head on with a Thompson's Dairy truck, operated by Gustavus W. Sears, 51, of Jessups, Md.

The Capital Transit truck then caromed into a light pole and bounced into a Sinclair Refining Co. tank truck, operated by Elmer D. Graham, 26, of 723 7th st. se.

Two adults and two children were hurt when a truck and auto collided head on at about 10:30

Area News in Brief

Depot Bootlegger Is Convicted Again

David Douglas Davenport, 32, was convicted again yesterday, this time by a Municipal Court jury on eight counts of bootlegging whisky in the Washington Terminal.

Judge Ellen K. Raedy deferred sentencing until Monday. He is subject to a maximum of four years in prison and $4000 in fines.

The jury deliberated two hours before reaching a decision.

Metropolitan Police, Terminal Police and special agents for the Army cooperated in making the arrest in what was described as an effort to foil Davenport's thriving business at the station.

According to testimony, Terminal Police gave soldier agents $200 to use in purchasing liquor from Davenport.

Davenport has been hailed into court about 115 times in the past year and a half. He has been fined several times for bootlegging, fined once for slugging a station guard, and once actually served 30 days in jail.

Recently he was sentenced to 90 days in jail for vagrancy but his attorney stated he was appealing that conviction "to the Supreme Court."

$6500 for Injuries

Miss Naomi Mahaffey, 20, of 1483 Newton st. nw., won $6500 damages yesterday in District Court for injuries she suffered in a two-bus collision in 1944.

Miss Mahaffey, a telephone operator, was then on a sightseeing trip when at Bladensburg rd. and South Dakota ave. ne., a Capital Transit Bus was in collision with a Pennsylvania Greyhound Lines bus. The bus companies were named defendants jointly.

Woman Wins $2225

Mrs. R. H. Bodell, 720 Upshur st. nw., yesterday was named winner of $2225 in a contest sponsored by Lever Brothers Co., of Cambridge, Mass.

Recipients will be workers in the iron works and the motor truck body division at 24th and M sts. nw.

Virginia State Police yesterday reminded motor vehicle owners the fall inspection period will end at midnight November 30.

Col. C. W. Woodson, jr., superintendent, said the vehicle owners were warned at the beginning of the period, October 15, there would be no extension.

Montgomery Charter Foes Deny Charge

Criticism of the Montgomery County Commissioners for voting to test legality of a scheduled January 6 Charter Council election was answered indignantly yesterday by Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter.

Sauter was joined by Attorney David E. Betts of Rockville, who is collaborating in the suit aimed at blocking the January election.

Referring to accusations by charter leaders that the commissioners are seeking to stay in office rather than relinquish their posts to a Charter Council, Sauter declared:

"I resent very much the attacks that the charter people have made on the motives of the commissioners. The charter they wrote is a legal sieve, and they should have been more careful in drafting it.

Legality Questioned

"We are not anxious to stay in office, but we are anxious to see that there is a legal government in office."

On Tuesday, the commissioners ordered preparation of a suit seeking to prevent the January election on the ground it conflicts with a provision of the State Constitution requiring quadrennial election. The last election for county offices was in 1946.

Said Attorney Betts: "I deplore the tendency of the charterites to overlook the substance of the constitutional question involved and to assume that the commissioners in raising the question are simply political hacks trying to stay in office.

"Political Vandalism"

Both Betts and Sauter apparently referred to statements this week by James J. Hayden, charter board member who helped draft the document. Hayden described the commissioners' action as an "act of political vandalism" and "a desperate last-minute attempt by the commissioners to stay in office without any justification."

In another development, Samuel E. Bagley, treasurer of the "Speakers' Bureau to Defeat Charter" which was active before the November 2 election, filed with the county clerk of court an itemized statement of campaign expenses.

According to the list, Roger Whiteford, Washington attorney and a leading Democrat, contributed $500. Others included were County Commissioner Brooke Johns, $100; Commissioner Sauter $22, and Emory H. Bogley, $332. Total receipts and expenditures reported by Bogley were $1006.

GOP Assembly Group Vows Charter Aid

A pledge to do everything possible to make charter "an effective force for economical government in Montgomery County" was made yesterday on behalf of the Republican county delegation to the Maryland Assembly.

The promise was made before the county League of Women Voters by John R. Reeve, only member of the delegation who opposed the adoption of a charter form of government prior to the November election.

State Senator Roy Tasco Davis and delegates were guests of the league at a luncheon meeting in Marvin Memorial Methodist Church, Four Corners, Silver Spring, Md.

"We have always said that charter was not a party issue," Reeves stated. "It seems in view of developments both before and since the election," he said, "that this has been demonstrated over and over again to be true."

Restoration of local laws which the 1943 General Assembly put under jurisdiction of bicounty commissioners were advocated by Mrs. Ralph Himstead, former league president and charter committee member. Reeves also urged this, specifically calling attention to the functions of the Maryland Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission. Reeves said:

"They properly belong to the county government as part of good local administration."

The league unanimously indorsed proposed legislation which would permit Montmogery to elect a nonpartisan board of education by a referendum vote in 1950.

Art Preview In Corcoran Show Tonight

A preview of the controversial Third Annual Exhibition of Work by Artists of Washington and vicinity will be held tonight at the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

The show already has provoked sharp charges in local art circles that exhibit judges were unreasonably supercritical in accepting only 20 works out of 1000 entries.

As one result, a special exhibition is being held to display one work by each artist rejected for the regular showing, although some artists have refused to participate in this.

In previous years, 18 awards have been given in the area exhibition, but in the current regular show only one award was made out of the 20 accepted works, and this award will be announced tonight. There was an erroneous report earlier this week in one local newspaper (not The Washington Post), "identifying" the sole award winner. The gallery yesterday announced that that identification was wrong.

Tonight's preview, beginning at 9 p. m., is open to the press, gallery members, students of the Corcoran School of Art, and artists who entered work in the show. The exhibitions will open to the public on Sunday.

Apprentice Deferment Supported

The District of Columbia Apprenticeship Council yesterday approved a Department of Labor proposal that Selective Service officials defer apprentices with less than six months' training to complete.

Terming the apprenticeship program essential to safety, health and industrial mobilization of the country, William F. Patterson, director of the apprenticeship bureau, Department of Labor, asked the council to indorse the recommendation and forward it to national and local Selective Service officials.

The proposal also stipulated that apprentices must have completed six months' training, be duly registered under the D. C. apprenticeship law and be able to complete training before reaching the age of 25 to be eligible for deferment.

In other action the council voted to appoint qualified trade employes to inspect any "open shop" business requesting apprentices to determine whether the establishment has facilities to train competent journeymen. In a closed shop the union appoints its own inspection committee.

Reviewing the apprenticeship situation, G. J. Simi, secretary to the council, said the present need for apprentices is in the service trades, the greatest demand being for cooks and meatcutters. The building trades now lead in the number of apprentices being trained.

Court to Hear Appeal From Seduction Term

The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals yesterday agreed to hear an appeal from a two-year sentence imposed on Guy H. Fuller, jr., 19, for seducing a 17-year-old Arlington, Va., girl.

How to Restore An Old Trunk

I have an antique trunk that I would like to have restored. Could you tell me if there is a firm in Washington that does this sort of thing, and if there is not, could you tell me how I should go about doing it myself? The lining is worn, the outside of the trunk is quite mildewed. C. T.

You may be able to find someone to restore the trunk if you will call a firm which does restoring listed under "Antiques" in the telephone book.

As for doing it yourself, I could be more helpful if you had told me whether the trunk exterior was metal, wood or leather. If metal, remove as much of the mildew as possible by scrubbing with a brush, sand it down to remove rough spots and possible rust, and then apply two or three coats of paint, thinning the paint for use on the metal.

If it is wood, remove all the old finish by using a good paint and varnish remover. Sand to smooth and apply varnish or paint as you wish. If leather, wash with mild soap and water to remove as much mildew as possible. Buff dry with a soft cloth. If you are successful in removing all the mildew with washing, the cover can then be treated with a leather dressing. If mildew still shows, I'd suggest you coat the trunk with the plastic leather coating on the market which comes in all colors. For more information about it, call District 1130.

To refinish the interior, remove all loose lining, brush thoroughly, and recover it with wallpaper. There are many wallpapers on the market which have designs suitable for such use. Apply it to the inside of the trunk with wallpaper paste, which can be purchased where you buy your paper.

I am contemplating the purchase of some unpainted furniture which I would like refinished in limed oak or blond mahogany. I'd like to find out what materials and/or supplies will be needed and how to apply them. Also, could the finish on an old mahogany-veneer type piece of furniture be removed and whether one of the aforementioned finishes be used? R. G. W.

If this furniture is a wood which has never been finished, you can get a limed oak finish by sanding it down very smooth and applying a coat of flat white paint, wiping it off almost immediately. This way, only the pores are filled with the white paint. How attractive this finish will be on your furniture will depend upon what kind of wood it is and how attractive the grain is, for the grain shows quite predominantly with this process.

As for refinishing it as blond mahogany, we had a discussion in this column several months ago on the subject. At that time, a reader gave this report of her experiences in refinishing white pine to match some blond mahogany she had. (I'm taking it for granted that your unpainted furniture is pine, since most of the ready-made unpainted furniture on the market is. To quote G. C. S., "I rubbed down the pine pieces with sandpaper until they were very smooth, then applied a coat of satin-finish heavy varnish. After this dried thoroughly, I sanded it and applied another coat of this colorless varnish. This gave me a good match for the blond mahogany and, conveniently enough, all the wood has darkened with age to the same degree."

The mahogany-veneer-type can be refinished by either method described above. First remove all finish by the use of a good commercial paint and varnish remover. This will probably leave it very light in color but if it is not as light as you would like, bleach it with a good commercial bleach. Follow the directions which come with the bleach you use. When it is as light as you wish, sand it until the surface is satin smooth and then proceed as described above.

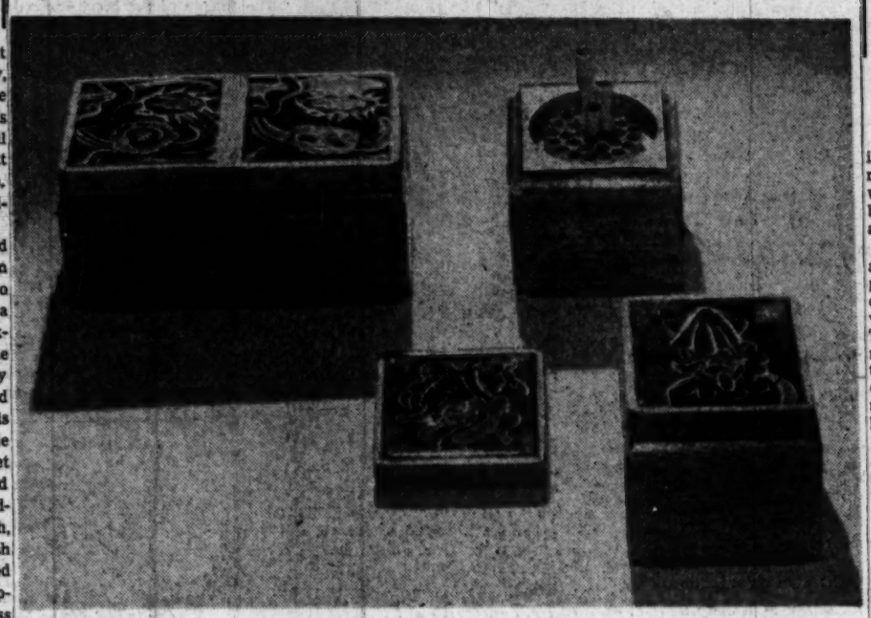
Modern Work in Ancient Craft



THESE cigarette boxes were among the unique showing of tile work by Walter Prins of New York, Thursday, at Statler Hotel. Working with a craft that flourished in seventeenth and eighteenth century Holland, Prins has produced murals, framed pictures, book ends, coasters, lamps, cabinets, and other tiled articles distinguished by vivid colors, subtle shadings, and the emotional appeal of fine oil paintings. He began experimenting with ceramic tile as a hobby, has promoted this medium from the purely utilitarian role assigned it in modern times to an important place in home decorating. His work will be available locally through Mayer & Co. and the Glass House

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Junior Exchange . . .

Do you know your neighbors—in the apartment house or in the neighborhood — well enough to work out a sharing plan that will bring a good deal of happiness to all the children?

The idea is simple enough. We all buy some books and some phonograph records for our children. After a while even the favorites may get to be "old stuff." Then with budgets straining to meet high food costs we hesitate to buy an interesting-looking book or record that is highly recommended. Yet in the neighborhood there are many other parents in the same position. The books and records they have bought may not be the same as yours. So why not an exchange or a borrowing service?

One needs a few good organizers who can sell the idea to various families and work out an exchange system that isn't too complicated. One way is to get the school to cooperate by supplying space where books and records can be kept to be loaned to, or exchanged by, members of the group. This may be done, however, from one centrally located house or apartment. Mothers may take turns in being the exchange manager. And even the children can help.

With the State Societies

Thanksgiving Dances, Teas Highlight Week

By Nicha Soure

WHEN Washingtonians can't go home for the holidays, home comes to them through the State Society Thanksgiving celebrations.

The day before Thanksgiving, former residents of the Magnolia State will gather for their annual holiday dance at the Shoreham Hotel. Since the 1000 miles to Mississippi are a few too many to travel in one day, Mississippians will substitute dancing in the main ballroom of the Shoreham for a trip to the home State.

Dancing will begin at 9 p. m. to the music of Dave McWilliams orchestra. James A. Davis is general chairman of the dance, assisted by Miss Marguerite Pack and Bob Hays. H. Holden Rhymes, jr., is president of the society.

A feature of the evening's entertainment will be a "popularity contest." The winner, to be determined by the A. Q. (applause quotient) of the Mississippians, will be awarded a huge turkey, all ready to roast the next day.

THE Thanksgiving tea and reception of the Hoosiers will really be a reunion since most of the Indiana State Society members have not seen each other since their last get-together early in the summer.

And the Women's City Club will be decorated in the best Thanksgiving manner at the tea today. There will be pumpkin candles and yellow pompoms everywhere. On the tea table, where guests will be able to get tea, coffee, sandwiches and cookies, there will be turkey candles as well as little Pilgrim boy and girl candles. And for anyone who would rather have a doughnut, all they have to do is look for a pumpkin and the doughnut will be right there on a pretzel stick.

Quite a few important Hoosiers will be guests at the tea. The Surgeon General of the United States, Dr. Leonard Scheele and Mrs. Scheele, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Morton Willcutts of the Naval Medical Center, and Judge and Mrs. Noble J. Johnson of the Court of Customs and Patents Appeal will be the guests of honor at the tea today from 5 p. m. until 7 p. m.

Mrs. Royd Ray Sayers will be in charge of the tea tables. Assisting her will be prominent women of Washington who were former residents of Indiana. They include Mrs. Guy Mason, Mrs. R. E. Ingersoll, Mrs. Charles Wesley Risher, Mrs. Herschel House, Mrs. Robert Teachout, Mrs. Horace B. McCoy, Mrs. Oswald Ryan, Mrs. Arthur Bergman, Mrs. John Scott, Mrs. Paul Tombaugh, Miss Mirium Johnson, Mrs. Marjorie Binford Woods, Mrs. Esther Costa and Mrs. Frederick Ballard.

THE Tarheels are at it again. Last week it was a victory dance after the Maryland-North Carolina game. On November 27 it will be a Thanksgiving dance. North Carolinians are expecting quite a few guests to come to the dance after the North Carolina-Virginia game in Charlottesville that day and also a few of the folks from back home who traveled north to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia.

The dance will be in the large ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel from 9:45 p. m. to 1 a. m. Dave McWilliams will furnish the music and there will be quite a few important Tar Heel guests. (Incidentally, the dance last weekend for the victorious football team brought about 4000 North Carolinians to the Washington Hotel.)

DON'T forget the Minnesota State Society dance tonight at the Shoreham Hotel. Dancing will begin at 9:30 p. m. to the music of the Barnee-Lowe Orchestra. The dance will celebrate the 100th anniversary of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad.

Tea Monday For First Lady And Daughter

Mrs. Harry S. Truman and Miss Margaret Truman will be honored at a tea given by the Women's National Press Club on Monday. The tea will be the first major social event honoring the First Lady and her daughter since the election.

Both Mrs. Truman and Margaret have been in the Capital only briefly since the election. During the past week they have been vacationing with the President at the summer White House in Key West, Fla. The Truman ladies created a stir on Thursday by slipping away on the presidential yacht for a surprise visit to Havana, Cuba. They spent a day shopping in Havana, and Mrs. Truman visited the wife of the Cuban President, Senora Maria Tarrero de Prio, at the presidential palace.

Cabinet wives and members of the Diplomatic Corps will be on hand to welcome the First Lady back to Washington on Monday.

Among those who will attend the Press Club tea are Mrs. Clark Clifford, wife of the Special Counsel to the President; Mrs. John Steelman, wife of the Assistant to the President; Mrs. Kenneth Royall, wife of the Secretary of the Army; Mrs. Tom Clark, wife of the Attorney General, and Mrs. Charles Brannan, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture.

Mme. Henri Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, is expected to attend, as is Lady Franks, wife of the British Ambassador.

Other prominent guests will be Miss Jane Lingo, close friend of Miss Truman, and Miss Sarah Wambaugh, the authority on plebiscites.

Former presidents of the Women's Press Club will pour. Miss Dorothy Williams of the United Press, who is club president, will meet guests in the receiving line.

The tea will begin at 5 p. m. in the Federal Room of the Hotel Statler.

Mrs. Kane to Give Cocktail Party

Mrs. Theodora Kane will entertain at a cocktail party at her home tomorrow afternoon in connection with a private art exhibit of oil paintings and water colors done by her students.

Mrs. Kane also was hostess Thursday evening at a buffet supper given in honor of exhibit judges, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph de Burgos and Burtis Baker, all local artists.

Prize winning paintings in the exhibit are "Harbor," by Mrs. Mary Jernegan; "Seated Nude," by William Webster, and "Portrait of Judy," by Miss Dorothy Dean.

Taking a Tip From U. N.

Portuguese Wine Party Is Unusual and Gay

By Elizabeth Maguire

AT THE Portuguese wine party yesterday a U-shaped buffet offered first white port and Madeira with broiled oysters; then wines, still, crackling or sparkling with turkey, and finally brandies with coffee. Between glasses were dishes of hors d'oeuvres, petit fours and custards.

The party was unusual gay, colorful. In the Louis XVI room of the Shoreham, it was given by the Portuguese delegation to the Fourth Conference of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations. In the receiving line were Prof. Antonio Sousa da Camara, Count de Penha Garcia, president of the Portuguese Wine Association; Jose Alves, and Antonio Almeida, Commercial Attache of the embassy.

The Ambassador, Pedro Theotonio Pereira, was at the party, talking with the Portuguese Counselor and Senhora de Rocheta. The latter has just returned from a three-month visit to Portugal. While there, she said, she remained by the sea the greater part of the time, just resting, and now she felt ready for a busy winter here.

First to Go 'Round

VISCOUNT BRUCE of Melbourne and Tom Williams, Minister of Agriculture of the United Kingdom, were among the first to go around the U-shaped table, after a welcoming speech had been made by Rodrigo de Castro, a member of the Portuguese delegation.

Mr. de Castro said he hoped the guests would not be disappointed to find such good drinks as manhattans, old fashions and the like not offered. He explained that in choosing a wine party they were following the tradition set last year at the Geneva Conference of the Food and Agriculture Organization by the International Office of Wine.

Various wines, he went on to say, would be offered as part of a formal dinner. He invited guests to start with white port or Madeira with appetizers, and after that to take white or red still wine; or, if they preferred, crackling or sparkling, wine. Brandies, he said, would be found at the last table with coffee.

Recalls Hemingway

"Ladies and gentlemen," he concluded, "bear in mind the words of Ernest Hemingway: 'Wine is one of the most civilized things in the world, and one of the natural things of the world that have been brought to the greatest perfection. It offers a greater range of enjoyment and appreciation than possibly any other purely sensory thing which may be purchased.'"

Norris Dodd, chairman of the FAO Conference, attended the wine party with his daughter, Mrs. Mary Lewis. The Danish Ambassador, Henrik de Kauffman, was seen making his way across the room with a glass of port and three chocolate eclairs. The Swiss Counselor and Mme. Fuchss formed a group with Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Demont, the Spanish Agricultural Attache and Senora de Echegaray and George Baker.

Others in the gathering included the Ambassador of Honduras, Julian R. Caceres; the Panamanian Commercial Counselor, Ernest Heurtematte; the Chief of the Belgian Economic Mission, Pierre Jasper; the Syrian Minister, Faiz El-Khouri, and his daughter, Miss El-Khouri, a student at Cathedral School; the Finnish Minister, Dr. K. T. Jutila; Theodore Achilles of the State Department. Mr. and Mrs. O. V. Welles, and R. H. Franklin.

T. S. Eliot Honored By Arts Institute

T. S. ELIOT, noted American-British poet and Nobel Prize winner for 1948, was honored at a reception given Thursday evening by the Institute of Contemporary Arts. W. H. Other distinguished guests included Allen Tate, Robert Penn Warren, Leonie Adams, Conrad Aiken, Robert Lowell, Karl Shapiro, Paul Green, Miss Louise Bogan, Theodore Spencer and Willard Thorpe, all members of the Fellow in American Letters of the Library of Congress.

The Ambassador of Great Britain and Lady Franks attended, as well as Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Castle, Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Mrs. Frances Perkins, Richard Coe, Paul Hume, Alexis Leger, Mrs. Harriet Winslow and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nichols.

Satterthwaite, head of the British Commonwealth Division of the State Department; Raymond Muir, Assistant Chief of Protocol; S. G. McFarlane of the International Bank; Dr. Roland Wilson and J. U. Garside of the Australian Embassy; Richard Fyfe Boyce, former United States Consul in Australia; James Boyd, Director of the Bureau of Mines, and R. F. Foley, Director of the Housing and Homes Finance Agency.

Food Experts Savor Delicacies At Reception for Mr. Pflimlin

By Marie McNair

DELEGATES to the Food and Agricultural Organization, meeting in Washington this mid-November, are recognized as authorities on good food. Perhaps that's the reason they laid bare the buffet table at the French Embassy yesterday, devouring all those little pastries and sandwiches, the specialite de la maison.

The French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet entertained at a reception yesterday for France's delegate to the conference, Pierre Pflimlin, who looks far too young to hold the cabinet post of Minister of Agriculture. M. Pflimlin speaks little English, but standing with the Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet to welcome the guests, he had a cordial smile and warm handshake that did the trick.

Mme Bonnet, fully recovered from bazaar day at the embassy on Wednesday, looked extremely smart in a simple little black dress, fashioned by a master hand—Dior. Of faille with a tiny collar of velvet, the skirt was lined with a heavy starched net to make it flare at just the right places; the fitted bodice with long tight sleeves buttoned down the front.

There was fine cool and dry champagne in the dining room and whisky and soda for those who preferred it. And the buffet table, with a centerpiece of porcelaine figurines, was laden with platters of cheese puffs and squares of chocolate cake; wafer thin sandwiches and miniature eclairs.

Most of the guests were members of the FAO conference, and the ECA. Norris Dodd, who is director general of the FAO, was there, with his daughter Mrs. Marry Lewis, whose black frock was topped with a high hat trimmed with cerise ostrich tips.

Pretty Portrait

The Postmaster General, Jesse Donaldson, seemed to know a good many of the guests, and with him was Mrs. Donaldson in black with pink on her hat to match her pink pearls. Mrs. Charles Brannan, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, was there, the Secretary, expected back from St. Paul last night, was grounded there, she told me. He hoped to get to Chicago, and if he's lucky would arrived this morning around 6.

A charmer in a charmed circle yesterday was Mrs. George C. McGhee, wife of the coordinator and special assistant to the Under-Secretary of State for aid to Greece and Turkey. Pretty as a Romney portrait, Mrs. McGhee was in shimmering gray satin made with a skirt draped at the front, an off the shoulder neckline, and worn with a gray bonnet tied with tulle under her chin.

Viscount and Vicountess Bruce of Melbourne, Australia, were there, and also Eugene Meyer, George Baker, William Jenkins of the State Department.

Twentieth Century Club Holds Annual Reception

The Washington Club was decorated with yellow and bronze chrysanthemums for the Twentieth Century Club's annual reception yesterday. Music was furnished throughout the afternoon by Mrs. Ruth Linrud, who sang and accompanied herself on the harp.

Mrs. Robert Townsend, president of the club, headed the receiving line, and she was assisted by the other officers: Mrs. Raleigh Gilchrist, Mrs. John G. Ladd, Mrs. Joseph Paul, Mrs Benjamin Brooks and Mrs. Verner Boggs. Mrs. Ryland Bryant made the introductions.

Mrs. William Leahy was in charge of arrangements for the party. The floral decorations were made by Mrs. Herbert Martyn, Mrs. Isabel Furbank and Mrs. Raymond Powell.

Mrs. Francis Goodwin was in charge of the coffee, Mrs. Elgie Purvis managed the tea table and Mrs. Charles F. Creighton was in charge of the ice cream. The past presidents of the club took turns serving the refreshments.

Vista for Vacationists

Bright Colors, Oddly Mixed Suitable for Seaside Sunning

By Sonia Stein

IF YOU ARE planning to go South for a winter vacation—if you are planning to go in style, that is—you'd better feel kindly toward sophisticated color combinations and modern art.

Clear, bright colors usually take precedence over pastels in the lush tropical atmospheres, but fabrics used in a showing of "Forecast Cottons Headed Due South" yesterday leaned toward odd color combinations

The gowns, which will be shown again today at 11 and 3 in the fabric department at Woodward and Lothrop, are all made in Everfast cotton from Vogue patterns.

One evening dress is red pique with blue and green hexagonal patterns arranged in stripes. The deep horseshoe neckline has a bit of white eyelet tucked in.

Rippling Wrap-Around

A WRAP-AROUND skirt, rippling prettily down the front closing, is mad up in a primitive pattern of South African inspiration. The motif is fish—flat little fish in colors of teal blue, lime green, light salmon and brown. The blouse shown with it is brown.

Cocoa brown horseshoes and squares on black background are used for a strapless evening gown with matching jacket. A chartreuse and lime-green diagonal stripe, made up as a low-necked evening dress, has a wide crushed satin belt of red-orange! (Oh, where are the pinks and blues of yesteryear?)

Dark mustard and light coral are combined in an irregular check also made up for evening wear. The coral squares are a formalized flower, the mustard squares are solid. Another after-dark outfit uses dark blue and white stripes spiced with a hard yellow geometric design.

Dramatic Doodling Design

A STREET length dress in white pique has a South African inspired black penline design on it which is very like elaborate doodling. It's dramatic and handsome, and also comes in red, blue and green on white.

The only material shown which was familiar in both design and color combination, was a "damask rose" fabric which comes in light red on bright red, two shades of blue and tan on brown.

The pattern styles used are conservative and look very wearable. Skirts are rather slim, and Vogue suggests 11 or 12 inches from the ground as a good hemline. Fabrics other than cotton can be used for any of these patterns in case you are not going South, but cotton is being suggested for midwinter parties even in the snowy climes this season. Besides, if you're slow with the needle it might be nice to start your summer sewing now.

Mrs. Levy Returns

Mrs. Emma Levy, who has spent the past two years in Los Angeles, has returned to Washington and is with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. David Bornet, at Woodley Park Towers.

Reorganized PHA Has 10 Field Offices

The Public Housing Administration announced a reorganization yesterday, replacing five regional offices with 10 streamlined field offices in various parts of the country.

Provided for in the 1948 Appropriations Act as a shift from a wartime footing to a peacetime setup, the changes will bring "a few" persons into Washington from PHA offices elsewhere but will move no one out of this city, PHA Commissioner John Taylor Egan said.

The functions of the regional offices in New York, Atlanta, Chicago, Fort Worth and San Francisco will be centralized here.

PHA has responsibility over 4848 public housing projects with a total of 865,135 dwelling units.

The reorganization entails a number of appointments in the Washington office.

Orvil R. Olmsted, now director of the Chicago regional office, will become assistant commissioner for management. C. Russell Cravens of Omaha will become assistant commissioner for disposition. Herbert L. Wooten, comptroller, also will become acting executive officer of the administrative division. Marshall W. Amis, regional director at Fort Worth, will become general counsel.

John P. Broome, regional director at Atlanta, will become assistant commissioner for field operations in the Southern States. Field operations in the North will be handled by William P. Seaver, now regional director at New York, and in the West by Abner D. Silverman of Chicago.

'Dutch Uncle'

Hutchins Hits Editorials at Press Meet

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 19 (AP).—Dr. Robert M. Hutchins talked like a "Dutch uncle" today to more than 100 of the Nation's newspaper editorial writers.

Hutchins, chancellor of the University of Chicago, chided them for what he called their inability to take criticism and then heaped on more critical remarks.

The Chicago educator was a luncheon speaker at the National Conference of Editorial Writers. Most of his criticism was based on newspaper reaction to the 1947 report of the Commission on the Freedom of the Press.

Hutchins was chairman of the commission, which was privately financed.

"I shall begin by paying you the greatest compliment in my power," he said, "I think you are teachers. I did not say you were good teachers. Look at what you did to the report of the Commission on the Freedom of the Press."

Hutchins said some of the editorial writers read the commission's report incorrectly, some treated it unfairly, some used untruthful headlines and some just plain lied about it.

"One thing that would be helpful," Hutchins said, "would be to have you stop exhibiting neurotic symptoms every time anybody criticizes you. After all, your right to criticize is protected by a constitutional provision.

"But I never understood that the First Amendment said that the right of the press to be free from criticism is forever guaranteed; or that anybody who criticizes the press should be regarded as seeking to repeal this amendment."

Hutchins said the American people may be buying newspapers "but they are paying no attention to the advice they give."

"They do not buy them for the editorials," he said. "They read the editorials, if at all, for amusement; they do not read them for instruction."

Dr. Hutchins said the argument that people will quit buying newspapers they don't like is invalid.

"What a thought that must be for the citizens where people have to buy the papers of one owner or go without," he said.

A newspaper must make money, the speaker said, but, he added, "It is proper to ask whether it is discharging its responsibility for public enlightenment."

The three-day conference continues through Saturday. Newspapers from 32 States are represented.

'Truth Serum' Alibi False, Accused Says

Martinez, Calif., Nov. 19 (U.P.).—The "other man" accused in Kenneth Long's "truth serum" alibi of being the real slayer of Long's wife, admitted on the witness stand today that he loved her. But he protested his innocence, and said he did not see Mrs. Long on the day of the murder.

William Peck, 24-year-old former sailor and the third member of marital triangle that led to the knife murder June 27 of Mrs. Barbara Jean Long, 22, faced his accuser and denied being in Long's Richmond (Calif.) home on the day of the murder.

Long, 25, charged with murder, had named Peck as the killer, while under the influence of sodium pentathol, the "truth serum" drug. A psychiatrist had conducted the "subconscious interview," and it was recorded on a wire and then accepted in defense evidence yesterday in an action that threw the trial into a turmoil.

In the unprecedented evidence brought out by defense counsel, Long had accused Peck of knifing his wife to death while he stood by, helpless and hysterical.

Brought to Martinez from Medford, Oreg., last night, Peck, who already had been questioned about the slaying and released, told the jury he had known Barbara Jean "about a month."

"Yes," he said almost inaudibly with a nervous side-long glance at Long, "I knew her." He denied "living with her," but admitted "we fell in love" and that he left some clothing at the Long home.

Peck, whose statement that he was in a friend's home across the street from Long's house was corroborated by those friends on the stand, said he was on his way to see Barbara Jean the fatal day but was warned away by a youth playing with the three-year-old Long boy, Kenneth, jr.

550 Hear Eliot

Nobel Poet Puts Stress On Technique

T. S. Eliot, 1948 winner of the Nobel prize in literature, said in a lecture last night it would be "barbarous" to insist upon poets being spontaneous to the neglect of technique.

Eliot spoke before an overflow audience of about 550 persons in the Coolidge Auditorium at the Library of Congress on Poe and three French poets, Baudelaire, Mallarme, and Valery.

Verner W. Clapp, acting librarian of Congress, introduced Eliot, a fellow in American letters at the library.

Eliot who deplored Poe's sacrifice of meaning to musical effect in his poetry, spoke on the French poet's interest in Poe's theories of composition, notably in Poe's essay on how he wrote "The Raven."

Eliot said, "To insist that the poet should be spontaneous and irreflective, that he should depend upon inspiration and neglect technique, would be a lapse from what is in any case a highly civilized attitude to a barbarous one."

D. C. Chapter To Help Fight Rheumatism

Formation of a Washington chapter of the National Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation was announced here yesterday at charter presentation ceremonies.

Dr. Darrell Crain, charter committee secretary, immediately announced that first action of the chapter will be to join the foundation in its current drive for two million dollars to fight rheumatic diseases.

The District goal, he said, will be $25,000. Its share of half the funds collected, he said, will be used to help establish out-patient treatment centers here for the crippled, hospital beds for in-patient care and financing of research fellowships for the study of rheumatic diseases.

Earlier this week, another organization, the District Foundation for Rheumatic Diseases, announced it was withholding decision to join the national foundation "for another six months." The incorporated group headed by Mrs. Joseph F. Elward announced plans to seek its own funds privately to carry on its work.

The new chapter, it was said, was formed under sponsorship of the District Rheumatism Society, physicians' group affiliated with the District Medical Society. Most of the doctors and "some" lay members withdrew from Mrs. Elward's organization to affiliate with the participating chapter, chapter officials said.

28 Arrested In Raids on 3 Crap Games

Vice squad detectives did the job.

The three games they raided resulted in the arrest of seven men on gambling charges and 21 others on charges of disorderly conduct. All those arrested for disorderly conduct were released after forfeiting $5 collateral each.

The series of raids, in the Thirteenth Precinct, started at 1:45 a. m. when police found a dice game at 1926 13th st. nw.

They charged John H. Coleman, 50, of 1493 Morris rd. se., with setting up a gaming table, and Elizah Hardy, 63, of 204 R st. nw., with permitting gaming. Seven others were charged with disorderly conduct.

At 3 a. m., the raiders broke up another game in a basement apartment at 1719 Swann st. nw. They charged Robert Jones, 37, of 729 Park rd. nw., and Charles Anderson, 35, of 55 M st. nw., with setting up a gaming table and James A. McEaddy, 30, of 647 L st. ne., and Wyatt Moten, 60, of 1852 LeDroit ct. nw., with permitting gaming.

Seven more were charged with disorderly conduct.

The third raid occurred at 3:30 a. m. at 1927 9th st. nw., where police charged Benjamin Harrison, 37, of 1915 9th st. nw., with permitting gaming, and seven others with disorderly conduct.

Zany Folk Will Enjoy Tatlocks

By Richard L. Coe

I LAUGHED LIKE a drain at the Warner's "Miss Tatlock's Millions" and was mildly astonished to find that my review-writing colleagues conspicuously lack enthusiasm for this comedy. It makes me feel rather depraved.

It is, I grant, rather a peculiar plot. The situation concerns how an impostor plays the role of an idiot young man in a family haggling over the disposal of the grandparents' 20 million bucks. But, after all, "My Man Godfrey" also mocked the very rich and "Arsenic and Old Lace" made high sport of insanity. I don't see how you can object to it on the question of taste.

And, as George Jean Nathan once cogently noted, audiences don't change. While the world's slowly broadening spirit may view feeble-mindedness with more understanding, the spectable of an idiot at work invariably still titivates man's funny bone.

I think, for instance, that it's bitterly funny to watch John Lund, who can't be trusted with matches, setting fire to the living room curtains the while a grasping uncle, Monty Woolley, remarks: "Isn't it nice to have the dear boy home again?"

Without intending to, I see I've embarked on a defense of "Miss Tatlock's Millions," but neither do I intend to delve too thoroughly into the plot. It is saucy, not to be taken the least seriously, and, like good screwball comedy, everything happens in harum-scarum fashion. There are several arid patches before Writers Charlie Brackett and Richard Breen can pull their idea into something of a finish, but it's a farcical finale that will make you laugh.

At the beginning you find that Barry Fitzgerald is supposed to have been taking care of the lone Tatlock grandson on a Hawaiian island. But while Barry is on one of his drinking bouts in the village, Schuyler has set fire to their cottage and apparently has been burned to a cinder.

Monty Has Fun

All this happened three years before, during which time Barry has been drawing his pay and writing the family that all is well with Schuyler. Called back to California by the touching joint demises of the elder Tatlocks, Barry hunts up a minor movie type to pose as Schuyler.

The Tatlock family is nuttily bizarre, plus the fact each member wants to lay well-manicured mitts on the dough. Elder son Monty Woolley despises having to wait in Santa Barbara: "Adults don't live in California." Daughter Ilka Chase pushes her handsome, conceited son, Robert Stack, into romance with his cousin, Wanda Hendrix. The effulgent Monty turns to Sister Ilka and remarks: "You have an indefinable quality which has turned out not to be charm." Everyone fawns sickeningly on heir-apparent Schuyler and Director Richard Haydn makes a brief, but superbly comic, appearance as a lawyer for the reading of the will.

There's a trick beginning which I'll leave you to discover for yourself. This is, by the way, Actor Haydn's first directorial job and I think he's done a good one, spinning the nonsense along into cynical paths that are always a relief from the general sweetness and light tone of most California filmfare. Charles Brackett has produced, with his usual collaborator, Billy Wilder, occupied elsewhere, and so far as I'm concerned, I wouldn't mind seeing more of the money - glutted, harpy-like Tatlocks.

Whether you'll enjoy it as much as I did, I'd hate to hazard, for I'm the practical joke type, hopelessly depraved. And I LOVE it.

THIS MORNING at 10:45 brings the first of the day's two performances of the Clare Tree Major Children's Theater at Alexandria's Virginia Theater . . . Hans Christian Andersen's "The Snow Queen" is the first of the season's six children's plays, sponsored by the Children's Museum of Washington. The Virginia's manager, Valentine Smith, plans to host Mrs. Major's cast to lunch at Ye Hotte Shoppe, near the theater, before the 2 o'clock matinee, in honor of the group's first Alexandria appearance, a move down the river after 16 years in Washington necessitated by the high cost of theater rental in the District.

"HENRY V" is in its last few days at the Hippodrome, not for any lack of patronage, but simply because a revival of the Carole Lombard-William Powell hit, "My Man Godfrey," is irrevocably set for a run starting Thanksgiving Day . . . So if you're wanting to refresh your memories of the first Olivier Shakespeare, now's the time to buckle down.

WEEKENDING: W. H. Auden reads from his poems tonight at Cafritz Auditorium, 16th and Q sts., at 8:30 . . . The Gayety begins a series of Sunday amateur nights tomorrow at the 8:30 performance. "The Winslow Boy," which opened its American career over a year ago at the National, bids farewell after a successful visit tomorrow night on the Theater Guild on the Air, WMAL at 9:30; the original E st. cast will be giving its 899th performance, after which the whole company returns to England.

Pepco Plans Five-Million Bank Loan

By S. Oliver Goodman

Potomac Electric Power Co. plans to negotiate a five-million-dollar bank loan in lieu of additional security financing at this time.

Neal

President Alfred G. Neal announced this yesterday in calling a special meeting of preferred stockholders to obtain their permission. The session will be held on December 7 at 10 a. m. in Pepco's offices at 929 E st. nw.

In a letter to senior shareholders mailed last night and asking for signed proxies, Neal explained the need for additional bank credit. He said that "due to existing market conditions and other related and economic factors, the directors (of Pepco) have concluded that at the present time other methods are more desirable than stock or bond financing."

The company, Neal pointed out, has outstanding a 12-million-dollar bank loan at 2 per cent, which was made prior to the issuance of the preferred stock. Approval of senior shareholders is sought to extend this loan to 17 million dollars "in order that the company may be in a position to meet current needs as they arise during the period of the expansion program."

Neal emphasized that Pepco this year launched an 85-million-dollar expansion program that is expected to be concluded in 1952. As the first step in financing this record-breaking program, Pepco obtained 15 million dollars in January of this year through the sale of mortgage bonds.

Another 15 million dollars, the company anticipates, will be available from operations during the five-year program. This would leave 55 million to be obtained through various type security offerings.

In local financial circles, Pepco had been expected to float an additional stock offering before the end of this year. The post-election plunge of stock prices, it is believed, caused Pepco officials to change their mind. Best guess at this time is that Pepco will float additional common stock early next spring.

DIVIDENDS: Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., yesterday announced declaration of an increased quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on common stock, payable December 27 to stock of record December 8. This brings total payments for 1948 to $1.70 a share, compared with $1.60 a share last year. In December, 1947, the company voted a 10 per cent stock dividend . . . Potomac Electric Power Co. declared regular quarterly dividends of 22½ cents a share on common stock and 45 cents a share on preferred stock. Common dividend is payable December 27 to stock of record December 3, while respective dates for preferred stock are January 1 and December 3.

ODD LOTS: Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania filed for increased rates estimated to boost annual revenues by 25 million dollars . . . Southern Bell Telephone has taken its request for a rate boost in Kentucky to the courts after rejection by PSC . . . Federal Power Commission authorized Trans-Continental Gas Pipe Line Co. to substitute 30-inch pipe for 26-inch in company's plan to build a Texas-to-New York pipeline . . . Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co. will distribute on November 29 about $400,000 in Christmas savings to 6000 members.

STORE SALES: Counter to the national trend, Washington department store sales in the week ended November 13 edged 2 per cent higher than in the same 1947 week. For the Fifth Federal Reserve District, sales were off 4 per cent during the week and nationally, store sales were 9 per cent lower.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Henry Fredericks has been appointed regional air freight manager of Eastern Air Lines, with headquarters at the Washington National Airport . . . Henry T. Allen 3d has been assigned to the Washington office of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane as an account executive. He formerly was a captain in the field artillery . . . Sidney Margolis, local retailer, has been named a member of the reception committee for the 1949 convention of the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers . . . Ralph R. Kriesel of St. Paul, Minn., has been elected president of the American Finance Conference, succeeding Harry F. McCool of Chattanooga . . . Norman Farquhar has become a registered representative of the Washington office of Alex Brown & Sons. He formerly was assistant secretary of the Savings Institute of Sandy Spring, Md.

TAX CLASS STARTS: The fourth year of the Institute of Federal Taxes got under way last night at the Brookings Institution. The classes, under the direction of Dr. Fritz K. Mann, are sponsored by the American University with the cooperation of the District of Columbia Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the Federal Bar Association.

Martin Aide Resigns

Baltimore, Nov. 19 (AP).—Matthew M. Gouger today announced his resignation as vice president in charge of personnel and public relations and member of the board of the Glenn L. Martin Co. It is effective December 31 and Gouger said he would join another company at the time. He declined to name it.

FOR BEST SERVICE PLACE YOUR ADS EARLY

The steadily growing volume of classified ads in The Post, combined with the practice of many advertisers who phone late in the day, is making it difficult to devote the time and assistance to those late callers which is needed to prepare the most effective possible copy.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

We Can Fool Everybody Except 6-Year-Olds

Mrs. R. Rowland Stabler of Sandy Spring, Md., was talking about the weather forecast in her favorite (that's us) newspaper when her 6-year-old nephew observed:

"It seems to me, Auntie, that the weatherman and the newspapers do a lot of talking about the weather, but God doesn't pay much attention to them."

SENIOR PARTNER

Arthur Krock of the New York Times has been regaling friends with a story about a backwoods preacher.

He prayed (according to the yarn) that the Lord would let him serve "in any way at all—even if only in an advisory capacity."

Arthur's story reminds me of the tenant farmer who saved his money for a long time and finally scraped together enough to buy a plot of very poor land.

After years of tender care and backbreaking toil, the ground was greatly enriched and improved. The farmer and his pastor stood looking out over the bountiful crop one day, and the preacher said:

"You and the Lord have formed a fine partnership here, Hiram. You've done a wonderful job with this land."

"Yes," conceded Hiram a bit dubiously, "I guess we have. But I wish you'd have seen this place when the Lord was running it by Himself."

OLD BUT STILL GOOD

I suppose you've heard the one about the stutterer who stopped a man and his wife on the street and said, "P-p-pardon me, c-c-can you t-t-tell me the way to the r-r-r-railroad station?"

When the man stared at the stutterer in mute disbelief, his wife nudged him and said, "Why don't you give him the proper directions, dear?"

SUGGESTION

It might increase the chance of peace,
Defeat the dream of greed,
If Russians were to disinter
Their word for "Yes, indeed!"
Mary Ellen.

HINT

Methinks the "Mystery Shopper" sponsored by the Connecticut ave. Merchants Association would be easier to identify in a bathing suit.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Two black kittens, 3 months old, cute as can be." (Chestnut 2671).

"Three little boy kittens would like to become paying guests in homes where song and affection are acceptable coin of the realm." (Axminster 7431, evenings).

OVERHEARD

". . . So whenever it says 'temperature in the fifties' I just know it's going to be warm and pleasant that day . . ."

MISCELLANY

Harriet K. Howard of 4312 28th pl., Mount Rainier, Md., comes up with a sensible suggestion for our City Stepfathers: Why not bevel street corners for a distance of a few feet, to give mothers a break when they're pushing baby carriages, strollers, etc.? . . . L. Bickford of 2521 Connecticut ave. nw. says a lot of Washington gals would probably be interested to know that an ad appeared recently in a Laguna Beach (Calif.) paper saying: "Lady wishes to acquire southern accent, will pay $1 per hour" . . . And to think of the times I've heard southern girls wail "I wish I could LOSE this accent of mine, so you Yankees would stop teasing me" . . . Mrs. Philip Marcus of 2902 Allison st., Mount Rainier, Md., tells me that if I want some really delicious cake I'd better be at the bake sale being sponsored by the Mount Rainier Elementary School P-TA (Quality Market, 34th st., near Bunkerhill rd.) from 9:30 this morning until 1:30 this afternoon . . . And the P-TA of the Patrick Henry School in Arlington is giving a turkey dinner tonight, with lots of professional and amateur entertainment thrown in for good measure . . . Remember our item about Charles Hall McDowell, who bought a housewarming gift for some friends and then walked out of a local department store without telling them where to send the gift? Our item found its mark. First a Mr. Irvine at the Bureau of Vital Statistics called to say that the folks in his office knew Charley when he lived and worked here, and were wondering how our search would turn out. Then Mrs. Edward J. White of 1310 Shepherd st. nw. called, and gave the store Charley's present address—in Illinois . . . Mrs. Frederick H. Awalt of 3921 49th st. nw. tells me that the Honeywell Foundation School will hold a turkey shoot and gift bazaar from noon to 5 this afternoon at the Weathered Oaks Farm (Bradley blvd., Bethesda, Md.) and adds that "unfortunately, Honeywell has been dubbed a 'fashionable' school, which it definitely is not. We need all the help we can get" . . . John Powell of 3738 Benton st. nw. is intrigued by a recent classified ad which offered for sale a house "with a drive-in garage." Says John: "What a convenience it must be, not to have to carry the car in and out through the kitchen."

NEW YORK.—When Danny Kaye appeared at the command performance, it was expected that his reception at the Palladium would be as sensational as his previous appearance there. But this time Kaye, who had made the trip at his own expense and worked without pay, wasn't as successful as the last time, when he was paid $15,000 a week . . . Last winter the King and Queen came to see him, sat in the front row, and the audience was able to concentrate on the comedian on stage. But at the command performance their majesties sat in the royal box. And whenever Kaye did something funny the audience, with the regularity of observers at a tennis match, wheeled to watch the reaction of the King and Queen.

The large number of play casualties this season has provoked renewed attacks upon the drama critics by the producers and playwrights whose shows flopped. The critics, of course, are not to blame. It's just that the war years, when every venture succeeded, are over and entertainment-seekers have become more selective... It was Gilbert Miller, the veteran producer, who once told a wartime showman gloating over his three hits: "Just wait till the war ends. You'll find out the difference between genius and inflation."

Moss Hart, whose new play, "Light Up the Sky," reportedly brought threats of a lawsuit by Billy Rose and Eleanor Holm, reconciled with them yesterday . . . Rose, incidentally, will leave with his wife on a three-month trip around the world. He'll make a long stop-over in Brazil, to consider a 10-year offer by the sponsors of an industrial fair there . . . The New Yorker Magazine is writing a profile on Nick Kenny . . . J. Barnes of Herbert Hoover's brain trust is writing his memoirs . . . Katharine Cornell and Guthrie McClintic leave for Europe next week to spend Christmas with Ambassador Stanton Griffis in Egypt . . . Dr. George Gallup was stopped by a traffic cop for making a wrong turn last week. He was reluctant to give his name, knowing the cop would tell him: "Wrong again."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Defeats Mar Chiang's Prestige

By Drew Pearson

Here is an inside glimpse of certain things that are happening in China. It's not a pretty picture, but before pouring more United States dollars into China, Americans should take a long, hard look at the facts.

Chiang's house of cards—Chiang Kai-shek is finished even though he refuses to face the facts. He's lost the support of the vast majority of the Chinese people. His generals, and even his own government are anxious to oust him. Against such an imposing line-up Chiang will be fortunate to hold onto his job for the next 60 days.

Chiang

Faced with the collapse of his house of cards, Chiang is losing his emotional balance, just as Hitler did during the last days of Berlin. Intimates report that the Generalissimo is starting to fly into Hitler-type rages without provocation.

Only last week Chiang was in his headquarters, studying reports from his defeated armies, when he said to an old and trusted friend: "I should have resigned at the end of the war. That way I could have avoided these terrible defeats and would have been an honored citizen for the rest of my life."

The friend, anxious to avoid argument, said: "Yes, Excellency, that would have been the wise move."

People Resent Graft

Chinese graft—The Chinese people lay much of the blame for their wretched conditions directly on Chiang's doorstep. They point to his feeble attempts to wipe out army graft. They deeply resent his emperor-like manner and great wealth in the midst of hunger and want.

But most of all, the average Chinese citizen feels that the generalissimo is personally responsible for the inflation which has wiped out the savings of middle- and low-income groups.

Just a little over a month ago Chiang announced he was going to stabilize currency and urged all Chinese to place their savings in the new gold yuan. He promised to peg the new money at the equivalent of 25 cents. The people followed his advice and placed their meager savings in the new yuan.

Today—a little more than a month later—the official yuan is worth 5 cents, though its real value, as reflected on the black market, is about one-half cent. The Chinese people have lost their savings—and their respect for Chiang.

Coalition Seems Likely

When Chiang is either ousted or flees (or both) it's likely that a coalition government will be established by Vice President Li Tsung Jen and Fu Tso Yi, the latter one of the few successful Nationalist Army commanders. Even this coalition is not likely to last. Its base will be too narrow—too much similar to the present setup.

Will Russia fill the vacuum?—Students of China feel that the time left for us to act is fast running out. China is rapidly becoming a political vacuum—all set for the Kremlin to take over. Thus far, the Russians haven't had to do much more than donate captured Japanese equipment to the Communist armies. Their political offensive to take over China hasn't started yet, but will soon.

Some observers think that if we discard our present game of "footsie" with the Chinese reactionaries, we may be able to save the situation—but if so, it will be a miracle.

China is too vast, too overpopulated, too graft-ridden, and most of her leaders too intent on personal gain for any outside nation to bring about reforms. Reform has got to come from inside China, not outside—and even the Russians may get into trouble when they try renovating a nation where the people of North China have to speak pidgin English to understand the people of South China.

Big Moneyed Democrats

President Truman didn't get many "big" campaign contributions prior to the elections, compared to the Republicans. Nevertheless, he did have a few big donations, and here is a partial list of the faithful:

Floyd B. Odlum, head of the world's biggest investment trust—The Atlas Corporation—$3000.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Field—$4500.

Mrs. August A. Busch of the St. Louis beer fortune—$1500.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bruce (he's Ambassador to Argentina)—$7000.

Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney—Assistant Secretary for Air—"loaned" the Democrats $5000.

W. Averell Harriman—ECA Ambassador—$10,000. But his brother and business partner, E. Roland Harriman, gave the Republicans $11,000.

Former United States Attorney General Homer S. Cummings—$500. (Cummings' law firm gets $60,000 yearly retainer from the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey. The Standard Oil group was backing Dewey to the limit.)

Former United States Attorney General Francis Biddle—$200.

Under the Dome

Not many people realize it, but it's been years since the Far West has had a hand in the leadership of the House of Representatives. That is why a drive is on to make Congressman Mike Mansfield of Montana majority whip in the new Congress, replacing John McCormack of Massachusetts. Another reason is that Mansfield is one of the ablest, most aggressive fighters in Congress . . . Russell Davenport, former editor of Life Magazine and a strong willkieite, is calling a secret meeting of liberal Republicans in New York City to map a liberal revolt inside the Grand Old Party . . . . Editor V. Y. Dallman of the Illinois State Register in Springfield now says GOP should stand for "Grand Old Pollsters." . . . . The showdown as to when George Marshall will resign as Secretary of State will be about November 22, when Marshall comes back to confer with Truman. . . . . Spectacular feature of the San Francisco United Nations Charter meeting was a Russian ship, the Smolna, anchored in San Francisco Bay, where Foreign Minister Molotov entertained foreign diplomats. Today the same SS Smolna is lurking off the coast of China infiltrating agents into the Chinese army.
